86,000 PERSONNEL ADOPTED AS HOUSE PASSES NAVAL BILL

Measure Is Carried, 279 to 78, After "Big Navy" Amendment Wins by 221 to 148.

PARTY LINES SHATTERED

48 Democrats Vote For and 90 Republicans Against Increase From Committee Total.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—"Big navy" supporters rode roughshod over the Appropriation Subcommittee and House leaders late this afternoon when they carried by a majority of 73 the increase of the enlisted personnel to 86,000. The vote on this amendment to the Naval Appropriation bill, offered by Represenative McArthur of Oregon, Republican, was 221 to 148.

At the same time that the House agreed to this amendment, an increase for the pay of 19,000 men above the subcommittee's recommendation of 67,000 was approved, and a little later an added food allowance proposed by Representative Swing of California, Republican, was voted through. The naval bill then was passed by a vote of 279 to 78 and sent to the Senate. The bill as passed carries a total of $251,269,000, or $18,000,000 more than when it came from the Appropriations Committee.

In the vote on the 86,000 personnel, party lines were abandoned. Forty-eight Democrats and 173 Republicans voted for the amendment, while 57 Democrats, 90 Republicans, and Representative London of New York, Socialist, voted against it. The "big navy" men gained 44 votes, while the "small navy" men gained only 18 over the roll-call taken last Saturday in the Committee of the Whole when the result was 177 to 130 in favor of the increased personnel.

Letter From Denby Is Read.

The added personnel will mean an increase of approximately $22,000,000 in the bill when appropriations are made for clothing and other supplies for the 19,000 men. Chairman Kelley of the subcommittee claimed this afternoon, on the basis of figures submitted by Secretary Denby, that $40,000,000 would be added, including the $22,000,000 alluded to. The added sums Mr. Kelley asserted would come in the shape of proposed amendments to the sums provided for Navy Department bureaus, and in support of his argument he read from the Secretary's letter the following passages:

"While the referred-to increases in appropriations are the only ones involving personnel, the department is of the opinion that the appropriations recommended by the Committee on Appropriations for the maintenance of the navy are wholly inadequate to maintain its efficiency and to permit it to carry on its duties. This is true whether or not the ships in commission are those covered by the Appropriations Committee distribution for 67,000 men or the department's proposed distribution for 86,000 men, there being practically no difference between the two lists."

Selfish Motives Charged.

The reading of this letter came in the middle of a fiery speech by Chairman Kelley which formed the climax of the debate. The House had been in mild humor for several hours and discussion of the bill was progressing rather uninterestedly, for every one knew that the chief interest would develop in the hours before the crucial vote. But when Representative Dupre of Louisiana, Democrat, challenged the Chairman for saying members from navy yard districts were actuated by selfish motives and therefore wished an increased personnel, Mr. Kelley leaped to his feet and launched into a speech in which he derided the supposed ambitions of all the shore stations along both coasts.

"The people of Washington think the real result of the Limitation of Armament Conference should be that big guns should continue to be manufactured in the Washington navy yard," was a sample of his speech, which seemed to cut deeply into the members from the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts.

Representative Osborn of California and Mr. Kelley had a sharp interchange over the supposed desire of Los Angeles for a naval station. Suddenly Representative Longworth of Ohio, Republican, rose.

"Will the gentleman advise us just where the President of the United States wishes a navy yard?" he asked sharply.

"The President, I assume, can take care of himself," replied Mr. Kelley. "The President doesn't know and could not know how many men are needed by the navy, and I'm here to say no real friend of his would have asked him for the figures."

This was an obvious allusion to the letter recently written by the President to Mr. Longworth and read by the Ohio member in the House. Mr. Longworth grew red, but was very calm.

"When the roll is called it will be found that no real friend of the President is for this second rate navy," he answered.

"You're a naval wrecker!" cried Mr. Dupre, addressing Chairman Kelley.

There was another scene of bitterness, this one near the Denby letter. Mr.

May Ask Goethals or Schwab To Run Philadelphia Fair

PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—Members of a committee of six charged with the selection of an executive head for the sesquicentennial exposition, planned here for 1926 are considering offering the post to Major Gen. Goethals, builder of the Panama Canal, or Charles M. Schwab, Chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel Company.

The committee or some of its members expect to visit General Goethals and Mr. Schwab soon, despite a report that Mr. Schwab had stated he did not have time to devote to the work.

Edward Bok, who offered to guarantee a salary of $50,000 a year for five years to either Herbert Hoover or Mr. Schwab as executive head, said today that he had several other persons in mind. Secretary Hoover has declined.

BOY HURLS $121,000 OFF BROOKLYN SPAN

KEEPS $879 FOR TRIP WEST

Captured by a Companion He Asked to Join Arizona Crime Crusade, He Confesses.

Robert Byrnes, 15 years old, earning $19 a week as messenger for C. D. Halsey & Co., 27 William street, was entrusted yesterday with $246,000 in securities and certified checks and with $879.10 in cash.

He delivered $125,000 in securities to the Bank of New York, at 48 Wall street, and dropped $121,000 in securities and certified checks from the Brooklyn Bridge into the East River.

He was preparing, when he was arrested a little later, to buy a second-hand automobile with part of the cash to make a trip to Arizona, where he planned to devote the rest of his life to acts of heroism and the suppression of banditry.

The career of the fifteen-year-old boy came to a sudden halt yesterday because he tried to persuade another boy to join him in his crime crusade in Arizona. Byrnes had shown his roll of bills to Walter Norris, 16 years old, who lives at the Usarin Club for Boys, in Brooklyn. Morris walked half a mile with him, while the young thief unfolded his plan for making one crooked act produce a large crop of good deeds.

"Arrest him!" shouted Norris, tackling his companion unexpectedly and throwing him to the ground, when they came within close range of Policeman Joseph P. Larkin of the Poplar Street Station, at Montague and Henry Streets.

"He's just stolen more than $200,000!" shouted Norris, as the policeman ran over to see what the wrestling match was about. "He's got a big roll of bills and he's covered with big knives."

"Don't believe him, officer," said Byrnes. "He's kidding you. We're only fooling."

"Feel his pockets," said Norris.

Larkin slapped the boy's pockets and drew forth a leather sheath containing a 7-inch bowie knife. In another pocket was a 5-inch hunting knife. These were the first purchases the boy had made toward the armament he intended to take with him into the film country. The bills were found in another pocket.

"He told me he stole a bundle of securities and threw them away," said Norris.

On the way to the Poplar Street station Byrnes confessed, and Policeman Larkin notified C. D. Halsey & Co., officials of which had learned of the theft only a short time before. The boy had gone to the bank as directed, where his visit was awaited. He had three packages. He handed over the first one. He started to hand over the second, when the resolution to go West apparently overcame him and his half-raised arm dropped.

"I'll be back with the rest in a few minutes," he said, and left the bank. This was regarded as somewhat peculiar, but it was passed over by the bank employes. There is no precedent of a bank messenger turning thief in the middle of a transaction, and it was some time before Byrnes was under suspicion. When the messenger failed to appear within a reasonable time the bank notified C. D. Halsey & Co. of his strange conduct. It was immediately clear that the boy had stolen $121,897.10, and Police Headquarters was notified at once. A few minutes later headquarters received notice of the arrest of Byrnes.

When he was questioned about the securities and certified checks worth

MILLER TELLS HYLAN STATE WON'T BROOK TRANSIT MEDDLING

Warns Mayor of Drastic Action to Uphold Unified Plan for Traction Lines.

SOME HOME RULE 'SPURIOUS'

Time Near When Officials Cannot Pose as People's Champions While Denying Relief.

REAL FIVE-CENT FARE LOST

People Paying Up to Twenty Cents for Same Service—City's Delay of Funds Blocks Remedy.

A threat of drastic action if the City Administration persisted in obstructing the completion and extension of transit facilities was made by Governor Nathan L. Miller yesterday at a luncheon of the Fifth Avenue Association at the Waldorf-Astoria. His warning was greeted with applause from the 1,500 members present, including many prominent business men.

Governor Miller had just been discussing the tie-up of the Fourteenth Street-Eastern District subway caused by the delay of the Board of Estimate in approving contracts.

"Now, the duty to pass on those contracts is ministerial," he said. "I have no doubt that a taxpayer, certainly a party to the contract, could compel action, but that sort of conduct, if persisted in too long, may become such a gross violation of official duty as to justify, indeed, if need be, to require more drastic action."

Governor Miller was applauded at frequent intervals during his address. He said that "some people, even those who are quite ready to run to the Legislature when they want something," seemed to forget that the State had a responsibility in the transit situation, and added that if the question of enforcing the orders of the commission ever should be carried into the courts, as he hoped it would not, he could pledge that the orders of the commission would be supported by all the authority, influence and power of the State.

Governor Miller, introduced as "one of the ablest and most courageous Governors in the history of the State," referred to the approaching anniversary of the commission on April 25.

People Have Chance to Judge.

"Hence, the timeliness of this discussion," he continued. "I said when the act was pending in the Legislature that the companies had had no hand in the framing of the statute, and that they would have no hand in the selection of the commission.

"Well, the people have had an opportunity for a year to judge the work of the commission, and I think the people themselves are quite able now to pass judgment upon the charge that the commission had been delivered over in advance to the interests who, it is said, as a part of the conspiracy to mulct the people and to discredit the City Administration are now staging the hold-ups and the robberies which the Police Department has suddenly realized are being committed in this town.

"We did do one thing: it was not novel. We merely restored the situation as it existed under the old Rapid Transit Commission. We did limit the power indefinitely to obstruct action. Anybody can obstruct. It requires brains to construct, and if it had not been demonstrated a year ago that it was necessary to curb the power to obstruct, then that demonstration has been made within the last year.

"Why, do you know at this very hour the City Administration is holding up work necessary to complete contracts to which the city is already committed, necessary to furnish, to put into public use, facilities in which the city money is already invested?

Delay Costs $2,000 a Day.

"I will refer to only one, and there are a number, the Fourteenth Street subway, the completion of which will probably relieve the most congested traffic in this town, that which centres in Canal Street. The tunnel has been dug; the rails have been bought; but now, for nearly a year, the Board of Estimate has delayed action on the approval of the contracts for the ties and spikes with which to lay these rails.

"Meanwhile, $2,000 a day in interest is being added to the cost of investment, to the cost of construction on the city's already invested seventeen millions of money. Three-quarters of a million dollars has accumulated in interest, added to the cost, while these contracts have been sleeping before the Board of Esti-

Yachting Party Saved Off Palm Beach; Lost for 12 Days, Foodless for Three

Special to The New York Times.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., April 19.—Lost at sea for twelve days and without food and water for three, Captain and Mrs. H. L. Morrow of Savannah and a negro cook came within 400 yards of shore here today on their last drop of gasoline and were rescued when fishermen passing along the shore saw their distress signals.

Weak from lack of food and exertion in handling their auxiliary schooner South Atlantic, a 40-foot craft, they and their negro cook were in bad physical condition when a launch took food to them. None the less famished and pathetic was Cutie, a chow dog, which was hardly strong enough to move when a feast of bones was laid before it.

Leaving Fernandina, Captain Morrow said, on April 7, he was blown out to sea and carried fifty miles across the Gulf Stream. He said he lost his bearings completely but managed to bring the craft back across the Stream and, heading west, knew that he would strike land sooner or later. They headed for Miami, expecting to make the distance in three days. The first day they struck a blow and found the boat more than they could handle.

They had 150 gallons of gasoline aboard at the start and saved this as much as possible, by using sail, until Morrow and his wife became too weak to handle the canvas. Three days ago the Morrows, the negro cook and Cutie shared the last can of beans. The boat was slighted here about 11 o'clock this morning with an American flag flying upside down.

Berlin Merchants Establish 'Dead Line' Against Thieves

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Co.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 19.—In 1920 Berlin had 55,000 burglaries as against 600 in 1900. Last year's figures have not yet been compiled, but are undoubtedly larger than those of 1920. Business houses, particularly those in the cloak, suit and textile trades, have been particularly hard hit by the wave of crime. These trades have now organized for self-protection on novel lines—for Berlin—having found inadequate the present police protection of 2,300 night patrolmen for Berlin's 5,000 streets, many of which are miles long.

From tonight a "dead line" is being drawn at night around the centre of the clothing trades section of Berlin, bounded by Kronen, Jerusalemer, Markgrafen and Mohren Streets, an area approximating four square city blocks. Uniformed watchmen on foot and civilian cyclists will patrol the periphery of this forbidden section from the business closing time until one hour after business reopens in the morning, and nobody will be permitted to cross the dead line, either entering or leaving the district, unless able to prove that he has legitimate business there.

If it proves a success, the system will be extended to other burglarized districts.

HYLAN ON SPIRITS; MOCKS CONAN DOYLE

Prendergast Reminds Him of the Courtesy Due a Distinguished Foreigner.

EX-GOV. SMITH RISES TO SAY

Mayor Needs Spirit Help to Grasp Port Plan, for Nobody on Earth Can Explain It to Him.

In a speech making fun of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle and the latter's spiritualistic views, Mayor Hylan suggested at the tenth anniversary dinner of the Broadway Association last night at the Hotel Astor that the Citizens Union, The New York World and other critics of his administration might turn to Sir Arthur for help. The Mayor's allusions to Sir Arthur evoked only scattering applause as contrasted to that which greeted the reply of Public Service Commissioner William A. Prendergast.

"I regret I have no message from the spirit world," said Mr. Prendergast in beginning his address, "I have always been an admirer of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. I believe a tribute is due to this noted writer. Hospitality is due to this distinguished Britisher, even if here on a misguided mission."

Mr. Prendergast's appeal for courtesy won a quick and hearty response. Prolonged applause resounded in the dining hall. Mayor Hylan had left just as Mr. Prendergast arose to speak, so that he did not hear the reception accorded to remarks which took issue with his own.

Mayor's Respects to Author.

"You have no doubt been reading in the papers," said the Mayor, "that the creator of Sherlock Holmes, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, is in a new line of business, and from all reports the shekels are rolling in to him as fast as when he told how easy it was for the famous detective of fiction to get out of tight places. We have heard much about 'etheric bodies' and the rejuvenation that awaits all who pass to the shadowy realms on the other side. The gullible portion of the public and the British sympathisers, of whom there seems to be no end in this country, and particularly in this city, will see to it that Doyle's daily deliveries are well attended.

"On the subject of spiritualism Sir Arthur has told us nothing that has not long since been dismissed as 'wool gathering.' But the lure of the unknown is always fascinating and there will always be a large audience to listen to airy nothings. Mr. Doyle intends to spread them at so much per spread."

Referring to the Citizens Union as a "sniping and snooping organization," that was practically dead, the Mayor said that by adopting Sir Arthur's theory of reincarnation much success probably awaited the organization later, "for in this life they never could distinguish between imaginary things and realities."

The Mayor suggested a séance, conducted by Sir Arthur, as a means of discovering how much profit there was in the real estate business said to be carried on by Arnold Rothstein, "a big and influential gambler" his administration had put out of business. He thought Sir Arthur was the "boy. The World needed, adding that it probably could find a "shady" job for him.

"Al" Smith Counters.

"There is little doubt that the State and local Chambers of Commerce will give a sympathetic attention to the lectures of the British spiritualist," continued Mayor Hylan. "Some of these chambers are under the same influence of Eugenius H. Outerbridge and the same interests that put over the Port Authority plan on the City of New York, taking away from the elected city officials the power to control the city's waterfront."

Answering this allusion to the Port Authority, former Governor Alfred E. Smith, a member of the Port Authority, aroused laughter and applause when he said:

"I would seriously suggest that the Mayor get hold of Conan as soon as he possibly can and induce Conan to bring back somebody from the spirit land—nobody on earth can do it—and explain to his Honor what the Port Authority is."

Mr. Smith discussed the transit problem, saying that it never would be solved to the complete satisfaction of everybody. He said that it lacked business sense, adding that it's too good a political football to be treated from a business standpoint.

Horace De Lisser, President of the Broadway Association, also spoke. Frederick J. Wells, Vice President of the organization, presided.

LADY ASTOR HERE; IN HER OWN WORDS, 'SAYS A MOUTHFUL'

The Same Being an Expression of Regret That We Did Not Elect a Woman Mayor.

O.K.'S GENOA, LLOYD GEORGE

HUSBAND GAVE HER START

That 'Strange and Remarkable Man' Drove Her Into Public Life, She Tells Town Hall Audience.

Lady Astor, M. P., who was one of the famous Langhorne sisters of Virginia before she married the son of the first Viscount Astor (William Waldorf Astor), and was the first woman to be elected to the British House of Commons, arrived here yesterday on the Olympic to talk to American women and made her maiden American political speech in the Town Hall last night to about 1,200 members and guests of the New York League of Women Voters. Closing her exposition of the woman in political life, she made a reference to the Mayoralty of New York that sent gales of laughter through the house.

Speaking slowly and distinctly, and with an occasional flash of nervousness, the first of her sex in the British Parliament related how Lord Astor "drove" her into public life, how the House of Commons had treated "the lady pirate" downright decently, and ended with a plea to American women to "get into politics, especially local politics."

With the close of Lady Astor's speech, Mary Garrett Hay came to the front of the platform and presented her with a bouquet picked to match the city colors. A long streamer of satin in the same hues trailed from the orchids and gardenias, and Miss Hay mentioned jocosely that she "wasn't the Mayor of New York—yet."

Sally Brings Applause.

Lady Astor accepted the flowers, thanked the donors and then looked out at the distinguished audience.

"I hope it would not seem tactless of me," she said with a quizzical smile, "but I wish to goodness the presenter was the Mayor of New York." Applause leaped into racket throughout the hall, and in a break in it, Lady Astor added:

"I see you know what I mean."

Laughter came into the handclapping and both swelled loudly when she stepped nearer the edge of the stage and fired this parting shot:

"And that's saying a 'mouthful.'"

At last night's meeting Lady Astor headed the list of speakers and when she walked onto the platform between the Viscount and Vincent Astor, making a pretty picture in a frock of gray chiffon, she received a warm welcome.

"I know that this welcome has nothing to do with me," she said, as she launched into her speech. "Ever since I entered the 'Mother of Parliaments' I realized that I ceased to be a person and had become a symbol. The safe thing about being a symbol is this—you realize that you of yourself can do nothing, but what you symbolize gives you courage and strength and should give you wisdom. I certainly have been given courage and strength and I won't say too much about wisdom.

Husband Started Her.

"My entrance into the House of Commons was not, as some thought, in the nature of a revolution. It was an evolution. It is rather interesting how it came about. My husband was the one who started me off on this downward path—from the fireside to public life. If I have helped the cause of women he is the one to thank, not me. He is a strange and a remarkable man.

"First, it was strange to urge your wife to take up public life, especially as he is a most domesticated man; but the truth is that he is a born social reformer. He has avoided the pitfalls which so many well-to-do men fall into. He doesn't think that you can right wrongs with philanthropy. He realizes that one must go to the bottom of the causes of wrongs and not simply gild them up."

For eleven years, said Lady Astor, she had helped her husband with his work at Plymouth—"I found out the wrongs an she tried to right them"—and this combination of work "was a wonderful and happy combination and I often wish that it was still going on."

"However," she said, "I am not here to tell you of his work, but it is interesting in so far that it shows you how it came about that I stood for Parliament at all. Unless he had been the kind of a man he was, I don't believe that the first woman member of the oldest Parliament in the world would have come from Plymouth, and that would have been a pity. Plymouth is an ideal port to sail from or to. It has been bidding godspeed to so many voyagers. I felt that I was embarking on a voyage of faith, but when I arrived at my destination some of the honorable members looked upon me more as a pirate than a pilgrim.

Commons Stood the Shock.

"A woman in the House of Commons! It was almost enough to have broken up the House. I don't blame them—it was equally hard on the woman as it was on them. A pioneer may be a picturesque figure, but they are often rather lonely ones. I must say, though, for the House of Commons, they bore their shock with dauntless decency. No body of men could have been kinder and fairer to a 'pirate' than they were. When you hear people over here trying to run down England, please remember that England was the first large country

DROP TREATY OR QUIT RUSSIAN DEBATE, LLOYD GEORGE TELLS GERMAN ENVOYS; WIRTH TEARS UP FIRST REPLY TO CENSURE

Secret Russo-German Military Agreement Said to Have Been Framed in Recent Exchanges

LONDON, April 19 (Associated Press).—Allen Clement Edwards, a Liberal member of the House of Commons, who has just returned from a tour of investigation in Western Prussia, said today that he was informed last Friday by representative Germans that a compact had been concluded between Prussian authorities in Berlin and Soviet representatives of a dual nature, which in addition to a commercial agreement included a secret military arrangement involving the mutual use of Soviet soldiers and officers and German officers and "non-coms."

Mr. Edwards, in a long statement, said that he gathered ample testimony to the effect that Germany was able to meet her reparations obligations, but that as long as German payments had to go through the conduit pipe of Prussian officialdom, vast sums, extracted from German taxpayers for this purpose, would be deflected to other purposes and both German taxpayers and the Allies would be cheated.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 19.—A correspondent of The Daily Telegraph writes:

"The Russo-German treaty has even greater importance than its text would seem to warrant. I understand that in addition to the clauses which have been communicated to the conference and which are now public property, a supplementary document has been prepared which when signed will have the character of a complete military convention.

"Its object is to establish a community of interests between Germany and Soviet Russia for the 'defense' of their respective frontiers with Poland. In other words, it is an agreement for reciprocal military aid in case of Polish 'aggression.'

"Every one knows that Berlin draws no real line of demarcation between aggression and defense, for, if the German authorities are to be believed, in 1914 it was France of all countries which first invaded German territory. The signature of this military convention is said to depend on the final result of the Genoa conference.

GENOA, April 19.—At this conference called to discuss economic questions and from which politics was to be barred, political history of the greatest importance is being made—political results are being achieved which may shape the events of Europe for half a century.

Whatever is done or not done in the remaining days of the conference does not make much difference. It is the big result which is recorded. That result is that out of the gathering which was to create a pan-European spirit of common action and mutual benefit has grown a new alignment of the powers. One side is led by the English-French-Italian association which won the war and the other is led by Germany. Back of Germany is Russia. M. Barthou, head of the French delegation, expressed the situation aptly today, when he said that upon the Allies who saved western civilization during the war now rested the burden of protecting that civilization. M. Barthou does not conceal his belief that the German-Russian combination made here will continue to be a living factor in European politics.

It seems that at Genoa the final death blow was given to Woodrow Wilson's dream that the World War meant the end of the balance of power and an alliance in brotherhood for the nations. It may be taken for granted that the German-Russian trade treaty will lead to a closer arrangement, and that it will be offset by a tighter co-operation of England and France. The possibilities of German-Russian co-operation are unlimited. They stretch from Vladivostok to the Rhine.

Germans Hold All-Night Conference.

Today the German-Russian combination has the Genoa conference tied in a double knot and there is good reason to believe that this whole result is the work of Dr. Walter Rathenau, the German Foreign Minister. Last night was delivered to the Germans the resolution of censure for their conclusion of a separate treaty with Russia, while the Allies were not looking. The German delegation held a meeting lasting far into the morning at which it was decided tentatively to send to Premier Facta, as Chairman of the conference, a note refusing to receive the act of censure, claiming that the powers which had signed it, being only party of the conference, had no power to take the step, and demanding that the whole question of their action be brought before Commission No. 1, which meant before the conference. At the same time the neutrals, who had not been consulted on the censure act, were framing a protest against it.

Early this morning the French let it be known that if this were done the conference would be broken up by the withdrawal of their delegation and the delegations of their allies. The Italians immediately got to work to mediate. They called on the Germans and told them that if they persisted the responsibility of breaking up the conference would be on them.

Signor Schanzer arranged for Chancellor Wirth to see Mr. Lloyd George. The head of the German delegation went to the villa of the British Prime Minister at Quarto with Dr. Rathenau and remained nearly two hours. Two hours after the return of Dr. Wirth it was announced that the German note had been torn up. It is understood that the Italians urged that the Germans withdraw quietly from the first commission, as provided by the resolution of censure, and let the conference go on. It was said tonight at German headquarters that the final German decision would not be reached until tomorrow.

The German spokesmen say Mr. Lloyd George was responsible for their acting with the Russians because he blundered in shutting the Germans out from the Quarto meeting. They say today the British Prime Minister, after having justified the Quarto conference as being among the convening powers and Russia, made a further blunder in having the act of censure signed by the Little Entente and Portugal. Dr. Rathenau expressed the opinion today that in so doing Mr. Lloyd George had given the lie to his declaration that the war finally did not hold at Genoa. The Germans are now convinced their belief that there have won a great diplomatic victory and up to tonight the evidence seems to support their claim.

It seems that not only is Dr. Rathenau running the German end of the show but confidence M. Schinkevitch, the Russian Foreign Minister, and Tchitcherin spent most of the day with the Ger-

SEMENOFF, FREED, CALLED BIGAMIST

Woman Tells Japanese Newspaper That She Is Cossack's Legal Wife.

EAST SIDE MOBS GENERAL

Police Beat Back Hostile Throng as Bailed Prisoner Leaves Ludlow Street Jail.

General Gregory Semenoff, Ataman of the Siberian Cossacks, who was confined in Ludlow Street Jail last Thursday because of his inability to furnish bond of $25,000 in a civil action, stepped smilingly out of jail late yesterday afternoon after giving cash bail and immediately became the object of one of the strangest demonstrations in the history of the east side.

A frenzied mob of 3,000 men, women and children fought a detail of police to get close enough to the Cossack leader to vent in Russian, Yiddish and broken English their opinion of the man against whom charges of banditry and murder of American soldiers have been made at Washington.

"Bandit," "murderer," "cut-throat," "killer of children" were some of the terms applied to Semenoff. Taunts were hurled at him from fire escapes, roofs and windows filled with people. The air was filled with jeers and catcalls. Bearded men and youths cursed "the terror of Siberia" and raised threatening fists in his direction. Police lines had been formed by Captain Michael Kelly and thirty patrolmen from the Clinton Street Station and the crowd had been pushed back along Ludlow Street toward Broome and Grand Streets.

Police Ride With General.

The General was hustled into a waiting taxicab as a great roar broke out from the people in the street and in the windows and on the fire escapes. The policemen beat the crowd back and provided room for the driver of Semenoff's taxicab to start north, a patrolman standing on the running board and two members of the bomb squad inside to protect the General.

In addition to the police from the Clinton Street station there were on hand six members of the Bomb Squad under Lieutenant J. J. Gegan. Operatives of the Department of Justice were also present. In spite of the rain a crowd began to gather two hours before the General was released, and at one time the police cleared adjoining roofs.

Gullie B. Goldin, of counsel for Semenoff, refused to say where the General was being taken or where Mme. Semenoff has been stopping since she left the Waldorf-Astoria last Friday. Newspapermen followed Semenoff in another taxicab and another cab carried Bomb Squad detectives. After a chase, in which the Semenoff taxicab bumped into another one, the General's car escaped under cover of a traffic snarl at Broadway and Seventy-second Street.

It was announced by counsel that the cash bail for the release of Semenoff had been furnished by two Russian organizations, the Russian National Society and the Association of Units of Russia, with offices at 5 Columbus Circle. The cash was handed to Sheriff Percival E. Nagle at the Sheriff's office at 5:30 and the Sheriff, with Under Sheriff John B. Coggey hurried to Ludlow Street jail. It was said that the bail consisted of $20,000 in cash and $5,000 in Liberty bonds.

Says She Is Still General's Wife.

Earlier in the day the contents of an article in the Japan Advertiser of Sunday, March 19, which just reached this city, were communicated to Semenoff's counsel. According to the article, Semenoff was charged with bigamy by a woman representing herself to be Lenaida Semenoff, his first wife.

In part the article said:

FRANCE SETS TERMS FOR SOVIET ENVOYS

REPARATIONS BOARD TO ACT

Rapallo Treaty Will Come Before It Tomorrow at Premier Poincare's Instance.

PARIS, April 19 (Associated Press).—In addition to placing the Russo-German treaty before the Reparations Commission for its consideration, Premier Poincaré has asked the Allied Governments to join with France in submitting the treaty to the Council of Ambassadors because it is likely to infringe upon articles of a political nature of the Treaty of Versailles, and it is the function of the Council of Ambassadors under this treaty to place on record officially breaches of the treaty in general.

The Premier has also forwarded fresh instructions to M. Barthou at Genoa. The French Government is not opposed to resuming deliberations with the Russian delegation, but on condition that the latter accepts the Cannes provisions, which involve, notably, full recognition of the Russian pre-war debt, respect for private property and concessions and the right to indemnities, all of which principles are contradicted in spirit and letter by the Rapallo Treaty.

If the Russians desire to reach an agreement with the Allies, the French say, they must give up in advance the idea of inserting in the agreement clauses similar to those in the Treaty of Rapallo. If they persist in their pretensions the French delegation will withdraw from the conference, so far as Russian affairs are concerned.

Acknowledging the receipt of the instructions, M. Barthou declared himself in full agreement with M. Poincaré, and said he was resolved, like the Premier, to countenance no infraction of the Cannes principles.

The Treaty of Rapallo will probably be formally placed before the Reparations Commission Friday, when the commission will begin an inquiry to determine whether the agreement conflicts with the Treaty of Versailles.

In commission circles this evening it was pointed out that the commission would probably decide that the Rapallo agreement was in direct violation of Article 248 of the Treaty of Versailles. This article in effect gives the commission first lien on all assets of the German Empire.

While the members of the commission refrained from formally commenting upon the agreeent, the general feeling was that it ought to have been submitted to the commission for approval. It was considered probable that the commission would demand, in a note to the German Government, the submission of the treaty. The unofficial view was that Germany had violated Article 248 of the Treaty of Versailles by applying her assets or resources to purposes other than reparations.

Polish representatives have protested to the commission against the Russo-German treaty on the ground that part of Poland which was included in the old Russian Empire has a substantial share in the Russian claim against Germany.

The possibility of an extraordinary session of the French Chamber of Deputies being called owing to the situation created by the Genoa Conference developments was being freely discussed in political circles here today. Petitions are being circulated among the Deputies for the calling of such a session. The signatures of one-half the membership are necessary. The petition requests Premier Poincaré to convene the Chamber before the date to which it adjourned, which was May 23.

When the adjournment occurred on they had ready their answer to the allied memorandum. The reply is not an acceptance. It is a verbose mass of argument and counter-proposition. It is an effort to force the other nations into accepting a treaty similar to that made with Germany. M. Rakovsky said tonight that it was a comprehensive reply that it contained the Russian counter-proposition; that it contained proposals dealing with the protection of foreigners in Russia and the Russian demand for a big loan to the Soviet Government. M. Rakovsky said that the Russians' sensibilities were deeply wounded at the note to Germany. "It is indeed regrettable," he said, "that the one nation here which shows herself friendly to Russia has been shut out of the commission which is to discuss Russia."

He said the treaty with Germany did not settle all the points between Russia and Germany which were to be discussed here, that the powers who had signed it had no right to act for the whole conference, and that the Russians wanted the Germans back on the first commission.

M. Motta, head of the Swiss delegation, asked tonight his opinion of the situation, said he thought it was as bad as it possibly could be. He declared that Germany was justified in raising the issue of competence on the part of the conference to censure them. This action of the convening powers would have the direct effect of greatly enhancing the importance of the Russians if the Germans were excluded from Commission No. I. Each time M. Tchitcherin spoke he would be speaking for Russia and for Germany, for the two biggest nations of Europe, for half the population of the continent. He would probably try every effort to make the best of his peculiarly good position.

There are few diplomats here who believe now that the plan of treaties between all countries and Russia can be worked out. Certainly there is little indication that France and the Allies will accept the Russian counter-proposals. It is doubtful whether the Russians want them accepted now. It is certain that Germany would be content if no other Russian treaty than her own came out of the conference.

But regardless of what other treaties may be made, the fact remains that Germany has associated herself with Russia, is fighting here for Russian interests, and that the European diplomats generally expect that the association will not end when the Genoa conference closes.

Alternatives Put Up to Germans.

As the matter stands tonight the conference is awaiting the German answer. Mr. Lloyd George told Chancellor Wirth today that he could either get out of the first commission or the Russian treaty. He said there was no other course. There is no expectation that the Germans will denounce the treaty.

The British Prime Minister explained to the German Chancellor that the powers who signed the censure resolution were signatories of the Treaty of Versailles, since there was involved the question now under study by the commission of international jurists as to whether the treaty of Germany with Russia violated the Versailles treaty. Mr. Lloyd George told Dr. Wirth, who insisted on the British being responsible for forcing the new alignment of the European powers, that it was the Germans who took the initiative and were therefore responsible for the old war division of Europe.

While the British Prime Minister exerted himself to prevent a break of the conference, he showed no change of opinion that the Germans had been guilty of unfair and disloyal procedure. The British Prime Minister said today in reply to Dr. Rathenau's statement last night that he (Rathenau) had tried to see Mr. Lloyd George and tell him about the treaty prior to its signature on Easter Sunday, that in the first place it was the part of the German Chancellor, head of the German delegation, to deal with the head of the British delegation, and in the second place that if the Germans had had any serious wish to communicate to him the facts of the treaty they would have done so in writing. He characterized the German Foreign Minister's statement to the American correspondents as camouflage.

Seek a Compromise Formula.

GENOA, April 19 (Associated Press).—The German delegates and experts have not yet been able to find a formula whereby to compromise with the Entente powers without sacrificing the Russo-German treaty, although they were in session at a very late hour tonight. Efforts are being made to have the conference formulate a Russian policy in which the Russo-German treaty can be absorbed, thus giving it the stamp of conference approval and removing the cause of hard feeling.

The plain language of Premier Lloyd George to the German statesmen today over the treaty incident, which at one time threatened to disrupt the economic conference, was believed to have cleared the political atmosphere, but as neither the German reply to the Allis nor the Russian reply regarding acceptance of the conditions for the restoration of Russia was forthcoming, the situation is still considered critical.

Some of the neutrals described the Germans as embarrassed as how to find a way out of the difficulty. Meantime, the work of the conference is blocked. The neutral States have officially insisted that the agenda of the conference be discussed in the commissions and not in private conversations among the chief delegates. To this the leaders rejoin that preliminary meetings are advisable in order to expedite the labors of the conference.

Among the neutrals and small States generally there began to be manifest today a strong feeling that the conference was not making the progress they had expected. Many of them have their national problems to present and argue before the various commissions, but no opportunity for this has yet arisen because of the time devoted to the Russian question.

While it is expected that the controversy over the Russo-German treaty may be smoothed over, the neutral representatives fear that the incident will unfavorably affect the efforts for constructive achievements at Genoa.

According to an English spokesman, the conversation at Prime Minister Lloyd George's villa concluded by Mr. Lloyd George saying:

"There are only two alternatives for the Germans: Either to withdraw the Russo-German treaty or to withdraw themselves from the commission discussing Russian affairs. I do not wish either to humiliate Germany or to inflict a penalt upon her, but the conference cannot allow the German delegation to continue to participate in discussion on Russia unless she makes amends for this deplorable incident."

In the course of the conversation Dr. Wirth and Dr. Rathenau made excuses and presented diffuse explanations, repeating what is already known about the reasons which induced them to sign the treaty with Russia.

Wants to Know Germans' Intentions.

Here Mr. Lloyd George answered it was not a question of excuses and explanations, but he needed to know exactly what the Germans intend to do.

Dr. Wirth replied that the situation was very grave. He regretted complications had arisen, but he would do his best to find a satisfactory solution.

The British Prime Minister insisted upon knowing soon the German decision.

Although the French delegation tonight confirmed that Premier Lloyd George had adopted a strong attitude at today's meeting with the German Foreign Minister, Dr. Rathenau. M. Barthou, who is kept closely informed as to what Mr. Lloyd George is doing, said there was no room for equivocation on the part of Germany—there was no middle course. If the Germans insisted on maintaining the treaty the French could not deal with them on any of the commissions concerning Russia.

"The most complete accord exists between France and England on the question involved," he added. "I personally feel the greatest friendliness and support on the part of the British Premier."

The opinion was expressed in French circles tonight that the Germans are anxious to find a way of settlement which will keep them active members of the conference.

A French communiqué issued earlier in the day points out that for the first time since the signing of the Treaty of Versailles the world sees the names of the representatives of nine powers marking up an entente affixed to a document which protests German conduct.

The communiqué insists that the dragging of the controversy into the full session of the conference would bring about a situation which Europe wishes to avoid, namely, the lining up of new political groups, one against the other. It refers to the signing of the Russo-German treaty as "a manifestation of the Bismarckian spirit which caused the allied block immediately to affirm its unity."

It is denied in the statement that the French had received any official or unofficial notice from the Germans concerning the treaty. It is likewise denied that the Allies were engaged in drawing up "a clandestine treaty behind the doors of the Villa de Albertis."

It is desired to make clear, adds the statement, that the protest was sent to Germany alone because Russia had no legal relations with the Allied Powers. Russia is free to act as she wishes, it is pointed out, but Germany has normal relations with the Allies and is linked with them by treaty.

The protest addressed to Germany, it is explained, did not refer to the Treaty of Versailles because the question of the application of this treaty, especially its economic clauses and other subjects covered by the Russo-German convention, are under the supervision of the allied Reparations Commission. It is the duty of this commission to address remarks to Germany if it finds the Versailles Treaty ha been violated, adds the communiqué, which concludes by saying the Allies had restricted their action to affirming that the Russo-German treaty was contrary to the principles of the Cannes agreement of the Allies, under which the invitations to the Genoa Conference were issued, and, therefore, was not acceptable.

Commenting on this communiqué, a French spokesman said this afternoon it would be a great mistake to imagine that Frenchmen rejoice in the discomfiture Germany must feel as a result of the action of the Allies yesterday. He said France had come to Genoa feeling that dangers would accompany the conference. That was why Premier Poincaré had asked for more time properly to prepare a basis for the work here.

France was not mistaken, said the French spokesman, in her anticipations, for Germany had given proof of the persistent existence of hostile intentions. "This attitude," he said, "justifies mistrust and renders exceedingly difficult the advent of a true spirit of peace in the reconstruction of Europe."

WAY OUT OFFERED TO GERMANS

Lloyd George Asks Them to Make Their Own Suggestions.

GENOA, April 19.—Every influence today in Genoa that is not actively hostile to the conference is endeavoring to save the situation. The difficulty is to find a formula. Signor Schanzer saw the Germans, Wirth and Rathenau, this morning and had two hours' talk with Mr. Lloyd George at midday. Tonight M. Tchitcherin is conferring with the Germans.

Mr. Lloyd George pointed out to the German Chancellor and Foreign Minister that the alternatives before them were either to withdraw the treaty or withdraw from Commission No. 1 and let the remaining members make their own agreement with Russia.

These alternatives were not, I am told, put in an ultimatory form, and the conversation though energetic was not strained or heated. The Prime Minister asked the Germans to make their own suggestions. The Germans, who themselves, are divided upon the wisdom of the step they have taken and are sincerely anxious to save the conference, are taking time to consider their answer. The suggestion has been made that the suspend the treaty and place it before the full commission. To this they answer: "How can one back out of a treaty after it has been signed?"

They make a shrewd point by questioning the authority of the signatories of the protest note. These signatories are the main allied powers, the Little Entente, Poland, and, at the last moment, Portugal. How is this group to be defined? How does it fit into the general scheme of a conference supposedly of equals?

GENOA, April 19.—The note of protest to the Germans was handed to Dr. Rathenau just as he was leaving the Eden Hotel for the big conference dinner held last night. He looked at it, saw from whom it came, and put it on one side. "It will spoil my dinner if I read it now, I will read it when I come back," he is reported to have said.

I give the story as showing that the Germans are not always tactless. The dinner, in fact, was a great success. The text of the reply and counter reply is awaited, and if the Germans want to retrieve their blunder there is an easy way out. They can offer to hold up the operation of their treaty and unsign it for the duration of the conference. I hope they will do that, and will resist the temptation to question the competence of signatories of the Allied note to exclude them from a committee. I am bound, however, to add that there is a great deal of sympathy, especially among the war neutrals, with the German argument on this last point, but it is not always wise to press every debating point. A large view of issues must be taken.

If the British object at the conference were the isolation of France after the manner of the old diplomacy, nothing would be easier. The German policy of a clean sweep of debts with Russia has much to recommend it, and I believe that, though much harder for Britain than for Germany, with her depreciated mark, it would be in the British interests. Indeed, so far as State debts are concerned, I believe it will in fact be the British policy.

I have met no one who thinks the state of war debts will be an insuperable obstacle to agreement. "Why, then," it is asked, "should not Britain join hands with Germany and Russia on this matter, and perhaps bring in Poland, too?" Because Britain's object is not the isolation of any one, but the establishment of a concert of Europe. That object means that she must "dress by the right"; that is to say, adapt her steps to the slower pace of France.

If France were herself to break definitely with the ideal of a united Europe, Britain's course would be clear. She should be free to leave her out of account. But France is much too wise. Germany, by concluding a separate treaty, has committed a mistake that France has been too wise to commit, except in the shocking instance of the Angora agreement. Germany's only wise course is to put the treaty away in a drawer and keep it there as a kind of reinsurance policy in case the conference should fail to come to an agreement about Russian affairs.

Of two alternatives, one is that Germany remain loyal to the idea of the concert, in which case she will resist temptations to defect, its and separate treaties. The pace will be slower at first, but the ultimate advantage will be greater. On the other hand, Germany can stand by her treaty, in which case she will wreck the concert, begin the division of Europe into opposing camps, and throw England into the arms of France.

Counsels of patience are not heroic and people often urge Mr. Lloyd George to break with France, just as they urge him to break with the Conservatives in domestic politics, and for much the same reasons. That may have to be some day, but he is as sincere in his devotion to the idea of European unity as to that of domestic unity, and attempts to force his hand will have exactly the opposite effect of what was intended. The sooner the Germans realise that the better.

Say Avezzana Saved Gala Dinner.

GENOA, April 19.—Commenting on the note sent by the Allies to Germany yesterday, the entire Italian press is agreed in declaring that the note suggested by Premier Lloyd George was much stronger than the note actually sent, containing a much more violent protest. The note, they say, was modified in tone chiefly through the conciliatory efforts of Foreign Minister Schanzer of Italy, who pointed out that the chief object of all the delegates was to prevent the breaking up of the conference and the consequent failure of its aims, with results the gravity of which it was difficult to foresee.

Baron Romano Avezzana, as Secretary General of the conference, called at the Villa Albertis last evening on Chancellor Wirth, head of the German delegation, to deliver the note, but, Dr. Wirth being absent, the Baron was received by Dr. Walter Rathenau, the German Foreign Minister. After reading the note, Dr. Rathenau said it would be impossible for the German delegates to attend the gala dinner being offered by Premier Facta to all the conference delegates, in view of the receipt of such stinging condemnation of the Germans, which required careful examination on their part.

"That won't do," exclaimed Baron Avezzana. "Your absence from the dinner would emphasize the gravity of the situation."

"But what can we do?" asked Dr. Rathenau.

"It is very simple," replied the Baron. "Give me back the note, come to the dinner as if nothing had happened, and I will give you the note again afterward."

Baron Avezzana and Dr. Wirth sat next to each other at the gala dinner, and after the banquet Baron Avezzana waited a half hour before delivering the note, in order not to break up the festivities. He then beckoned the German Chancellor to a secluded corner, where the note was privately delivered. The German delegation left almost immediately afterward.

Leader Suspects 'Something Crooked' is Going On at Genoa.

GENOA, April 19.—Deputy Mussolini, head of the Fascisti movement, is threatening to take a hand in the Genoa conference. In a letter addressed to his followers here he says:

"You must carefully watch what is being done at the Genoa conference, especially as regards the Adriatic question, and watch above all what the Bolshevist Russians are doing in and about Genoa. You surely feel as well as I do that there is something crooked, something dishonest, going on and that the Russo-German treaty is a monkey wrench in the machinery already tottering in the conference.

"I need say no more. You understand. But watch and be on your guard. Fascismo is still here to save Italy from all her enemies, and it will be perfectly heartless in striking whoever plots against her interests."

The message ends with the most ominous words:

"Keep your squads of action in full efficiency."

This message, read this morning to more than 1,000 Fascisti assembled at their headquarters, is creating great enthusiasm. The Fascisti have more than 2,000 young Genoese inscribed in their squads of action.

ROME, April 19.—Although the Roman press announced the Russo-German treaty with great headlines and minute details, it does not comment to any great extent. It is unanimous, however, in warning the Italian delegates to take no hasty decision and to try to maintain peace between the Allies and the enemy countries to avoid bringing the conference to an untimely end. The Tribuna thus sums up the Italian point of view.

"In another conflict Italy would have all to lose and nothing to gain.

"Italy must have a policy of equilibrium, a policy which will not relegate Russia to banishment, but would permit her to work to assure her future life without forcing her to new wars."

SOVIET DAMAGE CLAIMS.

Some of Items on Bill of Billions to Be Presented at Conference.

MOSCOW, April 19 (Associated Press).—A partially itemized bill for the billions of gold rubles which the Soviets plan to present at the Genoa conference for damage done to Russia is announced today by the Rosta, the official Bolshevist agency, simultaneously with the news of the Russo-German treaty. The claims are against the Entente powers. Nothing is said regarding the Archangel expedition or the United States.

Among the items are the following:

Confiscation by the Czechoslovaks at Irkutsk of gold valued at 15,000,000 rubles.

Confiscation by the Japanese of six large ships of the Amur flotilla, with pouches of gold valued at 1,000,000 rubles. The value of the ships is not estimated.

Kolchak's destruction of 167 railroad bridges, valued at 20,000,000, and other railway property "worth hundreds of millions." The damage inflicted at Yaroslav on the Volga is fixed at 32,000,000 rubles. Kolchak at Kazan confiscated more than 1,000 pounds of gold, worth 641,000,000.

The damage in Ukraine by Denikin and other raiders is placed at 60,000,000.

Brest-Litovsk Negotiator Fears Evil in Genoa Move.

BERLIN, April 19.—"The Bolsheviki deceived us at Brest-Litovsk and the Bolsheviki will drive us from Genoa. After my experiences at Brest-Litovsk I would have refused to enter negotiations with any sort of Bolsheviki," General Hoffman, who dictated the German peace terms at Brest-Litovsk, which are now superseded by the treaty signed Sunday at Rapallo, told The Tribune.

"The admission of the Bolsheviki to the conference table at Genoa has only added authority to their propaganda. They will claim that the capitalistic countries were not able to find a way out of the economic mess and were forced to call upon communistic Russia. Furthermore, as recent developments show, their game is to delude each country into believing that a special arrangement for its benefit is possible, thus causing enmity among the powers.

"The chief Bolshevist benefit at Genoa is in gaining time to attack England through supporting the Irish, Egyptian and Indian separatist movements. The recent South African uprising was a result of Bolshevist propaganda. The disruption of the British Empire would be the greatest evil that could befall the world and the greatest boon to the Bolsheviki.

"France's restoration is possible through joint exploitation with England and Germany of Russia's resources and not by admitting the Bolsheviki to Genoa as equals."

URBIG EXPECTS NO CHANGE

Sorge, However, Finds Hope of Industrial Recovery—Press Exhorts Firmness.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 19.—The economic phase of the Russo-German treaty dominated Boerse financial circles today, particularly the specific question of what is in it for Germany and what difference it will make in a practical business way.

There are three interesting and typical Teuton views. Director Franz Urbig of the Disconto Gesellschaft, one of Germany's leading financiers, said:

"I do not believe that the agreement concluded will cause any important change in the restrained attitude of the German business man toward Russia."

On the other hand, Dr. Kurt Sorge, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the National Association of German Industries, hails the treaty as "a favorable event, if only because Germany's relations to the east, and particularly Russia, will determine to an important degree the resuscitation and continuance of our economic life, and because the creation of a firm foundation to our present relations with Russia as against the pliable state heretofore existing spells absolute progress."

Thinks Soviet Wants New Ties.

"The present Russian Government, purely motivated by Russia's own interests, has the firm will to resume ordered relations with foreign countries, above all Germany. My opinion is that we must naturally, with all necessary caution, meet Russian needs half way, purely out of German interest on our part, but avoiding everything that might arouse even the appearance of seeking to exploit Russia's straits."

"Bearing this in mind, every future Russian Government, whatever it may be, must judge this step of an understanding with Russia as one lying both in the Russian and the German interest. If one shares my viewpoint, one must gladly hail the treaty."

Another prominent leader of industry said:

"The significance of the treaty with Russia lies in the economic factors almost exclusively. German export houses will ask themselves whether they can from now on resume regular commerce with Russia. After the Genoa treaty, nothing more stands in the way of a regular exchange of goods with our former Eastern neighbor, now separated from us by Poland.

"Russia has extraordinary need of German products, above all agricultural, electrical and other machinery, chemical products, etc. On the other hand, Germany should place great value on the imports of Russian ores. But whether Soviet Russia with its paper rubles, can pay for German products of high value appears very doubtful. Therefore chiefly barter and exchange of goods would seem to come in question."

Wirth Is Urged Not to Yield.

BERLIN, April 19 (Associated Press).—"Stand pat" is the advice given to Chancellor Wirth and Foreign Minister Rathenau by the Berlin editors today, who are practically a unit in asserting that the German Government was wholly within its rights in negotiating the treaty that was signed with Russia at Rapallo last Sunday.

The Taglische Rundschau says:

"After boldly infringing upon Germany's parity rights in the Genoa conference the Allies now have no moral right to exclude the Germans from further conversations. The German Government has no other choice but to see it through."

The Allgemeine Zeitung, owned by Hugo Stinnes, which is still the quasi-semi-official organ, calls upon the German people to rally to the support of the Government and strengthen its determination to oppose any efforts by the Allies to induce it to revoke the treaty with Russia in return for the privilege of being readmitted to political discussions.

"The bomb of Rapallo at least had the virtue of illuminating the hypocrisy of the conference members," says the Pan-German Deutsches Tageszeitung.

"Vorwärts says that the treaty was an act of diplomatic self-defense, and ridicules the charge that it was made in an attempt to create "a new world constellation." "No Reichstag majority would be available for the support of such politics," adds the Socialist organ.

The Rote Fahne, the Soviet organ, says that Soviet diplomacy will support any action calculated to alleviate Germany's present predicament. It declares that German workingmen will not tolerate a retreat from the path now taken by the German Government.

Paris Writer Reports Threats in Ruhr and Silesia.

PARIS, April 19.—The German Government, says Emile Bure, in L'Eclair, has sent 12,000 "shock troops" into the Ruhr and announces readiness for resistance in Upper Silesia. Meanwhile the Russian Red armies are threatening the Polish and Rumanian frontiers.

"There is no time to lose if we want to avoid war," the writer comments.

POINCARE MARKING TIME.

Neutrals' Attitude Toward Rapallo Treaty One Reason for His Inaction.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 19.—The French Government is marking time so far as immediate action at Genoa is concerned. The outcries of the Nationalist press have thus far failed to induce Premier Poincaré to do anything more vigorous than to try to get the Reparations Commission to protest against the Russo-German treaty on the ground that it is a violation of the Treaty of Versailles and to try to get the Supreme Council—or the Council of Allied Ambassadors—to demand that it be annulled.

All this means that the Premier wishes to temporise and evidently does not wish to follow Nationalist advice and force the issue at Genoa by instructing M. Barthou to announce an ultimatum.

The reasons for M. Poincaré's attitude are clear enough. The first is the characteristic reluctance of the legal mind to take vigorous action whose consequences it is unable fully to calculate. The second is the desire to work as far as possible in harmony with England. The third is found in his uncertainty as to the attitude of the rest of the Little Entente in regard to the Rapallo treaty, and the fourth in the realisation that the gathering at Genoa is not just one more conference, but a Pan-European Parliament, where the opinion of the States which were neutral during the war must be taken into consideration.

Unfortunately for the Premier, none of these reasons can be put forward with a reasonable hope of support in the Nationalist—that is, Governmental—press. Hence his temporising, for that is all this talk about the Reparations Commission and the Supreme Council amounts to in the final analysis.

For obviously M. Poincaré, who came into power on the strength of Nationalist support as the man who would "make Germany pay," cannot advertise his shrinking from violent measures. Nor is close co-operation with England a popular card at the moment, when the Temps, the Journal des Débats, the Matin and the Echo de Paris are daily attacking Mr. Lloyd George and are full of hints that he is somehow responsible for France's awkward position at Genoa, if not for the Russo-German treaty itself.

Moreover, however well founded may be M. Poincaré's doubts as to the attitude of Poland and the Little Entente powers, it is now time to admit to the French public the failure of French diplomacy by emphasising their tendency to swing into the orbit of the Russian star re-arising on the European horizon.

Finally, it would be rather humiliating for the present Government to admit that it had misjudged the importance of the Genoa conference and was compelled to consider the views of Holland, Scandinavia, Switzerland and Spain.

Meanwhile the Nationalists are loud in their anger. L'Action Française says:

"Will the French Republic let the boches hurl on the Rhine a million Asiatic and Russian barbarians?" The Matin cries: "When will the Allies appeal to Marshal Foch?" and André Tardieu, in his Echo National, reviles Poincaré's pusillanimity under the title: "Capitulation Beyond Words." M. Tardieu has also written M. Poincaré a letter saying that he will demand explanations from the Government the moment the Chamber reopens.

The Matin declares that the Premier received the visits of a number of Deputies and Senators today, who urged him to take vigorous action. It publishes another letter from a Nationalist Deputy, M. Provost de Launay, to the Premier denouncing the action of the French delegation in dining at the same table with the German and Russian delegates the very day the latter dealt their blow at the peace of the world."

The Nationalist press is leaving no stone unturned to stir up public opinion against the Russo-German menace. M. Tardieu's Echo National actually goes so far as to reproduce unpleasant photographs of alleged Bolshevist atrocities.

So far the public does not seem much thrilled by this campaign, but it is uncertain to what point M. Poincaré can resist the pressure of the Nationalists.

RECONSTRUCTION PLAN OF LABOR COUNCIL

Amsterdam Internationale Chiefs Want War Debts Annulled and Raw Materials Pooled.

GENOA, April 19 (Associated Press).—Members of the Council of the Amsterdam Internationale, representing 24,000,000 organized workmen, left for Rome today to attend their congress, opening tomorrow, after having approved of the program to be discussed. They have spent several days in Genoa preparing the program.

Declaring that organized labor wants to make its voice heard in the work of reconstruction of the world, the program says:

"The present economic crisis is the outcome of errors committed after the war by nationalization and economic imperialism, ignoring the moral independence of peoples and allowing the development of super-capitalism. It is because a few favored nations have ignored the ties which bind them to the impoverished ones that we lament the present lack of equilibrium between nations, which results in the stoppage of industry in rich countries, while the poor ones cannot even satisfy the most elementary needs of their populations.

"At a time when it is necessary to utilize the work of every man there are 10,000,000 unemployed. The European economic crisis can be overcome only by international action to organize and coordinate the efforts of all peoples for the common good. Economic equilibrium cannot be reached unless all nations cooperate on an equal footing in the work of reconstruction. Therefore we believe Russia must be given, without reservations and without inferiority, her place among the European nations."

As for the means of obtaining the economic reconstruction of Europe, the program recalls resolutions adopted at the Syndicalist Congress in London in November, 1920, insisting especially on questions of exchange and the sharing of raw materials.

"The first condition," it says, "for reconstruction is the annulment of war debts, wherefore it is essential that the League of Nations should organize an international loan in order to give the poorer countries means to restore their international and commercial activity to normal conditions. It is useless to hope that salvation may come by drawing on the resources of only one nation, as the Allies are doing with requests for billions upon billions in reparations from Germany. The only hope is to put the efforts of all countries into collaboration by shifting the weight of reparations from the shoulders of the workers onto the shoulders of the rich classes. Besides, Germany will not be able to pay unless the reparations are reduced to a reasonable figure, which can be done only by renouncing payments imposed for war pensions and military occupations."

After again referring to the necessity of sharing raw materials in order to subtract from capitalistic speculations, the labor program recommends the exploiting of all lands and mines, which at present are unused, for an international co-operative organization, "thus avoiding the source of unemployment" and at the same time destroying protectionism, "which is one of the most important causes of the present disastrous economic situation."

JOFFRE DECLARES FRANCE HATES WAR

Marshal Tells the President Her One Wish Is for Works of Peace.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Marshal Joffre arrived in Washington this morning to pay a peace-time visit to the city to which he came in May, 1917, to urge this country to send troops at the earliest possible moment to support the Allies on the Western front.

While representatives of the American and French Governments awaited the Joffre train in the station, a crowd of several thousand persons stood in a drizzling rain outside on the plaza. The Marshal and Mme. Joffre and Mlle. Joffre, their daughter, were met on the station platform by Ambassador and Mme. Jusserand and Brig. Gen. W. D. Connon, Assistant Chief of Staff, United States Army.

Through an applauding lane in the concourse, and saluting continuously, Marshal Joffre was conducted to the President's room, where a delegation from the American Legion was presented to him.

After posing for the photographs outside the station the visitors were escorted by a squadron of cavalry to their hotel, where another large crowd of admirers had gathered. This afternoon the Marshal was received at the White House by President Harding, called at the Capitol to pay a formal call upon Vice President Coolidge, and then, with his cavalry escort, proceeded to the State, War and Navy Building, where he called upon Secretaries Hughes and Weeks. A visit to the new Navy Building to greet Secretary Denby completed the Marshal's official calls. In his round of calls he greeted many friends whom he had met on his 1917 visit here.

When he was received by President Harding Marshal Joffre said:

"My country does not forget her noble allies of the great war, nor the entire American Army, which under the immediate direction of its own commanding officers so greatly contributed to the victory over the enemies of right and of peace.

"During my journey through the United States I have often remembered the reception given by the American people five years ago to the envoys of France and the enthusiasm with which America took up the cause for which France was fighting, surrounded by her allies.

"I wish to think that there has been no change in this friendship which then united the two peoples, and that France, in whose grateful affection for America no diminution has been perceptible, may count today, as then, upon the loyal friendship of her associate of yesterday.

"Better than any other, I know the terrible havoc wrought by the war in our land, and I can affirm emphatically that our France wholly and entirely hates war with all her strength. She has today, as always, but one wish, that is to give herself up in security to works of peace.

"Then, also, Mr. President, I am sure that the bonds joining our two countries, which were forged on many fields of battle, will not be dissolved. If they remain intact it will be a further guaranty for the continuation of that world peace to the assurance of which you and your country are so firmly attached."

$121,000 which he had been carrying in a black satchel the boys said:

"I couldn't think of any way to dispose of them. I was on the back seat of the De Kalb Avenue car, half way across the Brooklyn Bridge, I leaned over and threw them off. The satchel fell between the ties, hit the ties under the subway tracks on the lower part of the bridge, and then fell off into the river. I could see the splash. The conductor saw it and said:

"'What was that you threw over?'

"I said it was only my lunch that had got stale."

Byrnes was employed by the Halsey firm some months ago. He left, but got his old job back a week ago. During his previous employment he had handled many securities and much currency, and had always been honest and punctual.

"You always used to be a good honest boy. How did you come to do this?" Byrnes was asked.

"I guess I was crazy," he said. "I always wanted to go out West, and when I got all that money this afternoon I thought it would be easy to get somebody to go with me."

Byrnes is an orphan. He has been living at the Upanin Club, an institution for homeless boys and young men at Middagh Street and Columbia Heights, Brooklyn, where the boy who caused his arrest also lives.

TELLS CONFERENCE MORGAN ACCEPTS

Belgian Announces American Will Join Conference on Loan for Germany.

TOO FAST, SAYS BANKER

He Will Consider Matter — Washington Sees No Objection to His Advising on Reparations.

GENOA, April 19 (Associated Press).—Former Premier Delacroix informed the Associated Press tonight that J. P. Morgan had accepted the invitation to be one of four bankers who will meet in Europe to study the question of arranging an international loan for Germany.

The object of the loan will be to help the reconstruction of Germany, to improve her exchange and to assist her in paying war reparations. M. Delacroix will be President of the commission.

The Reparation Commission decided a fortnight ago to organize a committee of four bankers to study a means for mobilizing the German debt. Besides Mr. Morgan, the members of the committee are Sir Robert Kinderslay of England, Charles Sergent of France and Dr. G. Vissering of Holland.

The presence of an American banker on the committee has created an excellent feeling as a hopeful sign for the regeneration of European finance. It is admitted that if a concrete plan is worked out it will be a great step toward the arrangement of the problem of reparation.

M. Delacroix said he was leaving the date of the meeting to Mr. Morgan, but it would probably be in May at Paris.

J. P. Morgan's attention was called yesterday to a dispatch from Genoa, quoting former Premier Delacroix as stating that Mr. Morgan had accepted the invitation to sit on an international advisory board to consider a loan for Germany.

Mr. Morgan repeated his statement of yesterday that thus far no invitation had been received.

When asked if he would entertain such an invitation he said he would rather comment on that after it had been received.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The United States Government seems to have been aware of the action of the Allied Reparation Commission in asking J. P. Morgan to accept membership on the subcommission, which is to consider the question of floating an international loan for Germany.

Officials of the Government declined today to comment on the request of the Reparation Commission, apparently taking the ground that this was a non-official matter upon which the Government need not act. The matter must be determined by Mr. Morgan.

While no statement to that effect was forthcoming, it is inferred that Mr. Morgan, personally, or the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co. has communicated with the Government.

So far as the Government is concerned, there is no objection in Mr. Morgan's acceptance of the offer and no impropriety is involved in his acceptance. There is no statute which would forbid Mr. Morgan acting in concert with foreign Governments without the approval of his own Government. He is entirely free to serve on the subcommission.

It is understood that the request does not contemplate that Mr. Morgan shall sit as a member of the subcommission in any official capacity. The invitation contemplates that he shall serve as an expert adviser to the Reparation Commission. In seeking the best method of procedure for determining the advisability of financing a German loan and the possibility of floating it, the Reparation Commission desires to obtain the advice of leading bankers of several countries and Mr. Morgan was chosen as a man capable of furnishing valuable information from the American viewpoint.

WILL ASK RESERVE BANK TO ENTER CONFERENCE

Genoa Delegates Decide to Call a Meeting of the Chief Central Banks of Issue.

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENOA, April 19.—The French delegation this afternoon, seconded by the Russian delegation, proposed to the Finance Commission that the Bank of England be asked to convene a meeting of representatives of central banks of emission for the study of plans of co-operation. The motion was carried.

An invitation will be sent to the Directors of the American Federal Reserve Bank and here it is frankly admitted that without the co-operation of the American banks the meeting can do little or no good.

Sir Robert Horne, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, speaking to the press this morning, declared that American banks were in a position to wreck, or at least make difficult, the realization of any proposal, but he held the view that they would not withhold their co-operation, as the question is not in any way one of Europe's or anybody else's politics, but a simple economic question from which American financiers and American industry stand to gain equally with Europe.

Following the same line as the experts on the currency question, the experts on exchange reported today to the financial sub-commission in favor of complete liberty in exchange dealings. Governmental interference and operations for the maintenance of exchange values, they declared, did far more harm than good, and only with the restoration of liberty could confidence be restored and business made possible.

GENOA, April 19 (Associated Press).—Discussing the work of the bankers and economists who are conferring at Genoa, Sir Robert Horne said today that their recommendations so far were wholly in line with the old-fashioned economics. They had endorsed the gold standard and had advised the various nations that they must pay their debts and balance their budgets just as they did formerly, without recourse to inflation or other irregular schemes.

If the Genoa conference should continue a long time, added Sir Robert, it was possible the banks would have their conference before the close of the Genoa gathering.

The conference delegates were deeply impressed by the words of warning concerning the financial situation in Europe set forth in the report of the special board of eminent experts.

The Germans were pleased with the section of the report regarding Germany, which states that the burden to be placed on the German nation should not be so great as to destroy its power of production, and declares that Germany's reparations contribution should be extended over longer periods so as not to endanger her solvency.

Germany presented a proposal today aiming to prevent "the flight of capital which had as its object avoidance of taxation.

WASHINGTON, April 19 (Associated Press).—Governor Harding of the Federal Reserve Board said today he knew nothing of the proposal to have the American Federal Reserve Bank participate in a financial conference to be called by the European banks of issue for consideration of regulations of currence.

In the absence of an official invitation he would not discuss the proposal, but he did not indicate a readiness on the part of the board to be represented at such a gathering.

BALTIC STATES EXCITED OVER RAPALLO TREATY

Russian and German Commissions on Their Way to Obtain Rail Transportation Facilities.

RIGA, April 19 (Associated Press).—News of the Russo-German treaty has caused a sensation in the Baltic States, which form a bridge between the two powers, the diplomats not having any inkling that an agreement was likely to be concluded at this time. The Baltic States are vastly interested, owing to their geographical position and the fact that the Government-owned railroads traversing the different countries form the only connecting link between Germany and Russia.

Both Germany and the Soviets have large holdings at Reval, Libau and Riga, and the Germans for months have been making extensive preparations to resume business with Russia on a large scale. Reval and other towns are constantly accommodating droves of German merchants going and coming to and from Moscow and Petrograd, where the Germans are seeking an outlet for their manufactures.

A commission of Germans from Berlin and a Soviet commission from Moscow are already on the way to the Baltic States to confer with Lithuanian, Latvian and Esthonian representatives regarding transportation arrangements, which the Germans and Russians hope will soon permit a through service from Russia to East Prussia via these countries. Poland is particularly interested, owing to the fact that the train service connecting Germany with the Baltic States and Russia crosses the Polish corridor.

the woman now traveling with him is Mlle. Tersitaky, formerly the Ataman's stenographer at Chita. Madame Zelnalda Semenoff, who is living in Yokohama, yesterday took the first steps in an attempt to expose the notorious Cossack chief as a bigamist. Semenoff sailed from Yokohama on the liner Empress of Russia, March 4 last, for the United States by way of Canada."

A statement purporting to be from Mme. Semenoff is quoted as follows:

"I, the undersigned, am the first and only legal wife of Ataman Semenoff. I have been residing in Japan since October, 1920. I came to Japan at his instructions and at his expense, with our son Vlatchealav. I have not been living with him for some time, but I have never been divorced from him. Unfortunately the laws are not at present being enforced in Russia and consequently it remains only for me to appeal to the public through your widely read newspaper."

General Semenoff said at the bankruptcy hearing, where he was a witness, that he had been legally married to his present wife in China in August, 1920, after having obtained a legal divorce from his first wife. He will be questioned further at 11 A. M. today before Referee Peter B. Olney at 68

IRISH REBELS TURN NIGHTS TO TERROR

They Attempt by Guerrilla Warfare to Undermine the Morale of Free State Troops.

BUT O'NEILL IS HOPEFUL

On Eve of Conference He Predicts Peace—Five More Are Killed in Belfast Rioting.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, April 19.—Attacks on the Free State troops are increasing. The Republican faction seems to be trying to undermine the morale of their old comrades by guerrilla warefare rather than by courting any open conflict on a large scale. These methods, by keeping sentries under strain and guards continuously on the alert, cause great waste of ammunition in the darkness.

From 12 o'clock until dawn it is no uncommon experience for one's rest to be broken by heavy fusillades. In the city both sides have posts which there is no attempt to conceal, and having regard to the peculiar position both sets of sentries are exceptionally vigilant. Last night bursts of firing were especially severe, but fortunately only one casualty, a member of the Free State guard wounded, is reported officially.

This occurred in a midnight attack on the Wellington Barracks and the insurgents firing at men who were exercising in the square. A round-up of the neighborhood followed and six members of the attacking party were captured. Two of these were in a motor car. In a coal yard adjoining this transport depot on the south wall shortly after midnight the guard skirmished for half an hour with a hostile party of about thirty detected there. Here again, although the exchanges are described officially as sharp, no great damage was done and none of the guard was hit.

A terrific outbreak of rifle and revolver fire occurred in the centre of Dublin near midnight tonight, lasting over half an hour. The firing took place from both sides of the quay ruins of old Parnell Square and also around the Four Courts and King's Inn. It is believed to be an attack on the official I. R. A. posts. The firing was resumed later.

From a military point of view, therefore, these tactics are not so effective as the extremists responsible for them seem to imagine, but the ordinary citizen whose business takes him into certain streets late at night is in considerable danger. The safety of the public is the last consideration of these extremists.

Irish Taxpayers Protest.

Following the Labor party's recent vigorous protest against militarism and the rule of bomb, bullet and bayonet comes today a declaration from the All-Ireland Ratepayers Association at a meeting in Dublin requesting the parties to the Archbishop's peace conference to publish within a reasonable time "for the information of the sovereign people of Ireland" such report of their proceedings as will enable the people to fix the responsibility for civil war should the conference prove abortive.

The meeting was addressed mainly by farmers taking an angry view of the situation and sharply criticising the political leaders and maintaining the people have the right to accept or reject the treaty. The chairman, Mr. Belton, a prominent Dublin farmer, referred to the economic inactivity since the truce and said:

"There is no rush to start industries, but to handle guns. Brother shoots brother. Son shoots father, and father shoots sons."

A Wexford delegate said it was the army they had to fear most and that already they had Mexican methods. He feared de Valera could not control the people he is supposed to represent.

Lord Mayor O'Neill of Dublin is the most hopeful man in Ireland today. He told the National Teachers' Congress this afternoon his belief that the North, South and West will join hands much sooner than most people imagine. Such a declaration is important in view of the reassembling of the Peace Conference here tomorrow. It is stated that Collins and de Valera had talks since Thursday last and it is even rumored that an attempt is being made to bring the heads of the rival armies into tomorrow's conference. Such talk must not be taken seriously as the Beggar's Bush army authorities could not recognize those whom the Dail Eireann suspended for indiscipline weeks ago. Still no one knows what may bring the Nationalist Irishmen together again. There are precedents for unexpected coalitions.

The report is officially denied that the election will be interrupted because papers in the Crown and Hanaper office in the Four Courts are in possession of O'Connor's troops. The papers are in safe custody and the Free State Director of Elections states that arrangements are made for elections in the first week of June.

Murray, the young man Michael Collins arrested after the firing in Parnell Square on Sunday night, is on a hunger strike.

Arrangements are being made to continue work of the law courts, which have been interrupted by the rebel occupation of the Four Courts.

John Collins, the Catholic ex-soldier of Ramelton, County Donegal, who was removed from his home on Good Friday night by armed Catholic Republicans and taken to a lonely spot on the roadside, placed against a wall and shot, has died of his wounds. Three bullets entered his abdomen. One pierced his side and one entered his thigh. He lay for two hours on the roadside, bleeding, and then crawled home to die. It has been established beyond doubt that Collins was executed as an alleged spy, the accusation being that he was an enemy of the mutineering executive of the Irish Republican Army.

FIVE ARE KILLED IN BELFAST.

Two Catholic Women Are Shot in Homes—Houses Are Burned.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELFAST, April 19.—Street firing was renewed again in the East End of Belfast tonight. Three persons were shot dead and a number wounded.

Early in the evening angry crowds, intent on revenge for the murder of the boy killed by a sniper in the morning, assembled in the Mount Pottinger area and set fire to three houses in Altcar Street. The police guard opened fire on the mob and the firing became general.

Two Catholic women were shot dead in their homes. A man not yet identified was also killed and four people were wounded. Passengers on the trolley cars in the disturbed area—the Ballymacarrett district—were in peril, and service was partly suspended.

In Marine Street two children were dangerously wounded.

An attempt to murder a police constable was made in Madrid Street this afternoon. Two men, after passing the constable, turned round and fired several shots at him, but missed. They then ran away.

Protestant tenants in Crumlin Road, having refused to leave their homes on being threatened, were turned out this evening and the house was fired. This is believed to be a reprisal for the burning of Catholic houses in the Marrowbone area.

BELFAST, April 19 (Associated Press).—A bomb was thrown tonight in Ballymacarret, an eastern suburb of Belfast, wounding a woman. The total number of deaths through today's disorders, as recorded at 10 o'clock tonight, is five.

BELFAST, April 19 (Associated Press).—The conciliation committee made up of equal numbers of Protestants and Catholics, which has been investigating complaints of intimidation and outrage, adjourned its sittings tonight. It was resolved before adjournment that the committee should be established on a legal basis, as otherwise it would be powerless to carry out the duties assigned to it under the Craig-Collins agreement.

86,000 PERSONNEL NAVAL BILL PASSED

Kelley first asserted that he had received this communication and that it showed that $40,000,000 would be added to the bill.

"It will reach $60,000,000 and I stand by that," interjected Chairman Madden of the Appropriations Committee.

"Read the letter instead of starting off with figures that are misleading," shouted Representative Rogers of Massachusetts, Republican, a "big navy" leader.

In answer, Mr. Kelley demanded from Mr. Rogers any figures the Massachusetts member had received from Secretary Denby.

"They are in the Denby letter you have," replied Mr. Rogers. This demand and this answer were repeated several times, and finally Mr. Rogers said: "I have seen a copy of the letter the gentleman now has."

Mr. Rogers fumbled in his pocket to take out a copy of this letter, but it developed that Representative McArthur was even then reading it. It turned out that the "big navy" men already had copies of the Denby letter. The House burst into laughter and cries of "Read! read!" were fired at Mr. Kelley. Whenever Mr. Kelley interrupted his reading to comment on the letter, these insistent cries were repeated.

"If we have to pay $75,000,000 for scrapping the ships, the Naval bill this year will cost $426,000,000, $12,000,000 more than the present year," declared Mr. Kelley. "And next year it will cost $401,000,000 if we finish all the ships now on the stocks. That's a fine way of lifting the burdens from the people of the world."

When the final vote came Mr. Kelley asked that the McArthur amendment for $6,000 be voted upon together with the Vare amendment for increased pay. The Swing amendment for increased subsistence was disposed of immediately afterward.

During the first part of the debate today Representative Denison of Ohio, Republican, succeeded in having the appropriation for civilian instructors at Annapolis increased from $246,500 to $421,500, with a proviso that not more than $36,000 should be spent for instruction in swordsmanship and athletics.

The vote on the amendment to increase the personnel to 86,000 was as follows:

Follows Harding Leadership.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The House tonight broke away from its own leadership, stood behind the President and passed the 1923 Naval Appropriation bill with an amendment fixing the enlisted personnel at 86,000. There was no great shout at the finish like that which filled the chamber a week ago when the same proposal was put through the House, sitting in Committee of the Whole. A bare handclap or two greeted the announcement by the Speaker. The galleries, half deserted, made no attempt at a demonstration.

Except on two occasions today the bill sailed along through unruffled seas. Once, however, Chairman Kelley broke loose in what members characterized as a vicious attack on the "navy yard combination," charging that, despite the arms conference, there were still demands from navy yard and naval project districts for more money than was carried in the bill.

Starting in the Massachusetts village of Squantum, where destroyers were built during the war, Mr. Kelley, in a picture of "the plea for more," jumped across West Virginia, with its armor plate factory, to the South Atlantic Coast, across to New Orleans, and then to California and up the west coast. The House was in a tumult as he declared that everywhere the feeling seemed to be that the purpose of the arms conference was to build up and provide more work for the Government plants.

Half a dozen members were drawn into the fight. The battle raged for ten minutes, with some members shouting mate, and meanwhile the people who would thus have at least been furnished some relief are being herded like sheep at the Canal Street station."

Governor Miller then made his promise of drastic action if necessary and added this observation:

"The time is approaching, if it has not already arrived, when public officials will be unable successfully to pose as the champions of the people while denying them necessary measures for their relief."

The Governor, in reviewing the work of the commission, called attention to its tentative plan of traction reorganization. Although it had been on the table for months, Governor Miller said that he had heard of but two criticisms deserving notice.

City Already Involved.

"One of them," he continued, "is that the plan provides for city representation on the Board of Control, and it is said that that may introduce politics into the management. I admit that there is danger of that, a danger which needs to be guarded as well as it may be, but that is an objection which goes with city ownership, and that question you have already decided.

"You decided it when you invested your three hundred millions of credit in the subways, in the management of which you now have no voice whatever. City ownership carries with it, in my judgment, as a necessary corollary at least equal representation of the city on the Board of Control. Equal, I mean, with the operating companies.

"That is provided for in the plan. That is real home rule, as contrasted with the spurious brand which is merely a political slogan to take up or drop as political exigency or individual necessities or desires may suggest.

"So I say you have already decided the question of city ownership. I have no doubt that private ownership of public utilities properly regulated is likely to be more efficient and more economical, but you have passed that point, and if you had not passed it your necessities as they exist today would require, in my judgment, city ownership.

"Now, to relieve congestion you must build up the outlying sections, and to do that you must make travel comfortable, uniform, cheap. You can only do that under a unified system. The profitable part must carry the unprofitable, all for a single fare, and you cannot expect to accomplish that result except by city ownership.

Security Holders' Viewpoint.

"So, I say, the first objection disappears. The second objection that I have heard in substance goes to the question of flexible fares. That may be objectionable, but again you are facing a condition, you are proposing to do away with the evils of speculation from which you are suffering. You have only one thing to offer, however, to the security holders, and you cannot expect that the security holders will give up the chance of a speculative rise in the market value of their shares unless you are able to offer them a certain return upon the shares that they are to get back in exchange, of less nominal value.

"You can give that assurance in but one of two ways—either by guaranteeing a fare which will make that return, or by agreeing to make up any deficit out of the City Treasury. Now, I should not think that the taxpayers of this city would look favorably—and when I say taxpayers, let me not be beguiled into thinking that the rent payers do not pay the taxes—I should not think that the people of this city would consider it a sound business proposition to carry the hundreds of thousands of transients who daily visit this city for less than it costs.

"But apart from that, you will get better operation, more efficient operation, more economical operation, if you will make the system carry its own burdens, than you will if you afford the opportunity to dip into the City Treasury at any time there is a deficit. And, mind you, in the final analysis this is all coming out of the pockets of the people who ride.

"By treating it as a question of fares instead of as a question of service you have lost the 5-cent fare. The people are now paying 5, 7, 10, 12, 15 and even 20 cents for what formerly cost 5. Treat it as a question of service, organize on proper lines, and in my judgment you can restore the five-cent fare."

Valuations Open to Challenge.

"But the commission has been doing other things besides preparing the plan. The valuations were necessary, and so the commission has been proceeding, through its experts, to prepare a table of valuations, and those valuations have been laid face upon the table with all of their supporting facts, and the commission is prepared to call for cross-examination, either by the city or the companies, the experts who made those valuations.

"But what do we find? The city, on the one hand, says that it is proposed to buy junk. The companies, on the other hand, say that the valuations are too low even to furnish a basis for discussion. I say that if the valuations are too low, and, mind you, the commission has not yet passed on that subject—if they are too low, let the companies produce their experts for examination in the public hearing; let them show wherein the valuations are too low; let the city, on the other hand, if it claims that the valuations are too high, do likewise.

"I am led to make another observation here because there are some things that it is important for the people interested in these companies to get into their heads. I said that they were not entitled to an increased fare. They are not entitled to a valuation, except as it is based upon the earnings which they can make under the fare stipulated in their franchise and contracts, and that, too, by giving the service that they are obliged to give. There is no such thing as a vested right in a public utility to give impaired service, and there is no vested right in a public utility to ask for a valuation on any other basis than upon earnings derived from adequate service under the conditions imposed.

Lines Not "Going Concerns."

"This question of valuation is to be decided as a business problem, not necessarily from reproduction cost less depreciation; not necessarily the capitalization of theoretical earnings, but upon the basis of what these properties in their present condition and under their franchise and contract stipulations are worth; not as going concerns, because they are not going concerns today in the sense that they are profitable or able to render adequate service, but for the purpose of being rehabilitated to furnish the service which the public demands.

"The commission has been doing something else. While progressing this work, it has been causing a study to be made of the existing service and the requirements for the service which the people of this city are entitled to have. The companies say that they cannot render improved service without an increased fare; and they have suddenly discovered that the Mayor was right in asserting that the (Transit) act was unconstitutional. Well, if they cannot render the service which they are under contract and franchise obligations to render, there is an alternative, and that alternative is the acceptance of a plan of reorganization under which maximum service at minimum cost can be rendered.

"By confessing that they cannot new perform their contract and franchise obligations, the companies put themselves into the position in which their rights are subordinated to the public need, to the public interest. The commission has taken its stand on the side of the public interest, and it now finds itself opposed both by the companies and the city Administration. They have been proceeding not hastily but carefully to develop the facts, so that if it becomes necessary to make any orders, these orders may be supported by the facts. They are proceeding by inquiry and not by proclamation. And I want to say this, that if the issue ever comes when the question of enforcing these orders is involved, that issue, in my judgment, will be so framed that the companies will not be able to plead financial inability in defense. They will not then be pleading to the innocuous fulminations from the City Hall.

State Power Behind Orders.

"This work is being done by a commission of your own citizens, without the slightest dictation or interference from Albany; but I want to say that if this issue ever arises, as I hope it will not, because, what we are trying to do at the moment is to get service and not lawsuits; but if lawsuits have to come, then I want to say that at that stage there will be behind the orders of the commission all of the authority, all of the influence and all of "The commission has also progressed the work necessary to the development of the plan for additions, extensions and new lines that are required. Those four major subjects, plan of reorganization, valuations, service, extensions and new lines, have been progressing simultaneously, all in the light of day, the facts laid out on the table as fast as they are developed."

Governor Miller said that he hoped the time for decisions was approaching and that these should be made not as a result of compromise behind closed doors, but as a result of "judicial and fair-minded treatment.

"The time is, in short, has come for a major operation," he said, "because the disease is so deep-seated and the public need, daily growing more acute, is so great that nothing else will suffice. There are certain fundamentals that, of course, must be observed. One of them is that the present situation of conflict between private and public interests, which results in impaired service to the public, must be put an end to. Another one is that the sins of the past, of stock manipulation and stock speculation, from which you are now suffering, must be ended forever, so far as your public utilities are concerned. The third one is that there must be no opportunity afforded to pay returns upon anything except the fair and reasonable value of the property used in the public service."

"The fourth one is that the city must be represented in the management. In the control of these properties in which its money is invested. Another one is (and perhaps I should have put this first) that the present arrangement under which the city's participation in earnings is indefinitely deferred must be changed and the city's participation must be advanced to the end that the necessary credit may be found for financing the new lines that you need."

Fears would be required to put into operation the needed new lines, even if construction were begun tomorrow, said the Governor, who emphasized at the beginning of his address the importance of releasing the city's "frozen credit" of approximately $300,000,000 in transit facilities and converting it into a revolving credit" for additional lines and the improvement of existing facilities.

Neither of these two things, he held, could be accomplished without reorganizing the existing systems. That nothing constructive was done until last year to remedy this condition, according to the Governor, could be traced to the absence of any single authority competent to deal with the problem and to the attitude of the companies and the City Administration, which "tended to inflame and disorder the public mind.

"Meanwhile, what happened? While you were discussing the five-cent fare you lost the five-cent fare. For, by accurate computation, it is now costing the people of this city on the average more than 8 cents a ride. That means the rent payers are paying an additional cent and more for services which would be dear at any price."

Governor Miller said that the State had become involved in the local transit problem because every dollar of the city's credit was invested or pledged under contracts to which the original Rapid Transit Commission or its successor, the Public Service Commission, each a State agency, was a party.

State, already assumed," he said. The gravity of the situation was here, daily becoming more grave. I could have shirked that responsibility. The Legislature could have shirked its responsibility. We could both have allowed matters to go from bad to worse as they had been drifting, and could have passed the blame upon others.

"But we preferred to discharge rather than evade responsibilities. As a result you have the Transit Commission, three of your own citizens, working in the light of day, developing the facts pertinent to these problems, laying the cards out on the table all face up, undertaking to effect a solution of this very difficult and complex problem.

"You have observed the work of the commission, and all I have to say in closing is to paraphrase the words of General Grant—'Fight it out on the lines you have mapped out if it takes all Summer.'"

MAYOR NOT SCARED "NOW."

Hirshfield Says Miller Fears Hylan Will "Lick Him Out of His Boots."

As Mayor Hylan was leaving City Hall last night he was asked if he had any comment to make on Governor Miller's speech.

"I haven't read it; what did he say?" asked the Mayor.

"The Governor intimated that he might remove you," the Mayor was told, and he merely smiled.

"You are not worried are you?" he was asked.

"I'm not worried now," the Mayor said. "If I haven't read the speech, I may be worried after I read it."

Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield made this comment:

"I was criticised by the traction-controlled newspapers when recently I referred to Governor Miller as being a small, revengeful and cheap politician, and said that the Governor was anxious for renomination and re-election, but is afraid of Mayor Hylan being his opponent and licking him out of his boots. The same newspapers also found fault with me when only two days ago I stated that the so-called crime wave was being created in New York City for the purpose of giving Governor Miller at least an artificial if not real justification for removing Commissioner Enright and Mayor Hylan. Since then the crime wave bubble has been pricked and the gas is all out of it.

"However, that I was right in what I said concerning the Governor the Governor has himself proven by his reported speech before the Fifth Avenue Association today. It is evident to me that the Governor is desperate to realize his ambition and to serve his friends. This is another example of Governor Miller's idea of home rule for cities."

NEW SUBWAY FUNDS ASKED.

Commission Awards Contracts Calling for $610,338 From City.

The Transit Commission awarded a contract yesterday for stations on the Fourteenth Street-Eastern District line and sent it to the Board of Estimate for the necessary appropriation.

The contract was awarded to James S. Brown, whose bid of $207,792.73 was the lowest. The stations are at Bedford and Graham Avenues and at Lorimer and Grand Streets.

Contracts also were awarded for the construction of a stairway through the aisle of safety at the Borough Hall station in Brooklyn; for additional entrances to the 168th Street station in Manhattan; for the construction of a crew room at the Flatbush Avenue station of the Nostrand Avenue subway in Brooklyn; for an underground passageway at Union Square to connect the Broadway line of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company with the Fourteenth Street line, and for other less important work. The total cost of all of the contracts will be $610,338.

These contracts were in addition to the large number already awaiting action by the Board of Estimate. Between March 3 and Sept. 21 of last year the commission submitted to the board forty contracts covering construction and equipment of unfinished sections of the dual system. The board has approved only three.

WOMAN HELD FOR ARSON.

Fire Found in Two Places in House Insured for $5,000.

Mrs. Katherine Allers, of Fifty-third street and Mill Road, Brooklyn, was arraigned late yesterday afternoon before Magistrate James V. Short in the Flatbush Court, charged with arson. Mrs. Allers was held in bail of $7,500 for examination next Tuesday.

Last March 22 Mrs. Allers purchased from the City of New York the old Van Dyke Homestead, a century-old landmark, at East Fifty-third street and Mill Road, paying $106. Tuesday night fire was discovered in two places by John Williams, who occupies a part of the building. He reported to the police that he had found kerosene-soaked newspapers and a half-burned candle in the room where the fire originated.

Fire Marshal Thomas P. Brophy reported to the court that Mrs. Allers had taken out $5,000 insurance on the house and had increased her household insurance policy from $500 to $3,000.

THOMPSON BACKS HYLAN.

Mayor of Chicago Will Oppose Federal Interference With State Utilities

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 19.—After an exchange of telegrams today between Mayor Hylan of New York and Mayor Thompson of Chicago, it was announced that Corporation Counsel Ettelson will depart for Washington next Monday to advocate passage of the Bacharach bill, which proposes to prohibit public utilities from resorting to Federal courts while rate proceedings are pending before State commissions.

Mayor Hylan's telegram urged that a "country-wide movement should be started to prevent such practices." He declared that after a convincing case in favor of reduction of New York telephone rates had been presented to the New York State commission, "the Telephone Trust jumped into the Federal court and secured a restraining order."

"We have had a similar experience in traction litigation, and I will be glad to help in any way I can," Mayor Thompson's telegraphic reply read.

DAY CHARGES BLACKMAIL.

Has Man Arrested for Letter to Mrs. Day on Beck Case.

OKLAHOMA City, April 19.—An alleged plot to blackmail Mrs. Jean P. Day, wife of Jean P. Day, who recently was exonerated of the slaying of Lieutenant Colonel Paul Ward Beck, army aviator, was revealed tonight with the announcement that a man giving his name as Ed Reed had been arrested at Edna, Okla.

Day said tonight that a letter was received last Wednesday by Mrs. Day from a man who demanded $2,000 to keep silent as to what he said he saw through the window of the Day home on April 4, the morning Beck was slain. Day said the letter was signed "G. Daer," and it declared, he added, that if the money was sent to Edna, in a package labelled merchandise, the writer would forget what he had seen. A package was sent addressed to Daer, and was claimed last night by Reed, who asked for Daer's mail.

PARIS, April 19.—Felix Bourg, aged 77, of Tiranges, was a man of imagination. Wishing to put an end to an existence he had grown tired of, he perfected a new method of committing suicide. Walking down the street of his home town he placed a stick of dynamite under his hat and continued to promenade until a sudden violent explosion blew off his head.

French writers frequently refer to the eating habits of Napoleon.

The "PRINCESS"

A stocking as light as a tropical zephyr

$3.85 A PAIR

THOUGH "PRINCESS" is a stocking of gossamer sheerness, that is not its first claim to fame.

Its chief distinction is that it is a good sheer stocking—and goodness knows, they are only a little less rare than the dodo.

But "Princess" has a wearing quality that is remarkable in so sheer a stocking. Naturally, it will not outwear heavier stockings whose silk and whose making are equally as good, but it will outlast the average sheer stocking by at least 50%.

When you purchase so delicate a piece of loveliness as sheer silk stockings, it is a crime and a shame to purchase any but very good qualities—for it is simple to prove that the cheapest are the only ones that you cannot afford!

Fleck-Peck

"Princess" costs $3.85 a pair (forty-five dollars per dozen) and comes in every fashionable shade. The new Sahara Sand, Boulevard and three other shades of grey; four more of brown; black, of course; all-wool and "La Couleur de rain de mer."

PLAY-BANDIT KILLS 7-YEAR-OLD BROTHER

Finds Daddy's Pistol in Closet, Loads It So It Will Make a Noise and Pulls Trigger.

DOCTOR FINDS VICTIM DEAD

11-Year-Old "Robber" Tells Police How It Happened and Father Is Held Under Sullivan Law.

Robert Loeffler, 11 years old, 1238 Taylor Avenue, the Bronx, yesterday afternoon in the Westchester Police Station, told Willoughby Dobbs, Assistant District Attorney, how he happened to shoot and kill his brother, George aged 7.

"Georgie and me came back from school. It was rainin' and I knew mamma wouldn't want us to go out and get all wet, so I told Georgie we were gonna play 'round the house. We went rummaging 'round and we found a pistol in daddy's closet. I said to Georgie: 'Let's play robbers and bandits.' And Georgie laughed and said: 'All right. Let's.' We just wanted to play, we didn't mean no harm.

"We got to playing, but the pistol didn't make any noise, and it wasn't much fun. Then we found a bullet and put it in the pistol.

"I said to Georgie: 'Now I'm a big bandit and I'm gonna hold you up.' And I told him to stand up in the corner and I pointed the pistol at him. Georgie just grinned. Then all of a sudden the pistol went off, and Georgie tumbled down. I thought he was just playing dead. Then blood started to come out all over his head.

"I yelled, 'Georgie! Georgie!' but he didn't say nothin'. And then—"

The boy broke down, choked with sobs. The District Attorney patted him on the shoulder and sent him home with a policeman. He arrived a few minutes before his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. John Loeffler, owners of an East Harlem hotel, all unknowing of the tragedy, returned to find their smallest son dead.

Theodore Ball, a neighbor, said Robert had come running to him, crying that he had shot his brother, and that when the doctor and ambulance arrived George was already dead. And he told of how Robert had gone with a policeman to the station to tell the story.

Mr. Loeffler was arrested, charged with a violation of the Sullivan law, and released on $500 bail.

NEWBERRY ASSAILED BY HULL IN MICHIGAN

Democratic Chairman Charges Republicans With Using 'System of Political Bargain and Sale.'

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., April 19.—The Democratic attack on the seating of Senator Newberry was carried into Michigan tonight by Chairman Hull of the Democratic National Committee, through a message read at a Statewide meeting of party leaders.

Chairman Hull in his message discussed at length the Newberry case, which Former Governor Cox touched upon in an address here last night and which Chairman Hull tonight declared "sharply raised the clean-cut issue of whether seats in the United States Senate are for sale." Republican leaders had answered the issue affirmatively, the chairman said, adding:

"This means that any office is for sale and that the corrupt use of money to influence any governmental agency for any purpose, no matter how selfish or fiendish, is a part of the political practice of those who are today in high places in Washington."

The Democratic Chairman then went on to say that the Newberry case, "bad as it is in every odious sense," is not "within and by itself that which constitutes the greatest danger, but as a symptom or outcropping sign it reveals startling evidence of the frightful underlying system of political bargain and sale under which Old Guard Republican leaders are today conducting the Republican party and the affairs of our Government as well."

Three classes of Republicans exist today, Mr. Hull said, naming them as "The Old Guard, the Progressive and the Newberry Republicans."

"The Newberry brand is now in control of the Republican party," he added.

Former Governor Woodbridge N. Ferris has been prominently mentioned as a possible candidate for the United States Senate and former Congressman Frank E. Doremus has been suggested as the party's Gubernatorial candidate.

SPAIN TAXES BACHELORS.

Levies on Vehicles, Titles and Incomes Included in New Program.

MADRID, April 19 (Associated Press).—Spain's new taxation program, which Minister of Finance Bergamin will present at the forthcoming session of Congress, includes an annual tax of 360 pesetas for private carriages, 120 pesetas for saddle horses and from 600 to 3,600 pesetas for automobiles, according to their horsepower. Extra taxation will be imposed on specially luxurious bodies.

Holders of titles, whether Spanish or foreign, will be taxed 10 per cent. Duty is imposed by the measure upon inheritances.

Those whose incomes are below 2,000 pesetas annually are exempt from income taxation. Bachelors over 25 years of age will pay more income tax than married men.

Domestic postal rates are increased, interior telegraph tolls will be 10 centimos per word, with a minimum charge of one peseta per message and cheap night deferred telegrams are abolished. A proportional tax on business turnovers is provided, but the amount is not yet fixed.

Dr. Lorenz, the Austrian surgeon, made this statement today on his arrival from New York. He had nothing but praise for his American colleagues in the medical world and attributed certain "disagreeable incidents" not to "professional but to political feeling."

NEW VETO THREAT HANGS OVER BONUS

Senator Watson Finds Harding Insistent That a Way to Raise Funds Must Be Found.

TANGLE BECOMES WORSE

Senate Group Now Favors Delay Until the British Debt Is Adjusted.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The action of the caucus of Republican Senators yesterday in voting to call up the Soldier Bonus bill "within a reasonable time" has caused a snarl in the Senate which is more involved than the recent tribulations of the Ways and Means Committee before the measure was passed by the House.

The House struggled and failed to find a way to comply with President Harding's demand for a bill that provided means for the payment of the bonus. With the measure one step nearer the White House the threat of a Presidential veto becomes ominous to the Senate. After a conference with the President today Senator Watson of Indiana returned to the Capitol clearly under the impression that Mr. Harding would veto any form of bonus legislation that omitted a method of raising funds.

"It was learned today that the Senate caucus was intended primarily for a consideration of the tariff, but at the insistence of Senators Lenroot and McCormick the meeting developed into a discussion of the bonus question. Efforts were made to have the caucus favor calling up a bonus bill within three weeks. Then came the first snarl. Should the House bill be reported or should the Senate Finance Committee frame a bill that would fulfill the President's stipulation?

Constitutional Question Raised.

Senator Lenroot declared that the Senate had no constitutional right to pass a bill of its own providing for revenue. Over the House measure hung the probability of a veto. Accordingly, the caucus voted to modify the three weeks' demand by agreeing that a bonus bill in some form should be reported by the committee "within a reasonable time."

From the caution with which Senators discussed the question today, it was apparent that the President's threat of a veto is looked upon with more respect in the Senate than in the House. Republican Senators admit that there was no chance of a sales tax being attached to any bonus legislation in either House.

The present dilemma of Senate leaders is due to the fact that the Constitution forbids the Senate from originating any revenue measure. Thus the Senate is unable under the law to frame a bonus bill that would meet President Harding's approval, and should it pass the House bill the measure would be opposed by a veto.

A canvass of the Senate shows a majority of at least fifty in favor of a bonus bill of some kind. It is probable that the sentiment is so overwhelming that the Senate would pass any bill reported by the committee regardless of the consequences of a veto following. What the Senate leaders seek is some method of fulfilling the President's demand. In the face of suggestions for delay and demands for early action, that the measure may be passed before the Fall elections.

Senator McCumber is understood to be in favor of immediate passage of a bonus bill in some form. Senator Watson, on the other hand, is supported by a number of Republican Senators in delaying action until a plan is worked out for the utilization of the British debt.

Tariff Rider Is Opposed.

The only other suggestion for providing the revenue is for a "rider" to the tariff bill. The objection to this plan is voiced in some quarters, however, that it would be interfering with the constitutional prerogatives of the House, although the Payne-Aldrich law carried an amendment providing for a corporation tax and the present Underwood law had an income tax amendment inserted before its enactment.

Those who argue for the delay of bonus legislation point out that by the end of June the allied debt fund commission which began its labors yesterday may be able to have ready for issue $4,000,000,000 in bonds on the basis of future paymenats of the British debt to this country. Encouragement to utilise the British debt for this purpose was given to some Senators by Secretary Mellon's letter yesterday to Senator McCumber stating that payments of interest upon the debt would yield about $200,000,000.

In the face of Mr. Melon's declaration several months ago that the proceeds of the funding operations should be devoted to the retirement of Liberty bonds, there is a growing sentiment among Senators in favor of using the British loans to underwrite the bonus. "This, Senator Watson said today, " would not cost the taxpayers one cent."

Attempts will be renewed by Republican Senators to persuade President Harding to modify his views regarding the bonus, and efforts will be made to strike an agreement upon just what form of bill shall be reported by the Senate Finance Committee. The present indications are that these negotiations will not be achieved within the three weeks demanded by impatient Senators in the Republican caucus.

WASHINGTON, April 19 (Associated Press).—President Harding was represented today by White House callers as favorable to suggestions that a soldier bonus revenue raising provision be inserted in the tariff bill now before the Senate.

ANONYMOUS ARTIST EXHIBITS

Many Bids Received for His Paintings at Anderson Galleries.

The exhibition of the paintings of the anonymous artist at the Anderson Galleries who has put up a fortune in canvases in the belief that people like to take a chance and will buy a painting on a guess sooner than a certainty is going on famously. The exhibition, which is shown in a private gallery, Room 307, just out of the third floor galleries where the international exhibition of etching is going on, opened late Tuesday, and yesterday, its first full day, brought many bids. One man put in bids on four pictures and one generous bid was made by a fellow-artist.

The pictures, eighty canvases, are being put up in three different lots, going on exhibition each Tuesday, the prices of the pictures, at the artist's valuation, are placed in cards beneath them and would-be purchasers write their bids on cards and drop them in a ballot box on a table in the room. It is a brilliant collection of paintings; there are twelve marines and large, beautiful and decorative still lifes. "Hedda Gabler" is a picture of quite another sort, and "The Little Bird Cage" is the one picture which may be called a nude, a young woman, her Chinese negligee slipped from her body, feeding a bird in a Chinese cage; there are designs in Chinese still life on the table and in a mirror at the back a part of the nude figure is reflected.

The artist who is taking his chances in this way is burning his bridges behind him and hoping to get funds from the sale to take him abroad to do more painting. The only person yesterday who made a correct guess at his identity exclaimed immediately:

"I might have known; he is the only man in the country who would have had the courage to take such a chance."

The artist's name, now painted out, will be replaced when the pictures have been sold.

BAKER SUES A STAGE MAGNATE OVER WIFE

Charges Frederick N. Nirdlinger of Philadelphia Enticed Young Woman Away.

DEMANDS $150,000 DAMAGES

Plaintiff Resides at Atlantic City, Where Defendant Is a Frequent Visitor.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 19.—Frederick Nixon Nirdlinger, millionaire theatrical magnate of Philadelphia, is defendant in a suit filed in the New Jersey Circuit Court for $150,000 damages by Franz Voelker, former Secretary of the Atlantic County Board of Taxation, for alleged alienation of the affections of his young wife Helene. Voelker further charges in the papers that his wife "by means of anticements" was induced to leave him. Service of the action was made this afternoon on Theodore W. Salsbupf, former Mayor of Ventnor, the theatrical man's attorney here, who consented to the process.

There are three counts in the complaint. Voelker asks that he be awarded punitive damages of $50,000 on each, making a total of $150,000. It is alleged in the complaint "that during the month of August, 1920, the defendant, Frederick G. Nixon Nirdlinger, knowingly and maliciously enticed the plaintiff's wife away from him and intended to thereby deprive the plaintiff of the society of his wife, who never thereafter returned to the home of the plaintiff or his society." The other two counts are worded in the same manner except the last, which amplifies the charges.

Mrs. Voelker is making her home in this city, and her husband is the proprietor of a bakery. Mr. Nirdlinger is living in Philadelphia, although paying frequent visits to here, where he is the lessee of the Apollo Theatre. He also controls a number of theatres in Philadelphia, where his business office is situated.

Voelker filed a petition for divorce from his wife some time ago in which he named Mr. Nirdlinger as the co-respondent. Testimony was taken by Special Advisory Master in Chancery Clarence L. Cole, who recommended that a degree be granted.

Judge Cole is representing Voelker in the alienation suit which, it is understood, will be tried at the October term of court.

'ARDING FOR LAND BILL CARRYING $350,000,000

e Promises a Delegation to Urge Enactment of the McNary Reclamation Project.

'ASHINGTON, April 19.—The approval of President Harding for the McNary bill providing for a $350,000,000 revolving fund to be used for the development of Western and Southern reclamation and drainage projects was given today to a congressional delegation that called at the White House.

Members of the delegation, which was headed by Senator McNary of Oregon and Representative Smith of Idaho, said that the President expressed deep interest in the bill, which is pending in both the Senate and House. Mr. Harding also said by the visitors to favor passage of the bill at the present session. The most difficulty, it was said, was expected in the House and the President promised to confer with members of the House Republican Steering Committee and urge them to press the bill at this session.

The President was told that the enactment of the bill would result in the reclamation of millions of acres of land and provide homes for thousands of people. A memorandum submitted by the delegation set forth that under the reclamation act of 1902 approximately 3,600,000 acres of desert lands had been reclaimed, and more than 40,000 families had been established on farms, the national wealth had been increased approximately $800,000,000 and foodstuffs valued at $150,000,000 had been raised each year on projects in fourteen States—all at an expenditure by the Government of approximately $130,000,000 from a fund obtained from the sale of public lands and from land fees.

Representative Smith presented to the President a detailed statement of the Minidoka project in Idaho as typical of the status of the others. The cost of construction in this case was $5,800,000, of which $1,000,000 has been repaid. The value of the farm improvements and livestock was placed at $30,373,000, assessed valuation at $14,576,000 and the value of the crops at $5,924,000.

NEW YORK POSTMASTER GETS TWO ASSISTANTS

New System of Dividing Up the Work Will Be Applied in Five Largest Cities.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON April 19.—A plan for dividing the postal work in large cities, each under an Assistant Postmaster, proposed by Postmaster Edward M. Morgan of New York, was officially approved today by Postmaster General Work after a conference with Mr. Morgan and a committee of Post Office Inspectors.

Postmaster Morgan, with Inspector W. E. Cochran of the New York division, has been at work for several weeks on a plan of reorganization for the New York Post Office, which will now be carried out in other large cities where the postal business has become congested.

The Morgan plan, as approved by the Postmaster General, was outlined in the following statement at the Post Office Department this afternoon.

"This plan of reorganization is called 'the two-division plan.' It involves the division of entire work under the Postmaster into two great parts, each distinct from the other and each to be headed by an Assistant Postmaster. It involves having two Assistant Postmasters instead of one. One of these divisions will have charge of finance and the other of mailing. The Post Office Department not only decided to put this into effect in New York City, but to recommend it in the five largest cities of the country. It will be carried into effect in New York immediately on a tentative plan by the designation of the Superintendent of Mails as Acting Second Assistant Postmaster and designating an Assistant Superintendent of Mails to be Acting Superintendent of Mails. The department will ask Congress to give legislative sanction to this plan as adapted to the five largest cities."

IDLE MINERS STONE MAINTENANCE MEN

Mob of Two Hundred Attacks Sixty in Outbreak at Luzerne, Penn.

REPORT SOFT COAL RISING

First Injunction Against Unionization in Pennsylvania Field Issued —Court Orders Evictions.

Special to The New York Times.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., April 19.—Disorder developed among the idle anthracite workers today for the first time since the men quit work on April 1. Sixty men who were reporting for work as maintenance men at the East Boston Colliery, in Luzerne Borough, were stoned. Several shots were fired and a few of the men were beaten, although none was seriously injured.

When the men came along four highways leading to the colliery and culm dump today they were met by pickets, the idle miners having thrown out a line to guard all approaches. The men were told they could not go to work. When they asked for an explanation they were met with a volley of stones and clubs. The fusillade continued for several minutes and meanwhile shots began to ring out. A few of the sixty workers were felled by stones and they allege that after they were down shots were fired at them.

Every one of the sixty was turned back. They did not attempt to fight. In the mob of attackers were about two hundred. Some of the workers who ran away were pursued, they allege, by miners, who hurled stones and clubs at them. Some were chased all the way to the threshholds of their homes.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, April 19.—Claims of a sudden jump in the prices of bituminous coal, always considered an indication of an approaching shortage, were made today by Vice President Fagan of the United Mine Workers. He asserted that slack coal, $1.50 a ton before April 1, when the coal strike started, is now quoted at $3 a ton, a 100 per cent. increase, and that screen coal, selling before the strike for between $2.25 and $2.50 a ton, is now being quoted at $5 a ton, with little in sight.

Throughout the pivotal fields of Western and Central Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia, a little sector of the strike territory, containing three big mines, Leisenring Nos. 1, 2 and 3, of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, again today held the centre of the stage.

Monday officials of District No. 5 United Mine Workers asserted Leisenring Nos. 1 and 2 were down. Today in behalf of the operators, it was admitted that Leisenring No. 1 was badly crippled but it was said that Nos. 2 and 3 were operating "100 per cent."

The injunction method of preventing the spread of the unionizing movement made its first appearance in the central Pennsylvania field today, when Presiding Judge Herbert of Somerset County, granted a temporary injunction on petition of the Consolidation Coal Company, Quemahoning Creek Coal Company, Listie Coal Company and the Quemahoning Coal Company, restraining President John Brophy and other officials of District 2, United Mine Workers, from holding meetings on or near the mines of these companies, which employ about 5,000, all non-union.

4,500 Non-Union Miners Quit.

The walkout of non-union miners at Star Junction was marked today by what are regarded as important developments. The Washington Coal and Coke Company, operating four mines at Star Junction and employing near 4,500 men normally, today posted notices in which it was stated that men who had gone on strike should return their mine checks tomorrow and receive their pay in full on Saturday.

The notice stated that the mines of the company would remain closed until the miners declared themselves ready to return to work as non-union men. The openings of the Washington Coal and Coke Company's four mines at Star Junction have been closed up, indicating that the officials expect a somewhat extended period of inactivity.

Hundreds of cases of destitution among miners' families have been reported, many of them being without proper food and clothing. Miners' locals are raising funds to meet the needs of destitute families and have already established a commissary at Fayette City to aid in the relief work.

LOCK HAVEN, Pa., April 19.—Judge Baird today dissolved an injunction restraining the Kettle Creek Coal Company from evicting about forty families of soft coal mine workers from the company houses at Bitumen. The miners have refused to work for some time. Sheriff Johnson with fifteen deputies and five State policemen will carry out the Court's order tomorrow.

SAYS 80,000 MINERS FACE STARVATION

Union Official to Ask New York Labor to Send Relief to West Virginia.

Eighty thousand people, including both union and non-union coal miners and their families in West Virginia, face destitution and starvation as a result of the coal strike, Lawrence Dwyer of Beckley, W. Va., International Board member of the United Mine Workers, declared here yesterday. He will ask organized labor of New York to aid in getting immediate relief to 30,000 men, women and children in the New River and Winding Gulf districts.

Mr. Dwyer announced that Baltimore contributors had enabled him to ship yesterday sufficient food supplies to feed the miners until the first of next month.

Mr. Dwyer said that he would have to abandon his work to secure relief this week, as he would have to appear Monday morning at Charleston, W. Va., with approximately 300 other defendants, to stand trial for treason. He was indicted with other union officials in connection with the armed march of miners on Logan County non-union coal fields last August, and is now out under $10,000 bail.

He said that he believed the trials would be postponed, "because the operators fear to have the treason cases come up because of the publicity that will be given to their activities in terrorizing our union members and officials by their hired gunmen and espionage methods."

Little progress was reported at the session of the anthracite wage scale conference held at the Union League Club. Samuel Wartiner of Philadelphia, spokesman for the operators, said that the mine owners expected to begin a discussion of the wage rate before the end of the week, although but two more sessions will be held before the regular weekly recess is taken.

While no formal statement was made by the miners' representatives, the intimation was frequently made that the operators were "stalling and playing a waiting game" by failing to take up the wage question.

WON'T MEET WITH STRIKERS

Pawtuxet Textile Operators Reject Pothier's Invitation.

PROVIDENCE, April 19.—Pawtuxet Valley textile mill owners announced this afternoon that they had rejected the invitation of former Governor Aram J. Pothier to meet with a committee representing the strikers of that section to discuss a possible basis for the settlement of the strike.

The maiufacturers made no explanation of their reasons for refusing. They said each individual employer was willing to meet a committee of his former employes.

DODGE CONVICTED AGAIN.

Youth Is Found to Have Had Liquor on Automobile When Girl Was Hurt.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., April 19.—John Duval Dodge, young Detroit millionaire, and Rex Earl, an architect of Kalamazoo, were convicted in Circuit Court here late today on a charge of illegally possessing, transporting and furnishing liquor. Attorneys for the defendants immediately gave notice of appeal and Judge Weimer withheld sentence.

The charges against Dodge and Earl resulted from an automobile ride here on the night of March 11, when they invited three young women into their car and drove them against their protests into the country. During the ride, the three girls testified, liquor was offered to them. One jumped out of the machine and was badly hurt.

Railway Men Reject "Big Union."

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 19.—A proposal to amalgamate all railway workers into one industrial organization modeled on the "One Big Union" idea was rejected today by delegates attending the convention of the Railway Employes' Department of the American Federation of Labor.

What Makes An Oriental Rug Good?

Sketched is the warehouse in Hamadan, Persia, where the Persian rugs in our collection were assembled by our buyer and later shipped to New York.

Some of the finest specimens of hand-woven rugs on the market today come from Persia. Also some of the worst.

A rug that is well woven may contain poor wools. A rug, well woven and of good wools, may nevertheless be poorly dyed. And a rug that looks perfect may yet have been exposed to sea water en route from Persia to New York and thereby have been seriously, even though not visibly, damaged.

For these and a dozen other equally valid reasons a rug that pleases the eye may in reality be almost worthless in durability and service.

It is our Pride and Pleasure, as it is our Duty, to safeguard patrons in every particular.

No Oriental rug in our stock is bought in a haphazard or hurried manner. A recent buying trip in Persia alone, for example, consumed eight entire months. Thousands of rugs were painstakingly inspected—not merely those displayed in the famous rug bazaars, but more particularly those in little hamlets and in private families.

For every rug must meet the highest critical standards to obtain a place on our floor.

You do not need to be an expert and to know what makes an Oriental good when you buy it here. Our high standard is your safeguard—whether you pay $5 for a small mat or $4500 for a magnificent Persian carpet.

LADY ASTOR CALM IN GALE OF QUERIES

Battalion of Interviewers Greets Virginia-Born Member of British Parliament.

NOT HERE ON A MISSION

"Bring My Head and a Sense of Humor," and Proves It in Sprightly Comment.

The passenger list of the Olympic read "Lady Astor, M. P.," but when the big four-funneled White Star liner came slowly up the bay yesterday and swung into her pier she had on board Nancy Witcher Langhorne, Virginia born, first woman member of the British Parliament, "coming home" for the first time in eight years, and who still thrills when the band plays "Dixie." Bound here to speak at the Pan-American conference of women at Baltimore, where women-made plans for world betterment are to take shape, Lady Astor made it emphatic, even before the Olympic berthed, that she had not come to try to bring America into better understanding with England and Europe, nor to tell any one his duty, nor to tell American statesmen what to do.

"I have not quite lost either my head or my sense of humor," she said. "I am not on any mission. I am here because I received an invitation to attend the Pan-American women's convention at Baltimore to discuss matters of interest to women all over the world." She went on:

"When I am asked if I think that America ought to be at the Genoa conference, I ask if England was right to attend the Washington conference and try to make the world a little less suspicious and less warlike and its burdens of taxation a little less oppressive.

Neighbors Should Help Quench Fire.

"As to whether Europe ought not to straighten out her affairs before America comes in, it seems to me that when a house is on fire it is a wise neighbor who goes to help put the fire out, and if the man who lives across the street joins in and pumps water the conflagration will stop all the quicker. American interests are not entirely independent of or isolated from Europe. American influence is needed to help put things right.

"I have been asked whether it is true that England is annoyed with America for having demanded her share of reparations for the payment of American troops in Germany. As I see it, England is quite willing that America should get her share. As to the international debts, England is going to pay her debt to America. Of course, this must take time. If England had not lent money to her Allies to enable them to continue fighting, she would not have had to borrow from the United States. England is only in debt to America because England financed the European Allies.

"Is England well disposed to the United States? British public opinion is most assuredly favorable to America. They not only welcome the fruits of the Washington conference, but they are genuinely overjoyed at the evidence of what is possible for world welfare when Britain and America co-operate. The heart to heart talks at the Washington conference ought to have made our relations foolproof.

"Surely, the Genoa conference will succeed—it has done so already. The mere bringing around one table of the leaders of Russia, France, Germany and England is a successful achievement. We will not get our final results at Genoa, but we are getting the essential preliminaries. The European nations, particularly Russia and France, must reduce their armies. So long as they don't the world must remain on the edge of a volcano. Big armies also mean heavy taxation. Heavy taxes mean bad trade and slow commercial recovery for every one.

Can't Play Game by Wireless.

"Similarly, Russia must give up impracticable economic theories on industry. Lenin has already renounced them in speeches. Action is now needed. This surely necessitates contact with other countries and the meeting of the negotiators.

"No one can put his cards on the table by wireless. I do not pretend to be a political economist and am merely uttering platitudes, but it seems to me the world just now wants more sense and good-will and less suspicion. Until you get Russians, French and Germans face to face you can't find out what the fears are which cause the two former nations to maintain such big armies.

"Do I think the opinions put forward by Mrs. Asquith adequately represent British views? I am not going to discuss Mrs. Asquith or any other individual. All I can say is that she is no more a typical average English woman than she is a typical American woman. I might say she is unique and I would not be far wrong.

"Prohibition? Lloyd George? Am I going on a speaking tour? I have not been over here for eight years, so I can't say anything about prohibition from personal observation. All I can say with conviction is that I have never met the man or woman who was made more unselfish or better by drink, but I have seen hundreds ruined by it.

"Mr. Lloyd-George has steered us through the war, through several dangerous strikes and through many international crises. I don't know any one who has his experience or tact or boldness. People say he has faults. He has. So has every one else.

"No, I am not going on a speaking tour—I haven't the time to accept all the numerous flattering invitations which have been sent to me. I have to get back to Parliament and I simply must have a few days with my family in Virginia. In addition, however, to going to Baltimore, I am going to Washington, Richmond, Danville, Lynchburg and Chicago."

Shipload of Reporters Greet Liner.

The Olympic made port late Tuesday night, and with dawn yesterday moved up off Quarantine. Shortly before 7 o'clock, when the harbor fog was threatening to lift, the Olympic got under way and began to creep up the bay. At the same time the Coast Guard cutter Manhattan left the Battery with a regiment of cameramen and reporters aboard.

Two miles from Quarantine the cutter signaled the liner to slow down for the customs and health men, but for some reason the Olympic paid no heed—maybe Lady Astor smiled at the skipper—and the cutter had to take up a stern chase, protesting with intermittent toots of the whistle. Finally the Manhattan was recognized and the big liner halted.

After the news army had boarded the Olympic, came the hunt for the Astors. According to the stewards, Lord and Lady Astor would be found in Suites 94 or 96. On the trip over, they said, Lady Astor had kept pretty much to her cabin, although she occasionally joined her husband in his three-times-a-day constitutional along the decks. But neither Lord nor Lady Astor was in those cabins. Finally on A Deck, at the foot of the stairway, Lady Astor was found. She laughed and backed against the wall. Bang! Bang! went the flashlight "stills" and the movies began to grind and question—oh, so many!—to fly.

"Getting into Parliament was a picnic alongside of this," gasped Lady Astor, then laughed and called "Help! help! Where's my husband? Steward, fetch my husband!"

No Support From Lord Astor.

The Viscount, however, on the outskirts of the crowd, declined to go to the rescue—tall, slender, dark, with close-cropped black mustache and hair; soft gray hat, brown herringbone tweed topcoat and suit, galtered—he put his hands up to his ruddy face, pretending to shut out the sight, and refused to support the Member from the Sutton Division of Plymouth.

Lady Astor stood speechless before the bombardment of questions, awaiting an opportunity to make answer. In the pause there was time to observe her, as she pulled up the wide chinchilla collar of her black caracul fur coat as though to close out the din.

In arranging the collar of the coat—Viscount Astor's gift to his wife's American wardrobe—she disclosed five rings, including a platinum and diamond wedding band, a gold ring with a single diamond and a large ruby. The gems flashed as her hands came down to be clasped together, a nervous attitude, perhaps an habitual one, which she assumed often during the interview—conducted in the shadow of one of the big smokestacks or against a lifeboat davit, or the rail, or while being photographed on the open spaces of the hurricane deck.

Although a bit nonplused by the vigorous onslaught of the newsgetters, Lady Astor wasn't the slightest trifle nervous. There was a merry look in her brown eyes—most noticeable of her fine features—and a smile played about her small mouth. True, she did give her small black plush semi-toque, setting saucily above her light brown hair, an occasional "straightening" poke, but apparently it was an unconscious habit.

"Come along then," cried Lady Astor, finally surrendering to the calls for pictures, and she led the way to the hurricane deck. The husband followed and they posed side by side near the forward funnel. "The Honorable Member for Plymouth" was in high spirits and she and Lord Astor laughed heartily at the commands.

Camera Men in Action.

"Smile now." "Turn a little this way, only one more now, Mrs. Astor, and take your husband's arm." "Fix your hat and register action—talk to him." "Oh, Lady, yoo-hoo," came from a photographer perched on the top of a high stanchion, "look up here," and she did and gave him a wave to make the picture better.

Just then "Pay Day" Murphy, quartermaster on the Olympic for sixty-seven trips, hove in sight. "Pay Day" supervises the games on the decks of the ship and Lady Astor insisted that he pose with her. The brawny Irish sailor vouchsafed the information that Lady Astor once on the way over had skipped the rope 167 times.

When the twenty-four photographers had taken three times twenty-four pictures Lady Astor, with her husband at her side, stood at the rail and answered questions. After giving her views on Genoa, prohibition, the Washington conference and Lloyd George somebody wanted to know more about Ireland.

"Well, I'll tell you," said Lady Astor, with a quizzical smile, "I had a dream about Ireland last night, but I won't tell you what it was."

"Did you dream of a complete settlement?"

"No," she replied. "I dreamed about a statement."

Pulls Down Husband's Hat.

Just then, having been turning with alert eagerness from one to the other of her interrogators, she caught sight of Lord Astor's hat. She reached over and gently but firmly pulled it down further on his head.

"There," she said, "that's better. I don't like your hat sitting up there like a French hat. I like it down."

At the first opportunity the husband of the Member for Plymouth casually eased the headgear back to comfort.

"When do I come up for re-election? Next Autumn. Am I going to have a dry plank in my platform?" she asked and answered, "No, I don't think I shall have a dry plank but I certainly am not going to have a wet plank."

"A sort of semi-moist plank perhaps?"

"No," said Lord Astor, replying for his wife, "not a semi-moist plank," and Lady Astor said she did not regard prohibition as an issue as yet in Great Britain.

"Women in England are coming along all right," she said. "The war, if nothing else, fixed that. They have learned something and they will never go back to what they were. Curious, isn't it, that when a woman goes into employment she is always reluctant to give it up. It may interfere some times but yet it hasn't interefered with me."

Lady Astor is the mother of six—a girl, the oldest, and five boys, and she said that being in Parliament hadn't prevented her "bringing up the family." She was launching into an account of her daughter's progress—she's 9 years old—at one of the English public schools when a woman reporter asked:

"But, as a member of Parliament, what from the woman's point of view"—

"Don't let's talk about anything from the woman's point of view. There really isn't any such thing. Women are about the same as men. And don't call me a leader among women—the most extraordinary thing about me is my children."

Lord Astor Calls Wife "Symbol."

"She's just a symbol," explained Lord Astor, "of what a woman can do in public life—not a leader or that sort of thing."

Another question, "What are your politics?" received a joint answer:

"I'm a Unionist," said Lady Astor, and her husband supplemented with "and with a considerable degree of independence."

And how is Lloyd George getting on?

"Well," said Lady Astor, "he's still got his head above water." Her husband added: "his head."

"Mrs. Asquith's remarks about prohibition here?" queried Lady Astor.

"Well, I could give you a good answer on that but I won't," turning to meet a question on the flapper.

"I like her, and if there's any criticism of clothes being worn today, don't blame the girls; blame the parents. In fact, clothes of today are woman's worst handicap. Pretty nearly all the women are dressed unfortunately at present, from my point of view. Nothing lets the sex down like running about half naked. There is no use talking about equality if we are using liberty to show our hideousness."

"I think the most important piece of legislation that I have championed over on the other side is the amendment to the criminal law dealing with the cases of unfortunate mothers. It deals with this important problem from the right viewpoint, I think."

Reacts to Texas Accent.

At this point a reporter with the Texas accent arrived, and with his first words Lady Astor said:

"Oh, boy, where are you from? Texas? I thought as much. You talk just like a nigger—I just love to hear it. The only man I ever met who actually liked getting down into the mud of the trenches and fighting was a long-legged lad from Texas. Go on, ask me questions. I like to hear you talk.

"It reminds me of when I used to go down to the Y. M. C. A. in London during the war and talk to the boys from America. One day a big negro shambled in and when I heard him talk I said:

"'Where you from?'

"'Boston.'

"'Go on, nigger, you're not from Boston.'

"'Good Lord, she calls me nigger—I's from Norfolk, m'am'" he said, and he brightened up at once."

Lady Astor's original Virginia drawl has been somewhat modified by Parliament and the English climate.

By this time the Olympic had threaded its way up the river and was being warped by nine tugs into Pier 58, at the foot of West Eighteenth street. The group of the top deck hurried over to the rails to return the greetings shouted up from the crowd on the front of the pier. Suddenly Lady Astor caught sight of her sister, Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, and her husband. Greetings were exchanged and then the visitor saw another friend, apparently with a new fur coat.

"Hello, Alice!" shouted Lady Astor, framing her lips with her hands, "where did you get the new coat? Look at mine! You look wonderful, but wait until you see mine."

Proud of Her New Coat.

Over her shoulder to a reporter she said: "I'm very proud of this coat. At home I'm like Cinderella, but not today"—as she exhibited her blue canton crepe dress, with bodice elaborately worked in Bulgarian embroidery. "Wore a dress last night that I have worn rather steadily since 1918," she remarked.

After a battle with a perverse tide the Olympic finally got into her berth and the gangplanks were run down. Lord and Lady Astor were among the first off, and sixty-nine representatives from the New York City League for Women Voters, under whose auspices she spoke last night in Town Hall, greeted her. Among those who extended welcome were Ruth Morgan, Chairman; Mary Garrett Hay, Mrs. Montgomery Hare, Mrs. Stanley McCormick and Mrs. Herbert L. Platt.

"We've got to begin on the children," she told the welcoming committee in an informal and rather hasty sketch of her thoughts, "and the best way to get at the men is to get at them when they are children. I've come over to help women focus their attention on their responsibilities. What's the use of having votes if you don't use them?

"Now women got freedom from everything except prejudice and there are still some 'Noah's Ark' gentlemen we must get after. I really must stop—for I'm giving away the speech I expect to make tonight."

Passing through the crowd that had gathered to see her, Lady Astor was vigorously applauded. She was driven to the Gibson home, 127 East Seventy-third Street, where she is to stay until her departure for Baltimore. She rested there until it was time for her to go to the Town Hall meeting.

MORE ROCKEFELLER GIFTS FOR CHURCH

William Rockefeller Contributes $100,000 Toward Lifting Debt on New Edifice.

William Rockefeller will give the last $100,000 to pay for the new Park Avenue Baptist Church, at Park Avenue and Sixty-fourth Street, which was opened on Palm Sunday as the successor to the old Fifth Avenue Baptist Church. This announcement was made by John D. Rockefeller Jr., his nephew, last evening at a dinner and house-warming given by the members of the church in the basement.

The $100,000 gift will be a memorial to Mrs. William Rockefeller.

The announcement followed a speech by J. Howard Ardrey, for the Finance Committee, in which he said the trustees and deacons had decided to ask the members to lay on the altar next Sunday morning the remaining $300,000 that must be paid on the church, the total cost of which is $1,466,000. As John D. Rockefeller and John D. Rockefeller Jr. give a dollar for every dollar the membership gives, Mr. Ardrey figured that the membership at large would have to contribute $150,000.

The Rev. Dr. Cornelius Woelfkin, the pastor, announced that his wife and he desired to pay for the pulpit, which cost $1,100. So, on the basis of the Rockefeller dollar-for-dollar gifts, the amount the members will subscribe next Sunday is $48,900.

Mr. Rockefeller Jr., in his announcement, said: "I received a letter from Mr. William Rockefeller, my uncle, two or three days ago, saying he would give $100,000 to clear this church of debt, provided the rest was subscribed." The letter said that the $100,000 would be given at his convenience in 1922 and 1923. The purpose is to consecrate the church free of debt in two years.

Mr. Rockefeller Jr. gave Dr. Woelfkin a gold-headed cane made from the wood of the old pulpit in the downtown church. This week marks the tenth anniversary of the pastorate of Dr. Woelfkin.

Dr. Woelfkin praised the senior John D. Rockefeller. "I feel that this world will never appreciate John D. Rockefeller Sr. until a hundred years from now," he said. "I admire him not only as a great captain of industry, but as a pioneer philanthropist in what he has done for education. I am proud to have him one of our number."

TWO PRINCES PLAY GOLF.

But Cameras Apparently Put Wales and Hirohito Off Their Game.

TOKIO, April 19.—The Prince of Wales today concluded his official visit to Tokio by playing a game of golf against Crown Prince Hirohito, the Regent. The British heir-apparent will now start on a tour of the country districts.

The battery of cameras that followed the royal players around the course apparently had the effect of putting them both off their game. No score cards were turned in.

Socialists Now Control Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 19.—After two years of factional battling the Socialist Administration today controls the local Common Council. Three independent Aldermen swung their support to Mayor Dan W. Hoan, Socialist, and, with the solid party support in the Council, reorganized it last night, with Socialists in control of all the committees. The move followed closely on the ousting of a non-Socialist Tax Commissioner and the Commissioner of Public Works to make room for men in sympathy with the Mayor. These appointments were confirmed by votes of the Independents.

LADY ASTOR AS SEEN BY A WOMAN FRIEND

CLEVER AT ELECTIONEERING

Women, She Says, Will Make "My Two Countries Go On Hand in Hand."

By the HON. EDITH S. LYTTELTON, Dame of the Order of the British Empire.

The Hon. Edith Lyttelton, widow of the famous cricket player, who was secretary to Arthur Balfour when Mr. Balfour was Premier, accompanies Lady Astor on her trip to America. During the voyage on the Olympic Mrs. Lyttelton, long a close friend of Lady Astor, interviewed the first woman member of the British House of Commons for THE NEW YORK TIMES.

We were lying side by side on deck chairs, the only fine, sunny day of this trip. Nancy, to my pleasure, had discarded her raincoat and her little brown cap, and was dressed in a plain and very chic pale-blue tweed coat and skirt, with an enchanting yellow and gray toque on her head. On the day before she sailed she had been out shopping with the children, and they had all insisted that she must buy this hat. They were right.

"Every one asks me," I began, "whether you think all women ought to go into politics."

"How absurd!" she said. "As if they could—I am so lucky. I have health and enough money to have secretaries and motors, and a husband who—" she paused.

"And then another thing I am asked about is whether you took any interest in politics before you went into the House."

Oh laughed. "Why, you know I did, but perhaps rather from a local point of view. I wanted desperately to get certain things done—temperance reform, maternity centres started and, above all, to get the lower deck grievances attended to. My heart is with those sailors."

I nodded, for, of course, I remembered. I had many times gone out electioneering with her. It was a funny experience; we used to hire an old open fly, driven by a regular Dickens character of a coachman, with a red nose and a very dirty livery. His broad back would shake with laughter over her sallies when she spoke; he always had a supreme confidence that she would get the better of every interruptor. And she usually did. Someone generally came with us who would stand up and ring a huge dinner bell; then out of the little by-streets would dribble women and children, a stray man or two, some keen girls, and so on. Often there were professional hecklers who followed her about. But they got no change out of her. Her fearlessness and frankness are invincible.

The "Round Table" and Cliveden.

"But Nancy," I said, "your interest in politics wasn't only local; I remember lots of discussions at Cliveden in the library about imperial and international questions."

"Oh, yes," she said, "that all began with the 'Round Table.' There is only one gift I am sure I have, and that is for getting people of all sorts and conditions together, mixing them up and making them talk."

Again I nodded, for I knew how true it was; writers, politicians, philanthropists, working men and women, are always being gathered together by her and her husband under their roof. The young writers of the "Round Table"—that serious constructive review—who are a band of brothers in the cause of the British Empire, use Cliveden as a meeting place. They very often held their weekly "mote" there, and sometimes arranged for a special week-end to discuss some burning question. They have the right to invite any stranger or any friends to come for a night or week-end and join in the discussion. But the "Round Table" has no monopoly, for both husband and wife have always taken deep interest in labor questions. In a quiet and unostentatious way, many an employer and a labor leader have been brought together. * * *

"I wonder," I said, "whether you would always have been content to work as you did, mainly through other people."

Calls Husband's Peerage "Bad Luck."

"Oh, I think so," she answered. "It wouldn't have occurred to me to go into Parliament if Plymouth hadn't invited me. When poor Waldorf had to be a Peer * * * it was a piece of bad luck for him."

It was indeed, for he was one of those Members of Parliament, entirely happy in his work, who loved the House and had made a strong position for himself. Then all at once on the death of his father he had, as he became an hereditary member of the upper house, to abandon his Parliamentary career altogether. The blow was softened to an entirely unselfish and unselfseeking man, by keeping his connection with Plymouth and the House of Commons through his wife.

"What I can't get over," went on Nancy, "is the queerness of some one who comes over just as an ordinary Virginia girl, keen about games and hunting, ending up by being the first woman Member of the British Parliament. It is extraordinary that none of the women who had been in the fight for the suffrage—been in prison lots of them—ever seemed to mind."

"Well," I answered, "you are not just an ordinary girl from Virginia to begin with, and then, the suffragists knew very well that it was a piece of rare good fortune to get the chance of a seat for any woman so soon after the vote had been given."

And to myself I thought of all her warm-heartedness, her radiant sympathy, her goodness, her wit and vitality and I felt that it did not need much generosity on the part of English women to welcome her as their first representative. But after all is said, it was a strange turn of the wheel which made the eager, sport-loving Virginian, brought up on her father's place, running as I gather, pretty wild, living chiefly on horseback, turn first into a social queen living in the very centre of all that is most brilliant and most interesting in English life and then into an ardent social reformer. Finally, the first woman Member of the British Parliament. A curious, an interesting, a very happy career.

Still Likes Nice Clothes.

"I like your way of dressing the part," I said, "your little black coat and skirt, white muslin shirt and three-cornered hat will become the uniform. I believe, to women Members of Parliament." Nancy laughed. "I don't know about that, but I am sure that women in the House ought to dress quietly. It might be too distracting for the Members if we put on all our adornments. All the same, I haven't lost my love of nice clothes."

She handed me a radio—in its yellow envelope—of inordinate length. "I was so disappointed," she said. "I thought it was from the children. But its only twenty-two questions from a newspaper."

No wonder she was disappointed, for her six children are the great joy and delight of her life. Very often there is a pervse tussle in her heart, between her Parliamentary duties and her longing to stay in the nursery. Every opportunity is snatched. I remember once driving down with her to the House of Commons and just as we were starting her nurse with the two young children, aged 3 and 5, appeared on the steps of the house and asked if they might come, too. They were all packed in and we drove into Palace Yard a happy nursery party. After she had disappeared into the building, the nurse said she was "always like to drive down with her if I can, I think it is a good thing for them men to see that she doesn't forget the babies. And she doesn't, you know, Ma'am."

"Let's go for a walk," cried Nancy, throwing off her rug. "I must have some exercise."

"All right," I said, "but just tell me one thing. Doesn't it feel like a dream coming back to America?"

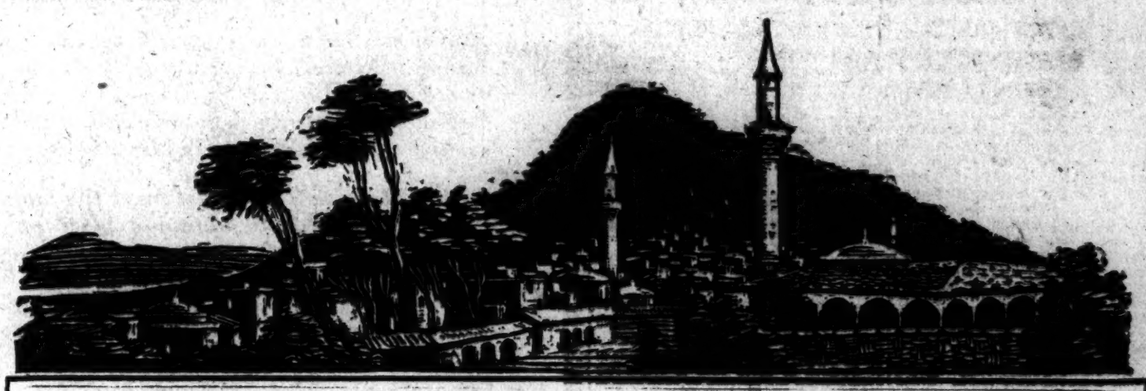
Her Two Countries.

She shook out her skirts "Well, not exactly, I'm coming home, you see * * * but * * * I have got a dream anyway. You know what it is * * * my two countries must go on hand in hand; they must; for the sake of the world. And it is the women who are going to make that happen * * * Come on, now."

Off we went as hard as we could go. She was not content with the walk—oh, no. On the boat deck of the Olympic there is a wonderful gymnasium. She soon forgot all about interviews and speeches, skipping, while a huge Irish sailor and a little boy who was hanging about, held the rope. The "imperishable child" in her was in possession, and for an hour she played with the football, jumped onto the artificial horse and the stationary bicycle, laughing and talking and giving vent to her peculiar little chuckle which happens when she is specially enjoying herself.

She has a wonderful physique, a great floor of life coursing through her being. And that being is made up of "spirit, fire and dew"—with a good spice of mischief thrown in.

No one can help loving her. At least that is my opinion.



LADY ASTOR HERE, TALKS TO WOMEN

to give the vote to women and that the men of England welcomed an American-born woman in the House with a fairness and a justice which, at least, this woman never will forget.

"The different ones received me in different ways. I shall never forget a Scotch labor leader coming up to me, after I had been in the House a little while, and telling me that I wasn't a bit the sort of woman he thought I would be—'I'll not tell you that, but I know now that you are an ordinary, homely, kindly body,' and he has proved it since by often asking my advice on domestic questions."

Then there had been an Irish member who had told her that he "didn't know what you are going to speak about, but I am here to back you." And the last was from a "regular Noah's Ark man, a typical squire type."

"After two and a half years of never agreeing on any point with him," said Lady Astor, "he remarked to some one that I was a very stupid woman but he must add that I was a very attractive one,' and he feared I was a thoroughly honest social reformer. I might add that being the first woman, I had to take up many causes which no one would call exactly popular. I also had to go up against a prejudice of generations, but I must say their decency has never failed, though my manners must have been somewhat of a trial.

Women Always in Politics.

"Now I must leave the more personal side and get to what it is all about and why we are here. Women and politics—some women have always been in politics, and have not done badly, either. It was when we had the Lancastrian Kings that it was said that the Kings were made Kings by act of Parliament—they did rule by means of Parliament. Then Henry VIII., that old scalawag, accepted the principles of the Lancastrians to rule by Parliament, but he wanted the principle in an entirely different way. He made Parliament the engine of his will; he pressed or frightened it into doing anything he wished. Under his guidance Parliament defied and crushed all other powers, spiritually and temporally, and he did things which no King or Parliament ever attempted to do—things unheard of and terrible.

"Then Elizabeth came along. It is true she meddled her parliaments for meddling with matters with which, in her opinion, they had no concern, and more than once soundly rated the Speaker of her Commons, but she never carried her quarrels too far, and was able to end her disputes by some clever compromise; in other words, she never let Parliament down, and that is what I don't believe any wise woman will do in spite of the fears of some of the men.

"Now, why are we in politics? What is it all about? Something much bigger than ourselves. Schopenhauer was wrong in nearly everything he wrote about women—and he wrote a lot, but he was right in one thing: He said, in speaking of women: 'the race is to her more than the individual,' and I believe that it is true. I feel somehow we do care about the race as a whole, our very nature makes us take a forward vision; there is no reason why women should look back—mercifully we have no political past; we have all the mistakes of sex legislation with its appalling failures to guide us.

"We should know what to avoid, it is no use blaming the men—we made them what they are—and now it is up to us to try and make ourselves—the makers of men—a little more responsible in the future. We realize that no one sex can govern alone. I believe that one of the reasons why civilization has failed so lamentably is that it has had a one-sided government. Don't let us make that mistake of ever allowing that to happen again.

Men and Women Together Should Rule.

"I can conceive of nothing worse than a man-governed world" she declared earnestly—"except a woman-governed world—but I can see the combination of the two going forward and making civilization more worthy of the name of civilization based on Christianity, not force. A civilization based on justice and mercy. I feel men have a greater sense of justice and we of mercy. They must borrow our mercy and we must use their justice. We are new brooms, let us see that we sweep the right rooms.

"Personally, I feel that every woman should take an active part in local politics. I don't mean by that that every woman should go in for a political career—that, of course, is absurd—but you can take an active part in local government without going in for a political career. You can be certain when considering your vote you are casting it for what seems nearest right—for what seems more likely to help the majority and not bolster up an organized minority. There is a lot to be done in local politics, and it is a fine apprenticeship to central government; it is very practical, and I think that, although practical, it is too near to be attractive. The things that are far way are more apt to catch our eye than the ones which are just under our noses; then, too, they are less disagreeable.

"Political development is like all other developments. We must begin with ourselves, our own consciences, and clean out our own hearts before we take on the job of putting others straight. So with politics if we women put our hands to local politics, we begin at the foundations. After all, central Governments only echo local ones; the politician in Washington, if he is a wise man, will always have one eye on his constituency, making that constituency so clean, so straight, so high in its purpose, that the man from home will not dare to take a small, limited view about any question, be it a national or an international one. You must remember that what women are up against is not what they seem, but the unseen forces.

Why Eve Ate the Apple.

"We are up against generations and generations of prejudice. Ever since Eve ate the apple—but I would like to remind you, and all men, why she ate the apple. It was not simply because it was good for food or pleasant to the eyes, it was a tree to be desired to make one wise. She took of the fruit thereof, and did eat; and she gave also unto her husband with her, and he did eat. We have no record of Adam murmuring against the fruit—of his not doing anything but eat it with docility. In passing, I would like to say that the first time Adam had a chance he laid the blame on woman—however, we will leave Adam.

"Ever since woman's consciousness looked beyond the material, men's conscientiousness has feared her vaguely. He has gone to her for inspiration, he has relied on her for all that is best and most ideal in his life, yet by sheer material force he has limited her. He has without knowing its westernised the harem mind of the East. I don't believe he knows it yet so we must break it to him gently. We must go on being his guide, his mother and his better half. But we must prove to him that we are a necessary half not only in private but in political life.

"The best way that we can do that is to show them our ambitions are not personal. Let them see that we desire a better, safer and a cleaner world for our children and their children and we realize that only by doing our bit, by facing unclean things with cleanliness, by facing wrongs with right, by going fearlessly into all things that may be disagreeable, that we will somehow make it a little better world.

"I don't know that we are going to do this—I don't say that women will change the world, but I do say that they can if they want and I, coming in from the Old World which has seen a devastating war, cannot face the future without this hope—that the women of all countries will do their duty and raise a generation of men and women who will look upon war and all that leads to it with as much horror as we now look upon a cold-blooded murder. All of the women of England want to do away with war.

"If we want this new world, we can only get it by striving for it, the real struggle will be within ourselves, to put out of our consciousness, of our hearts and of our thoughts all that makes for war, hate, envy, greed, pride, force and material ambition."

Do You Really Have Hot Water in Your Home?

Does this mean what it says?

These little jokers are called hot-water faucets just to remind you of what you are missing. Wouldn't it be great if they meant what they said?

It is perfectly possible and easy for you to enjoy the privilege of continuous and unfailing hot water.

Ruud Hot Water Service means that when you turn the faucet you get hot water without waiting, without lighting anything or putting anything out when you are through using it.

Think of the delight of deep water in the bathtub or an extra three or four minutes under the shower.

Wouldn't steaming hot water look good to you when you get out of bed in the morning? And on wash day wouldn't it be convenient to have all the hot water you want?

Your Home is Not too Small nor too Large

You were not overlooked when the Ruud Automatic Hot Water Service was perfected. You can have continuous, plentiful, always-ready hot water in your house no matter how small or how large it is.

Think of what that means.

Early in the morning when you rise—steaming hot water in the bowl, the tub or the shower—without waiting. Hot water at the sink for your breakfast dishes. Hot water at the laundry tubs and enough for your entire washing.

In the middle of the night, if you want it, hot water at the turn of the faucet.

And what do you have to do? Nothing but enjoy Ruud Hot Water Service. Nothing to light, nothing to turn off. The apparatus is in your house, but it takes care of itself.

You Don't Have to Build a House to Install Ruud Hot Water Service

It is only a matter of a couple of gas and water-pipe connections—and there you are.

From then on, you have hot water—all you want, whenever you want it. You forget the apparatus, because it operates itself without any help from you.

This unfailing, always-ready hot water supply is furnished in two ways: The Ruud Automatic Storage System or the Ruud Instantaneous Water Heater. Either system gives you continuous hot water.

How Much Does it Cost to Have Ruud Automatic Hot Water?

We might answer this question by asking you one: "How much does your hot water cost you now?"

It is hard to answer, because it depends upon how much hot water you use. But this much we do know and can answer with certainty: For a given amount of hot water, Ruud Automatic Hot Water is the cheapest you can buy.

But suppose you are the sort of person who glories in plenty of hot water, and suppose you use all you want with reckless enjoyment. Even then the cost of this privilege will be less than that of your cigarettes, your candy, or your movie tickets.

The cost of Ruud Hot Water Abundance is so little per person that it can be classed with the "spending money" items. The head of the family gives away more money in tips than it costs the whole family for continuous always-ready hot water.

A Price Condition That You Don't Expect

It is quite remarkable that while there is a great difference in the service-value of automatic water heaters, there is a difference of only a few dollars in price between the best and the most ordinary.

Ruud Automatic Water Heaters have been giving perfect service for twenty-five years. They are tried and proved.

Their very economy of operation will save any slight difference in price in a few months and their lasting, dependable service will pay you not only in money but in the delight and convenience of a continuous Hot Water Service so unfailing that you forget the apparatus in your cellar or kitchen.

Remember you are buying long-lived service when you buy a Ruud Automatic Water Heater. The Heater is going to give you the service—you don't want to be giving the service to the heater.

So don't forget that the father of them all is RUUD.

Two Kinds of Service

Service, two kinds of service, is what you look for when studying the subject of hot water for your home—the service that backs up the apparatus and the service that the heater will give you.

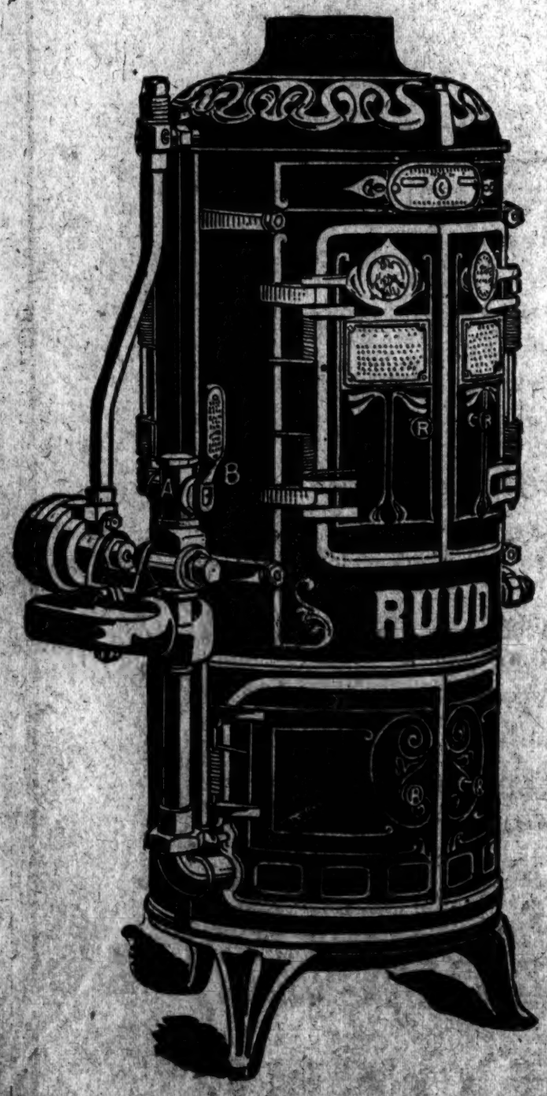
If it were merely a question of buying a water-heater, you could look them all over and take your choice.

Ruud Automatic Hot Water is furnished in two different systems and many different capacities. Ruud service begins when you begin to think about a real honest-to-goodness hot-water supply.

Hot water for your home is an individual problem. Just what you need depends upon how large your house is, how many bathrooms, how many in the family, the pressure of your water and gas, and other conditions.

Ruud Service will determine what is right for you. After installation, the service will be unfailing, "always-ready" hot water.

Ruud Automatic Hot Water will give you the service and we will stand back of it to see that your hot water supply is unfailing.



The Ruud Instantaneous

AUTOMATIC GAS WATER HEATERS

Some Day You Will Have Ruud Perfect Hot-Water Service
There Is No Better Time to Enjoy It Than Right Now

Hot-water comfort and convenience, once experienced, are just as necessary to home happiness as the furnace in your cellar or the ice in your icebox.

Ruud-equipped homes are pleasant places to live in. The whole family enjoys the hot-water privilege, and it is a privilege which exists every day in the year and at any time of day or night. This permanent and unfailing hot-water supply is insured when you specify RUUD.

The name is important to remember, because it is backed up by the pioneer of water-heating devices, and Ruud Service is always with you to see that your benefits are not interrupted.

WANT PACKERS BACK AS FOOD HANDLERS

Canners Attack Injunction, Charging That Palmer Was Swayed by Grocers.

'ADISTRIBUTERS' MONOPOLY"

Petitioners Allege Coercion and Threats — Declare High Prices Result.

WASHINGTON, April 19 (Associated Press).—Attacking the Government's recent injunction against the great meat packers as "a highly disastrous economic mistake and wholly unfounded in law or fact," the California co-operative canneries of San Francisco today asked the District Supreme Court to vacate the decree or modify it radically.

Sensational charges that former Attorney General Palmer misused Grand Jury processes to obtain information for use in getting the injunction and was influenced by the National Wholesale Grocers' Association and the Southern Wholesale Grocers' Association to obtain it and thereby place a monopoly of foodstuffs distribution in their hands are made in the petition.

By eliminating the packers as distributers of groceries, fruits and other foodstuffs, the petition says, the grocers were enabled to place "retailers and consumers at their mercy and thus arbitrarily and artificially keep up the price of food." Meanwhile, the petition alleges, the grocers have carried on "boycotts, reprisals and threats of coercion" against any who sought to have the injunction dismissed or modified.

The petition, filed by Frank J. Hogan of this city as attorney for the California canneries, asks that, if the injunction be not dismissed, it be modified to permit the packers to restore to the producers of foodstuffs their facilities of distribution, on a commission basis or "in some other efficient way."

The California canneries allege that before the injunction was issued on Feb. 27, 1920, against Swift, Armour, Morris, Cudahy, Wilson and others they had, as a co-operative organization of fruit growers, an annual business of four million dollars and a contract with Armour & Co., which has been entirely destroyed by the injunction. The petition states, had neither a combination in restraint of trade nor a monopoly in connection with the sale of fruits and groceries, their total of which will not exceed 4 or 5 per cent. of the like business in the country.

Says Grocers Get a Monopoly.

Prior to the injunction, the petition recites, the packers "had built up the most modern, efficient, expeditious and economical system of food distribution ever known in this or any other country," and the proper use of that system, it was represented, "would result in getting food commodities from producer to consumer on terms most advantageous to both."

By the injunction, the petition alleges, the wholesale grocers' associations, after influencing Attorney General Palmer in their favor, were placed in a monopoly of the grocery lines. It is contended that the elimination of the packer system of distribution of fruits and food commodities accounts "for the fact that food prices remain high, although growers of food are receiving low prices."

The Southern Wholesale Grocers' Association, the petition points out, previously had been convicted of violating the anti-trust laws and its officers had been guilty of contempt of a Federal restraining injunction. Now, besides being active in opposing a modification o fthe packers' injunction, the petition says, the grocers' association in addition to making "boycotts, reprisals and threats of coercion" against those who seek to have the injunction modified, feels free "to terrorize and coerce both those of whom they buy and those to whom they sell and to dictate the course of conduct of each and to enforce the same by their own methods."

"The wholesale grocers," says the petition, "have both the canners and manufacturers of foodstuffs and the retailers at their mercy through advances of money and credit since the elimination of the packers from competition with them." Elimination of the injunction, the petition says, would result in growers of fruits and vegetables getting fairer prices for their products.

The wholesale grocer associations, the petition further alleges, have in circulars and letters and in statements of their attorneys asserted that former Attorney General Palmer instituted the suit against the packers for the benefit of the grocers "and their benefit alone and merely acted as a trustee for them." It is charged that the grocers have "repeatedly insinuated that they used the Government of the United States and its Attorney General and this court to destroy their most efficient competitors."

Want Injunction Vacated.

"The most simple solution," the court is told in the petition, "is to vacate the injunction in its entirety or at least so modify it as to restore to the producers the use of the packers' facilities for distribution." Armour and Wilson, the petition says, are willing to distribute foodstuffs with their facilities on a commission basis.

"By this method," the petition continues, "the speculative features in the handling of foods would be absolutely eliminated and the producer would be in direct competition with all food speculators." Such a plan, which the petition says would meet the approval of the Department of Agriculture, "would enable the producers, canners and food manufacturers to reach small dealers at the lowest possible cost while the consumption of the products would be increased because of the lower prices, and thus both the producing and consuming classes would be benefited."

With the petition Mr. Hogan submitted a report by an interdepartmental committee which recently was transmitted to the Senate by Attorney General Daugherty. The Departments of Agriculture, Commerce and Justice were represented on the committee, which suggested that the California producers apply directly to the District Court for modification of the injunction. The petition indicates that notice will be given to all the canners, growers and packers of the application filed today. After giving notice, Mr. Hogan will on April 24 apply to the court for an order giving California canneries a right to enter the litigation.

In conclusion the California petition states:

"If the injunction be not promptly vacated or modified, the very extensive and economic facilities of the packers for food distribution will entirely disappear and the producers and consumers will be left at the mercy of the wholesale grocers, as no system of distribution other than theirs will be available. The destruction of the packers' system of food distribution will not tend to bring the cost of food back to normalcy, nor will the denial of the future right to use such facilities keep down the cost of food. A condition as to the future is not in the best interests of the public but serves only the selfish purposes of the wholesale grocers."

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—The action of the California Co-operative Canneries in the suit is the outgrowth of a hearing on the effects of the decree before an informal but official commission in Washington last November. The hearing was occasioned by an appeal made by the chief co-operative spokesmen to the Attorney General, asking him to use his influence to have the decree modified.

The California Canneries' League protested the action of the co-operative organization and a commission was appointed to hear the protest.

It developed in the hearing that Armour & Co. held a $500,000 mortgage on the properties of the co-operative organization in San Jose and Visalia and that the packing company was directly interested in the distribution of the organization's output.

The Attorney General declined to be quoted and today's action followed.

There is a lot about desks that the average man knows little about—the construction of the writing bed, how built up and how framed, the thickness and matching of the veneers, the mitering and building-up of the legs, the construction of the roll-tops and side arms, the quality of the hardware and, finally, the finish.

And it's the same with chairs—the design, construction, quality of upholstering and the strength and grade of springs.

All of this is very important to the purchaser and when he buys from Globe-Wernicke stock he is assured of getting the best for the price, in these respects, that his money will secure.

Helps digestion

Thousands of men and women have found relief from various digestive disturbances by eating Fleischmann's Yeast.

It is human nature to want to find out "why." So far as science can tell us this is the reason:

Fleischmann's Yeast is a food abundant in certain elements which are necessary to health and life itself. It promotes the flow of bile and of peptogastric juice. It has a remarkably beneficial effect on the whole digestive process. It cleans a coated tongue.

Try Fleischmann's fresh yeast in orange juice or in milk. Men like it in milk shakes and malted milks. Women like it spread on bread or crackers.

Keep your digestion in the pink of condition and your tongue clean and healthy by eating 3 or 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast fresh every day before or between meals. Be sure it's Fleischmann's Yeast—the familiar tin-foil package with the yellow label. Place a standing order with your grocer today.

The stage is set for the last act in this great moving drama of history

IF you are a Jew, you are asked to read this message.

You are asked to devote a few moments of really earnest thought to a matter of transcendent importance. You are asked nothing less than to help make history. Upon what you do, or fail to do, at this moment, the future of millions will depend.

Thirty-two centuries ago, one of the great figures of human history, Moses, led a little band of intrepid people out into the world upon a great adventure. They had been slaves under one of the mightiest of ancient Egyptian despots—one of a score of other conquered tribes, so many of which have been wiped out—spurlos versenkt—by fire and blood and sword in the course of history.

But this little band was not to be wiped out. They were rebels in an age when it took a truly brave heart to dare even to think of being free. One of them was an ancestor of yours.

They broke their way out of Egypt—your ancestor among them, remember—enduring unimaginable hardships, crossing sea and desert, fighting incessantly as they went, until they arrived at a land, Canaan, where they established themselves and laid the foundations of a nation.

There, for over fifteen hundred years—for almost fifteen times the period that this nation of ours has existed—in a time when tumultuous movements of population were taking place all over the known world, the still hardy descendants of these hardy pioneers hung on to the little edge of the world they called their own, repelling grimly and bravely the attacks of mighty empires that surrounded them.

And they became one of the great peoples of antiquity. Great not in size, but great, surely, in achievement. For, through their prophets and poets and religious teachers, this little group of ancient people, with Greece and Rome, impressed their influence more profoundly upon modern civilization than any other race in history.

Then at last, Rome destroyed them. They could not withstand the irresistible march of Roman conquest. But they would not be subdued. There was continual insubordination, insurrection, armed rebellion, until at last in desperation one of the Caesars determined utterly to destroy "this stubborn, stiff-necked people."

Their beloved land, sacred to them, fruitful for over fifteen hundred years, was laid bare and desolate; their cities were razed to the ground; by the tens of thousands they were butchered or were driven out of Palestine into the slave markets of Rome and Alexandria. Judaea was no more!

Such has been the fate of many a people in history. It is a common story. And the usual end to the story is—extinction. The scattered people, rooted away from the soil on which it throve so lustily, dies out quickly; it is annihilated, it becomes a memory.

But the remarkable thing about this romance of an ancient people is—that it did not end at this point. Uprooted from their ancient homeland, they still took something away with them; they took their books and their culture with them; they took with them a good physical and intellectual inheritance; a consuming love of freedom; a passion for truth and learning; a burning impatience with injustice; a "practical idealism" that the bitterest misfortune could not sour nor extinguish. Scattered like leaves over the ancient world—penniless, homeless, cruelly down-trodden wanderers—they still survived by reason of this ancient heritage.

There is no need to recount to you what happened to the remnants of this people in the next two thousand years.

Theirs has been an almost continuous martyrdom in behalf of freedom of conscience. What lands have they not been in? What nations have not oppressed them? They have been the prey for ages of superstition and bigotry and intolerance; they have been burned at the stakes by tens of thousands; they have been tortured on rack and screw; they have been the mark through centuries for the slander and lies of the ignorant; during the middle ages they were driven wholesale—poverty-stricken, defenceless—from one city into another; from one land into another.

And to what end did they bear all this? At any time these ancestors of yours could have escaped this life of perpetual persecution and discrimination by assuming to believe what they did not believe. It was a very simple matter. Tens of thousands of them did so—yes, probably hundreds of thousands. But your ancestors were not among those who renounced their heritage. Why were they not—have you ever thought?

Because, consciously or unconsciously, they wanted to transmit to their children, and to their children's children—to you who read this—something of the quality that they themselves had received, unimpaired and strong, from their own fathers.

They made you what you are, one of these patient, humble, heroic men and women. If there is any quality within yourself that you respect, be thankful to them! If there is any constancy to an ideal within you, be thankful to them! If there is any love for truth and justice in you, be thankful to them! If there is any pride of intelligence within you, be thankful to them! What you are, they made you! And all of them—your father, his father, and their fathers long before them—all of them are watching within you at this moment, to see how you face a test as searching as any to which they were ever put.

For today every man and woman of Jewish race in the world has had placed before him an unexampled privilege.

The crisis in this romance of a great and ancient people has come!

Today the enlightened Powers of the world—empires far greater than Rome, Greece or Egypt ever were—have proclaimed to the Jewish people: "You may at last rebuild Palestine! You may send your pioneers there anew! You may rebuild the country. You may make it blossom as it blossomed two thousand years ago. You may establish new industries there! You may again make this Holy land—this land sacred to all the world because of its memories—a little center of light and learning, as it was two thousand years ago. And you may do this under our protection!"

This is not a dream, it is hard, stark, naked reality. On November 2, 1917—in the height of the Great War—Arthur James Balfour, a member of the British Cabinet, speaking in the name of his government, made this historic announcement:

> "His Majesty's Government views with favor the establishment in Palestine of a National Home for the Jewish people, and will use their best endeavors to facilitate the achievement of this object—"

The British Government has pledged its word to see Palestine restored to the Jewish people! And this was only the beginning. Within a year other great Powers endorsed this declaration—France, Italy, Japan, China.

Woodrow Wilson, on August 3, 1918, placed the stamp of his approval on the Zionist movement, which for almost twenty years had been striving for a legally-secured home for Jews in Palestine.

President Harding has taken the same stand within the last year, giving public expression to his friendly interest in the Zionist cause.

Today, there is hardly a responsible liberal statesman or publicist in the world who does not look upon this project with the heartiest favor and the deepest interest.

Is there any romance in history more stirring and inspiring than this? A little people establishes a nation on the farthest banks of the Mediterranean thirty-two hundred years ago. For fifteen hundred years it flourishes. It becomes, so far as its value to the world is concerned, a truly great nation. Then it is rooted away ruthlessly from its soil. Its people are scattered over the world. But they do not die out. They retain something of their original individuality among the races of the world. For two thousand years they go through fire and hell to preserve an ideal. And now in our day, in this day, under our eyes, this people is given the opportunity, under the protection of great modern states, to attempt to do again what it did thirty-two hundred years ago!

And at what a period this historic opportunity comes! It coincides, fatefully, with one of the bitterest tragedies that Jews have been obliged to suffer in all their long history. The Great War and its aftermath have left millions of your brethren in Europe in a condition so pitiful and tragic that those who have seen it, and attempt to describe it, become perforce silent, because of lack of words.

The most horrible scenes of the war took place in the centers of Jewish population, in Poland and the Ukraine. Back and forth over these homes the multitudinous armies of Germany, Austria and Russia marched, countermarched and battled—while Jewish soldiers on each side fought against each other. What could possibly become of a population in the midst of such an area?

And even this was not enough! After the declaration of peace, there broke out in these areas, through Poland and the Ukraine, a series of bloodthirsty massacres—at the hands chiefly of irresponsible brigands—that made the old horrible pogroms of the Czars seem, in comparison, like the playful jokes of children.

You have seen photographs of naked children, with the piteous appeal of hunger in their eyes. You have seen photographs of ragged mothers scouring in waste places to find food for their loved ones. You have seen photographs of corpses in great piles,—men, women and children butchered ruthlesaly. You have seen photographs of children outrageously wounded—wounded children, mind you! You have seen old, old men and women trudging, trudging along roads—going whither, whither? Only to places where there can be but equal misery, worse famine, deeper despair!

It is to these people—you should know—that the promised land of Palestine appears today as bright a lodestar as it did to the Israelites in Egypt over three thousand years ago. The strongest and bravest among them, the youngest and eagerest, are craving—simply craving—the chance to return to this land of their fathers.

In spite of all their misery, they are inspired as they have never been in the past. They are stinting and scraping and starving themselves to go. Thousands of them have tramped through Europe to the ports. In the environs of Warsaw alone there are over thirty thousand young men and women waiting—waiting over—for a slim chance that will take them again into a land of freedom, into their own land of freedom.

So the stage is set for the last act in this great moving drama of history. And the end is one you shall write—you who read this. You are the hand of God now.

These pioneers are straining every nerve to reach Palestine and rebuild this ancient land. These earnest young men and women—fresh with the idealism of youth—offer their lives and their fortunes as bricks for the future of a reborn Jewish people. Everything is set for the opportunity.

Palestine is now being governed by Great Britain under a mandate conferred upon it by the San Remo Conference of the Allied Powers.

A British High Commissioner, Sir Herbert Samuel, a Jew, has assumed the reins of government.

The land, rewon during the war partly by a Jewish Legion—young Jewish soldiers from England, France, Russia and even America—is open wide to colonisation and development.

Seventy-one Jewish agricultural colonies—some established independently forty years ago—are thriving under the plows of over 15,000 free and independent Jewish farmers.

There are Jewish schools, colleges, agricultural experiment stations.

Over 90,000 Jews have made their way into this ancient land and are doing each their little bit to re-develop it.

Still more remarkable. These people have relearned their ancient language—they have revived ancient Hebrew, a language only recently as dead as Greek or Latin. It is the language of their daily converse.

And back of these colonists stand some of the ablest men of your race—scholars, scientists, engineers, agricultural experts, economists, organizers, experts in every branch of commerce and production.

So the situation stands.

Here is a land, beloved in the memories of the whole civilized world, offered to the Jewish people by the great Powers.

Here is a remarkable work of regeneration already begun, in large part, by independent colonists.

Here are tens of thousands of Jewish youth in Eastern Europe ready to devote—not a moment or a day—but their entire lives to the accomplishment of this surpassing ideal.

And here is a body behind them of competent experts, ready to guide and assist these colonists in settling and developing the land.

Will such a great project fail now?

Can it fail?

Will you allow it to fail?

* * *

All that is needed now are funds. Tens of thousands of pioneers are waiting for the means with which to reach Palestine. The strongest have tramped across half a continent to get there. But when they reach the sea they must stop.

Money is needed for ships to carry them. Houses are needed to shelter them when they arrive. Schools are needed to take care of their children. Money is needed for far-visioned projects of irrigation and reclamation, the plans for which have been drawn up by the ablest engineers. Still more capital is needed to help build roads and railroads. Ploughs are needed to till the soil. Banks are needed, machinery is needed, tools are needed. And these young men and women have nothing—only their bare hands and their unconquerable will.

What is the least you can do in such a situation—you who are already blessed with a land that you love and revere? Give! Give until your own conscience is satisfied. No matter how small or how great your wealth, what after all can it do for you comparable to such a need as this? If you sacrificed but one-tenth of it, one one-hundredth of it, you would not miss it a week from today.

If this glorious opportunity is lost now—upon you, it is perfectly clear, rests the final responsibility. If it fails, upon you and you alone will be the shame before the bar of history. If it fails, there will be but one reason—because you, in this extraordinary crisis, failed to do your little part.

But it will not, it cannot fail. It cannot be, in the face of these facts, that you will be apathetic. Here is a privilege that will come to a man—not once in a lifetime, but once perhaps in ages. How can you resist it?

Forty centuries of history are watching you at this moment. The far-off generations look to you out of the twilight of the past. The warriors and prophets and teachers of ancient Judaea are watching you. The martyrs of Spain and Poland and Russia are watching you, they who died that you might be what you are. The victims of a thousand massacres, men and woman and helpless little children, they, too, are watching you.

In the eyes of all of them there is a single question:

> "Will the land of our Fathers now be restored to us, or have we suffered and died in vain?"

MACNIDER PLEADS FOR 150,000 ARMY

Tells the Senate Committee That American Legion Opposes a Lower Minimum.

FAVORS 13,000 OFFICERS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The American Legion is unalterably opposed to a reduction in the officer and enlisted personnel of the regular army, such as is being urged in both houses of Congress. The position of the Legion is that the regular army should not be reduced below 150,000 men, and that the Reserve Officers Training Corps, the National Guard and the organized reserves should be maintained on a basis that will make possible a national defense organization as desired by President Harding, General Pershing and Secretary Weeks.

That such a program represents the views of a great majority of the men who served in the European war was the statement today of Hanford MacNider, Commander of the American Legion, before the Senate Committee on Appropriations. Since its organization it has been the view of the Legion, Mr. MacNider said, that the United States "should have a military policy that would prevent a recurrence of our deplorable lack of preparedness during the World War, with all the grief that came in its train."

"The American Legion," Mr. MacNider continued," is here to protest against the manner in which the House passed the Army Appropriation bill, and believes that radical reductions made for the maintenance of the regular army, the National Guard and the organized reserves is the first step toward undermining the splendid military policy expressed by Congress in the Army Reorganization act of 1920. The Legion unqualifiedly backs up the President, General Pershing and the Secretary of War in their position that necessary appropriations should be provided to maintain our defense organization on an efficient scale.

Plea for Appropriations.

"The American Legion also supports the position that approximately 150,000 men is the minimum number needed for the regular army, and indorses the recommendation of General Pershing that the number of officers should be fixed at approximately 13,000, this number to be reached by July, 1923.

"The Legion desires to point out that the decrease in appropriation for the National Guard will seriously handicap its morale and effectiveness, and especially urges that the first line of our citizen army be provided with the increased appropriations required for its Summer field training, as it would be most unfortunate to say to a large number of the National Guard that they cannot go to the Summer training camps because of lack of appropriations. It must be realized that this period of training is the most attractive in the entire year to the National Guard, and any failure to provide the funds will be most discouraging, not only to those who are at present in its ranks but a warning to the potential recruits of the future.

"The American Legion is disappointed that the House appropriation for the Officers Reserve Corps has been limited to such an extent as to discourage this splendid component of our army. It is useless to expect the officers of the Reserve Corps to continue their active interest if provisions are not made for their training at least once every three years, which was the purpose of the appropriation approved by the Budget Committee. We urge the maintenance of this appropriation to train annually for fifteen days about 20,000 reserve officers.

Urges Continuance of Training.

"The Legion has an intimate interest in the development of the Reserve Officers Training Corps and the citizens military training camps as an important part of our national military policy, and recognizes that the money invested in a reasonable amount of military training and discipline is essential to the best development of young America, and the benefits of this training will be useful to the individual and the nation in the proper preparation for peace as well as war, and the Legion urges the appropriations that have been recommended by the War Department for this purpose.

"The American Legion does not insist upon either the regular establishment or the National Guard functioning at the strength provided for in the Army Reorganization act, but does believe that appropriations that provide for less than 50 per cent. of the strength originally planned (280,000 in the regular establishment and 425,000 in the National Guard) weaken our national security and represent such meagre provisions as cannot help but jeopardize our ability to take upon short notice a national position of readiness.

"It is the judgment of the American Legion that the sentiment 'back home' supports our position, and as men who have seen with their own eyes the horrors of unpreparedness, we pledge our honest efforts to President Harding and General Pershing in their endeavor not to have reduced the means for an adequate national defense below a well-recognized line of national safety."

130 Acres for National Cathedral.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Donation of 130 acres of city property to complete the site for the national cathedral here was announced today at the annual meeting of the National Cathedral Association. Canon and Mrs. J. Townsend Russell were the donors of the property, which had been successively the home of Admiral Dewey, Senators Dixon of Montana and Brady of Idaho, and Secretary of War Baker. The tract has been valued at upward of $400,000.

Upholds Nebraska Language Laws.

LINCOLN, Neb., April 19.—The constitutionality of the Nebraska language law, which prohibits teaching of the German language in public, private, parochial and denominational schools until the pupil has passed the eighth grade, was upheld by the Nebraska Supreme Court today. The Court held the law was a reasonable exercise of the State's police power.

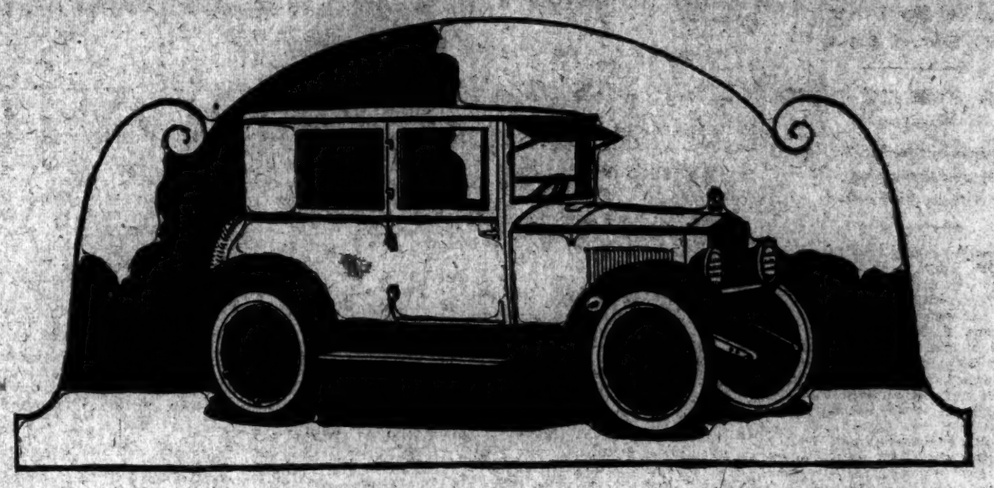
Essex Coach $1345 F.O.B. Detroit



To See It is to Want It
The Price Makes It Easy

All want such advantages as the Essex Coach combines. They were beyond most pockets in the past.

This new type gives them in full measure—at little more than the cost of the open models.

Is it any wonder the Coach met such instant success? Or that its first welcome has steadily grown?

Prior to the Essex Coach, consider what a buyer could get around $1400. He had the choice of a closed car without distinction and little performance ability. If he wanted better performance he had no choice at that price except an open car.

The Coach now couples the beauty, comfort and luxury of an unusually fine closed body, with the exceptional reliability and performance of the well-proved Essex chassis. But it does not mean greatly added price.

And it continues the savings of its first cost in its economy of fuel, oil and tires, as well as small cost of upkeep.

Come see the Coach. You will surely want it. Price is now no bar to owning the fine quality, performance and distinction that heretofore cost more than most men wanted to pay.

Has These Fine Car Details
Dash controlled ventilator.
Wind and rainproof windshield.
Fine quality plate glass windows.
Sun visor.
Luggage and tool locker, opened from rear.
Newest type easy operating crank-handle lifts on door-windows.
Four hinges on each door, and fittings that hold doors solid—very important.
Fine texture, long wearing upholstery and rugs.
Radiator shutters and motometer for efficient motor control.
Cord tires.

How long has this been going on?

MEN naturally fall into two groups on all sorts of questions. Some think cheerfully and are optimists. Others think sourly and are pessimists. It is largely by accident that one is a liberal and the other a conservative, or that one believes in Santa Claus and the other doesn't.

That is why certain men just naturally see the place that printed matter has in selling. They wouldn't dream of asking their salesmen to undertake their work without the support of mailings.

And opposite these are the doubters. "Circulars," they say, "are as common as dirt. Can't be effective." And so their salesmen carry the whole load of selling.

Once in a while, by accident, one of these doubters tries the effect of printed mailings. If it is a good campaign, he gets results that open his eyes, and he wonders, "How long has this been going on?"

YANKEES GET EVEN BREAK IN BOSTON

Drop Opening Game of Double Bill to Red Sox, 5 to 3, but Win Second, 6 to 1.

MILLER STAR ON ATTACK

Outfielder Scores Homer, Triple and Two Singles in Nightcap—Hoyt Pitches Good Ball.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 19.—It is generally supposed to be Summer time when the double-header season starts in the big leagues, but whoever is responsible for the weather in Boston is apparently unaware of that. Anyhow the Yanks and Red Sox played the first twin bill of the current season in a park which offered an ideal temperature for Eskimo Pie. Every one except the three umpires, however, got a fair break at the Patriot's Day bargain bill.

Each team won a ball game, the Red Sox the first one, before the Yankees had gotten warm enough to care much about what was going on, by a score of 5 to 3, and the New Yorkers the nightcap by 6 to 1. The 15,000 spectators also must have known what they were facing and, since most of them hung on until the last man was out, they also deserve little consideration, but it was different with the umpires. Some one should take up with Ban Johnson the question of supplying his arbiters with fur coats for the early season games, especially for days like today where they are forced to stay out on a wind-swept diamond through an entire afternoon.

To get along to the games, the Yankees pounded Allan Russell and his successor, Cliff Fullerton, savagely in the second contest after having submitted to some indignities at the hands of Jack Quinn, a former mate, in the curtain-raiser. Elmer Miller, the playing-through member of Huggins's mighty outfield, was the leader of this vicious attack, crashing out a home run, a triple and a brace of singles in five trips to the plate. Russell, himself a former Yank, as is almost every other player of the Hub contingent, had little with which to deceive and with Waite Hoyt, the boy-wonder of Flatbush, going at his best the Bostonians had even less than the proverbial Chinaman's chance of victory in the second game.

Good Start in Second Game.

The Hugmen were sorely nettled at the outcome of the opener and they made this mood manifest in the very first inning of the sunset session. Miller led them to a flying start by beating out an infield hit. He stole a base Fewster struck out and kept right on to third when Pratt and Pittenger failed to reach an agreement as to which was to cover second. Walter, therefore, through no great fault of his own, was charged with an error when his throw rolled to the outfield. Old Quinn, Frank Baker whipped a sacrifice fly to centre and Miller scored. McMillan, who must have heard some of this talk which has been going around about his being displaced, singled, as did Pipp. Ward was passed. Joe Dugan fumbled Scott's roller and McMillan trooped home with number two. Schang grounded out to Russell.

Hoyt himself led the attack in the second frame, in which two more of the sextet of markers were produced. The big blond pitcher singled, Miller tripled and Fewster sacrificed. The New York mauulers were docile in the third, but that was probably because Miller failed to get a chance to bat. He was up again in the fourth, and, tired of running by this time, he Babe Ruthed one over the left field fence and on to wherever foul balls go and jogged around the bases at as slow a gait as the weather would allow.

The Red Sox produced a pitiful marker in the fifth, and this so surprised and aroused the Yankees that they duplicated it in the sixth. The Bos scored on Pittenger's walk, Russell's out and Collins's single over short. The Yankees tallied on Scott's single, outs by Schang and Hoyt and Miller's fourth hit, a one-ply blow to centre. Miller came up again in the eighth, but merely got the better of him and he grounded out to short.

McMillan in Excellent Form.

Outside of this hitting, there was little else of note in the contest. McMillan played a bang-up game, and unless Whitey Witt decides to report before long he may find that there is no job waiting for him when he arrives. Aaron Ward protested so vigorously on a called strike in the second that Umpire Wilson sent him to the showers. Ward probably wasn't much put out, because the showers, theoretically, at least, were warm. McNally took the vacated place at second.

The first game illustrated a frequently remarked fact that a friend turned against a friend can be a bitter enemy, indeed. The example was offered in the feather portly shape of Pitcher John Picus, better known by those who frequent the Polo Grounds as "Old Jack Quinn." Quinn, a graduate of the Miller Huggins school for pitchers, gave his former instructor a bit of the birch by turning the present collection of Yankee undergraduates back with nary a run after an inauspicious first inning.

From all indications, Mr. Quinn has been harboring an ambition along these lines for several days. On Monday he had the Yankees at a 3 to 0 disadvantage when the rain came and balked him of his intended prey. However, having no lack of determination, he came back at his former playmates today and realized his desire in rather decisive fashion.

For a time today it appeared as if the shoe was to be worn on the other foot: that the Yankees were to be in a position to gloat over "Old Jack's" discomfort. The New Yorkers shoved three runs, their crop for the game, across in the opening frame. This trinity materialized out of successive hits by Fewster, Baker, McMillan and Pipp and Ward's out.

Mays, who was intended to restrain Quinn in his quest for revenge, started off as one of the leading pitchers of the American League should, and it was not until the sixth that Boston got a run across.

YANKEES TO OPEN HOME SEASON TODAY

Will Raise American League Pennant at Polo Grounds—Giants in Brooklyn.

FANS ARE PROMISED FAIR BUT WINDY WEATHER TODAY.

The official forecast of the New York Weather Bureau for today is for fair weather, but with strong westerly winds and probably rales. While this may not be pleasant for players or fans, it seems to assure the opening of the American League season at the Polo Grounds this afternoon between the Yankees and the Senators and of the start of the National League season at Ebbets Field between the Robins and the Giants.

Today is the day for the Yankees and the Robins. Up at the Polo Grounds, with the Washington Senators and Mayor John F. Hylan collaborating, the American League team will open its home season. Over at Ebbets Field the Giants and Dodgers will raise the curtain with an appropriate flourish, including the usual march to the flag pole and the raising of the Stars and Stripes. Both games will begin at 3:30 o'clock.

The Yankees are not merely going to open another home season. The program as announced yesterday reveals that the American League pennant will be raised to the top of the Polo Grounds flag pole before the game and set fluttering in the breeze from Coogan's Bluff. In the eyes of all Yankee fans, this will be the day of days, for the pennant will be the first ever captured by a New York team since the American League was founded twenty-odd years ago.

Mayor Hylan will get his second and last chance to throw out that first ball today. Last week at the Giants' opening, it will be recalled, his Honor failed to come through with the traditional ceremony. But he reported last night that the old right wing was in fair shape and could probably stand the strain of at least one pitch this afternoon.

The Early Ceremonies.

The gates will open at 12:30 to take care of the early rush, and a half hour later, Professor Franko's band will begin tuning up in the shadow of the grand stand. After the rival gladiators have come on the field and proceeded through the usual batting and fielding practices, the march to the flag pole will begin. Both teams will hike in single file to the appointed spot and after brief ceremonies the pennant will be hoisted to the top. Following that bit of business, all hands will repair back to the home plate, and the Mayor will hurl a new ball on to the diamond. Then will come "The Star-Spangled Banner" and finally the game.

Conjectures last night as to the Yankees' pitching selection centred around the name of Samuel Jones, whom the Yanks bagged from Boston last year in the celebrated deal that also brought Everett Scott and Joe Bush to the Huggins fold. Mays and Hoyt pitched in yesterday's double-header at Boston, leaving only Jones and Bob Shawkey available for duty at the opening game. Erickson or Zachary looms up as the likely nomination of Clyde Milan of the Senators.

Whether Whitey Witt, the Yanks' newest outfielder, will be in the line-up depends on the matter of Whitey signing a contract some time today. Ed Barrow, business manager of the Ruppert-Huston forces, said yesterday that Witt had not signed a 1922 contract with the Athletics when Connie Mack traded him last Monday. The player, therefore, will have to arrive at terms and sign a contract with the Yanks before he can play. Witt had not reported to Huggins yesterday, but Barrow expects him to punch the clock this morning and put his signature to a contract.

Calder Is Elected.

Senator William M. Calder will throw out the first ball at Ebbets Field—the first time, according to the Brooklyn officials, that a United States Senator has opened the season in Brooklyn. Not so unusual, however, is the fact that Shannon's Band will provide the musical program and that the rival teams will march out to the flagpole to raise the Stars and Stripes. Managers Robinson and McGraw will lead the athletes in the parade.

The Giants and Boston Braves spent another idle day yesterday, and the Robins and Phillies also encountered rain in Philadelphia. McGraw had Phil Douglas all primed for the last game with the Braves and will probably send him against the Brooklyn crowd today. Dazzy Vance or Burleigh Grimes will offer the rebuttal for the home team.

The probable line-up follows:

CLEVELAND, April 19.—St. Louis broke Cleveland's winning streak today by winning, 15 to 1. Van Gilder held Cleveland to three hits, duplicating his feat of last Saturday, when he shut out the White Sox. Coveleskie failed to show his usual form, but was much better than Pott or Keefe. BIG LEAGUES ARE ATTACKED IN SUIT

Supreme Court Hears Plea on Sherman Law From Baltimore Baseball Club.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 19.—Professional baseball as represented by major and minor leagues, operating under the national agreement, was attacked today in the Supreme Court by counsel for the Baltimore club of the defunct Federal League, in arguing the suit of that club for damages alleged to have been suffered when the Federal League disbanded under a "peace" agreement with organized baseball.

The Baltimore club contended that professional baseball teams under their schedules engage in interstate commerce, and that parties to the national agreement constitute a monopoly in restraint of interstate commerce in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. The decision of the Court in passing upon the white slave traffic act, the plaintiffs asserted, clearly established that transportation of individuals across State lines was interstate commerce over which Congress had jurisdiction.

Senator Pepper's Argument.

While transit across State lines is an essential feature of professional baseball, Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania, counsel for the major leagues, argued it was not the end in view, but merely the means of getting the players to the point at which the contest was to be played. He likened such transportation to the sending of a surgeon's tools into another State for use in an operation Senator Pepper insisted, however, that the important question before the Court was whether the playing of the games was within the scope of commercial regulation, since the "mere fact that the players habitually and necessarily cross State lines is not legally a material circumstance."

The Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, reversing a decision of the Supreme Court of the District awarding the Baltimore club damages of $240,000, had held, Senator Pepper pointed out, that professional baseball teams were not engaged in interstate commerce.

The world's championship series would have to be "done away with" should the national agreement be held unlawful, Senator Pepper declared.

Attitude of Congress in Question.

"No statute can be construed as applying to combinations to regulate sport," he said, "unless Congress has plainly indicated an intention that this should happen."

The Court must decide whether organized baseball is "above the law, or the law is above them." Counsel for the Baltimore club said, contending that the whole defense in this case rests on the assumption "that the life of the business of providing exhibitions of professional baseball as they (organized baseball) conduct it, depends not upon competition, but upon the complicated and complete restraint and regulation thereof."

Organized baseball magnates are "highwaymen" and professional ball players are "chattels and slaves," counsel for the Baltimore Club asserted. The officers of the Federal League, they added, "betrayed" the Baltimore Club by "selling out" to organized baseball.

The reserve clause of the contracts of professional ball players resulted in their being "bought and sold" like slaves, counsel for the Baltimore Club insisted, declaring that the ball players were held in "peonage." The reserve clause, coupled with the "blacklist" for those players who did not observe it, makes organized baseball, it was contended, a complete monopoly which makes it impossible for rival organizations to enter the field successfully.

ARMY SCORES SHUT-OUT.

Sarcka, Plebe Pitcher, Allows Catholic University Only Two Hits.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, April 19.—Army shut out Catholic University today, 4 to 0. Sarcka, a plebe pitcher, was invincible, allowing only two scattered safeties. Army's heavy hitters unlooosed in the seventh, when they fell upon Jackson, slamming out five singles, a double and a sacrifice, which resulted in a quartet of tallies.

Fast fielding by the collegians saved Jackson from a worse defeat. Stofck's one-hand pick-up and perfect throw of Corwin's grasse in the seventh and Wilhide's work around the midway were features of the game. Cold weather prevailed.

MACPHEE TIGER CAPTAIN.

Second Baseman Succeeds McNamara as Princeton Leader.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 19.—Walter S. MacPhee of Brooklyn has been elected captain of the Princeton baseball team to succeed Tom McNamara, who resigned two weeks ago because of ineligibility. The vote was taken by mail because the rules require that the members of last year's team have a voice in the naming of a new leader.

MacPhee, who as a senior, played short stop on the 1922 nine and for the past three years has held down the Keystone sack on the varsity. He is one of the most consistent players on the Tiger squad and, according to John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, is one of the best second basemen in college circles. He prepared at Erasmus High School, Brooklyn.

In addition to being on the nine, MacPhee has earned his letter in football and in hockey.

HOLY CROSS WINS FROM DARTMOUTH

Scores Nine Runs in Opening Inning at Worcester and Takes Game, 10 to 3.

Special to The New York Times.

WORCESTER, Mass., April 19.—Holy Cross started its home season today by defeating Dartmouth, 10 to 3, in a slowly played game. The Purple hitters batted Lyons out of the box in the opening frame, after two were out, scoring nine runs. Steinhilder, who relieved Lyons, checked the Purple and did good work for Dartmouth, allowing but four hits. Horan, the Purple twirler, kept the Green hitters under control throughout, but showed some wildness.

Martin, the Holy Cross catcher, got the first home run of the season with a long drive to deep centre. Two singles and a double in the fourth gave the visitors two runs. In the ninth, a double by Maynard and an error gave Dartmouth another score. The heavy condition of the field checked fast work.

LEHIGH BUNCHES HITS.

Bethlehem Collegians Trim Villa Nova, 8 to 3, in Drizzle.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., April 19.—With a heavy drizzle falling throughout the greater part of the game, Lehigh this afternoon defeated Villa Nova by the score of 8 to 3. Lehigh was fortunate in scoring the first two runs, both tallies being registered when McDonald dropped the third strike on Rote and Johnson and both scored on Larkin's single.

Meader completely baffled the Lehigh batsmen up to the sixth inning, allowing only two hits. Villa Nova tied the count in the second, when two runs were scored on singles by Counolly, Bradley, Krieg and O'Donnell. Lees replaced Adams in the third, when a single by McDonald, followed by Krieg's double, scored another run. From then on the visitors never threatened, and Light relieved Lees in the ninth.

Lehigh's rally in the sixth started with a pass to Adams. Larkin, Rowley, Hess and Rote each hit safely, and on these and an error by Clifford, Lehigh scored five runs. Lehigh added another in the seventh, when Johnson, after tripling, scored on Larkin's third hit to left field.

The Main Liners made as many hits as Lehigh, but after bunching four in the second the remainder were kept widely scattered.

SERVATIUS TAKES BILLIARD MATCH

Eliminates Spear From Poggenburg Cup Tourney—Steinbugler Beats Mathews.

By losing to Louis A. Servatius in the 18.2 balkline billiard handicap play for the Poggenburg Cup, in progress at the Recreation Billiard Academy in Brooklyn, last night, George W. Spear was eliminated from the tournament, while his successful opponent won his way into the finals.

Both men were playing for 125 points, and in his victory Servatius attained the high average of 7 6-17, displaying wonderful form and winning, 125 to 32. In the other match of the night, C. J. Steinbugler, Class C, defeated C. P. Mathews, Class B, the final score being 125 to 148. Mathews was playing for 173. Steinbugler matched Servatius's high average mark.

In the opening match between Servatius and Spear, the latter was outclassed from the beginning, Servatius starting with a big lead which he kept on increasing until he had completed his string. He had a high run of 20, which he made in the tenth inning, while Spear's high average was 3 4-16 and his high run 13.

In his match with Mathews, Steinbugler got away to a poor start but his handicap proved too great an obstacle for the former to overcome. Despite his defeat, Mathews played excellent billiards and, in the early innings, piled up a commanding lead. Toward the end, however, Steinbugler, by virtue of several runs of ten or more, gained his goal while his opponent was two points below the 150 mark. Steinbugler's high run was 20. Mathews averaged 8 12-17 and had a high run of 53, which he hung up in the fifth inning.

The play tonight will bring together Sidney Brussel, Class C, and Julian Rice, Class B, in one match, and Jacob Klinger, Class A, and C. J. Steinbugler, Class C, in the other.

The score by innings:

Steinbugler (Class C)—0 0 13 0 1 16 20 15 7 9 20 0 7 0 6 17 3. Total, 125; average, 7 6-17; high run, 20.

Mathews (Class B)—2 3 17 3 52 9 10 7 0 0 6 11 28 0 0 2 0. Total, 148; average, 8 12-17; high run, 53.

Servatius (Class C)—8 12 1 12 17 2 0 7 9 20 0 11 14 4 2 0 11. Total, 125; average, 7 6-17; high run, 20.

Spear (Class C)—6 4 0 2 0 0 0 0 13 12 4 2 0 0 0 5. Total, 82; average, 3 4-16; high run, 13.

Clarkson had an average of 8 28-94 and a high run of 31, while Appleby's high average was 7 31-34 and his high cluster 55.

GARGAN ABSOLVES FORDHAM PLAYERS

Visits Waterbury to Investigate Alleged Appearance of Eight Men in Baseball Game.

Frank Gargan's personal investigation into the Easter Sunday baseball game at Waterbury, Conn., between the Waterbury Club of the Eastern League and the so-called "Fordham Collegians" further absolves the eight Maroon players whose names were used in the playing of the game. Yesterday the Fordham graduate athletic manager made a special trip to Waterbury, and last night he sent the following telegram from there:

"Thoroughly convinced after interviewing President John F. Bulger and Michael J. Moran, Secretary of the Waterbury Baseball Club; sporting writers of local papers and college graduates who knew members of the Fordham team that no members of the present Fordham team appeared here Sunday and played against Waterbury Eastern League team. It is well known that Halloran, who played on Fordham last year, arranged the game with Michael J. Moran and advertised the same as 'Fordham Collegians.' Similarity of names was used for advertising purposes."

This telegram apparently clears the eight men, Captain Tim McNamara, Ed Cousineau, Harry Schermerhorn, Gus Shankey, Ed Malley, Mike Dunn, Hal Keough and Dick Donovan, all of whom now hold regular positions on the 1922 Fordham nine, of having appeared in the line-up of the so-called "collegians" against Waterbury. The affidavits sworn to by these eight men, to the effect that they took no part in the game, had already satisfied Gargan, personally, on that score. There were so many unexplainable diverse versions to the affair, however, that Gargan felt it necessary for him to go to Waterbury to conduct a thorough investigation.

Though it appears that the most important facts in the affair have been cleared up, there are many details, in the opinion of many Fordham men, that remain to be explained. They point out that there is still a lot of mystery as to what uniforms the "collegians" wore, as to how the umpire came to announce their battery as McNamara and Cousineau and as to the reason the line-up of the "collegians" as sent to the New York papers was practically the same as that of the Fordham University team and not the same line-up which Halloran said he gave to the Waterbury scorers. A full explanation of these facts, it was said last night, will be sought by Gargan.

Victims of Injustice, Says Gargan.

WATERBURY, April 19.—Frank Gargan, Graduate Manager of Athletics at Fordham University, after interviewing scores of baseball fans, officials of the local Eastern League baseball clubs and newspaper men here today in investigating the charges that the Fordham varsity baseball team played against the Waterbury club on Sunday in an unauthorized game, said he is convinced that the players whose names were mentioned in newspapers as having played here are victims of an injustice.

Gargan has testimony from many who saw Sunday's game that the players who appeared here under the name of the "Fordham Collegians" were not members of the Fordham varsity nine. Many local fans know McNamara and Cousineau, the star battery, who appeared here last season in an authorized exhibition game, but all agreed that neither of them played here Sunday. A number of Fordham graduates had planned to entertain the

"You might," he replied, "if you had a Custom Department."

Our salesman suggested that we probably could fit him right from stock.

The customer answered, "Well, if that's so, you'll be the first who ever has," and consented to try on a coat.

The first coat he put on, a 46 long, was so satisfactory and such a pleasant surprise that he selected three suits, getting at least two for the price he would have paid his tailor for one.

DEMPSEY IS HERO OF ENGLISH MEET

Champion Visits Epsom Downs and Divides Attention of Crowd With Royalty.

PICKS A WINNING HORSE

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 19.—Jack Dempsey went to the races this afternoon and picked a winner. He landed just in time for the Epsom Spring meeting and the City and Suburban, one of England's classic events. As he motored down with Joe Beckett and his manager, Jack Kearns, he became the hero of the occasion. It was all fun for him and he expressed frankly his pleasure at the scenes around him. Spring had come at last and famous Epsom Downs was looking its best in the bright sunlight. It was the green of the racing track that impressed Dempsey most. He leaned on the railings of Tattersall's ring and, as he looked around, exclaimed, "This green, what do you call it here, is very pretty. Over home we race on tracks that are, just how shall I call it—well, just soil, without covering.

Asked what horse he had picked for the big race, Dempsey replied in his slow, grave way, "I don't bet. I never bet on horse racing."

Gets Straight Tip.

But Dempsey got a sure tip straight from the stable for the 2 o'clock race and put a trifle on it and won at 5 to 1. Then he fancied Monarch for the City and Suburban and saw it beaten by three-quarters of a length. Dempsey backed Monarch because he, with the rest of the big crowd, had just been cheering the King and Queen, who came to the front of their box and bowed to the spectators. The champion was waving his hat at them like everybody else.

"That's fine," he said, "don't they look well?" And when Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles joined the Queen, Dempsey thought they looked fine, too.

Wherever Dempsey and Beckett strolled they were the centre of all eyes and the bookmakers looked them over and discussed them much as though they were a pair of thoroughbreds. "A bit smaller than Joe," said one, referring obviously to Beckett. "But what a head for a fighter!"

There is no doubt that there are plenty of promoters here who would hate to see the champion go without some local exhibition of his form. His reputation is so high, however, that there would be much criticism if any one on this side of the Atlantic, even Carpentier, took him on. The Daily Mail, for instance, has expressed the opinion that a bout between Dempsey and Carpentier would be a scandal and ought not to be tolerated.

Keeping in Condition.

Though Dempsey is only out to enjoy himself, he is keeping fit. He was on the street by 7 o'clock this morning and took a brisk walk before breakfast. He expects to see Carpentier to-morrow but, when he was asked whether he meant to talk over a new fight he replied, "Oh, no, I am only renewing an old acquaintance. It has nothing to do with any fight."

Both Dempsey and Kearns persist in the statement that they do not want to talk business with any one and it is not regarded as likely that the Frenchman would be willing to take another hammering merely for the purpose of providing a spectacle and profit for the speculators. The Westminster Gazette also points out that "a contest between Dempsey and Beckett would evoke little real enthusiasm" and says that the allure of England to put forward a heavyweight boxer of marked prowess will leave Dempsey free to take all the time he likes in viewing English scenery.

N. S. A. STARTS DRIVE FOR PERMANENT HOME

Initial Step Toward Boxing Clubhouse Will Be Carnival at Lexington Av. Theatre May 1.

Boxers, their managers, handlers, promoters, matchmakers and others interested in the welfare of professional boxing got together last night at the weekly meeting of the National Sports Alliance, and cleared the decks for a drive on their objective—a permanent clubhouse providing headquarters for the kindred sons of fistiana and an organization which will at once protect exponents of the ring and preserve the sport.

The initial step toward this goal will be a gala boxing carnival at the Lexington Avenue Theatre on the night of May 1. The date was definitely adopted at last night's meeting, and at the same time announcement was made of the program of bouts arranged for the occasion. This card, while it contains few names prominent in the nation's pugilistic circles, nevertheless was roundly endorsed by the members assembled as a program promising a series of great bouts. So enthusiastic were the members that at the behest of Jim Buckley they tendered a rousing vote of thanks to Leo P. Flynn, Dan McKetrick, Scotty Montieth and Silvey Burns, who constituted the Matchmaking Committee.

The bouts will be featured by a clash between Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, and Soldier Bartfield, rugged Brooklyn welterweight. The other bouts arranged are as follows: Jack Sharkey, west side bantamweight, against Pete Herman, former world's bantamweight champion; Pete Hartley, the "Durable Dane," against Jimmy Hanlon, Denver lightweight; Abe Goldstein, Harlem flyweight, against Frankie Genaro, former International amateur champion; Sammy Mable, east side featherweight, against Harry London of Harlem; Paul Doyle of the east side against Jimmy Kelly, Yonkers welterweight; Midget Smith, Harlem bantamweight, against Packey O'Gatty of the east side; Johnny Reisler, Harlem featherweight, against Joe (King) Leopold of Denver; Pete Hobin, Belgian welterweight champion, against Moe Herscovitch, Canadian champion, and Joe Tipiltx of Philadelphia against Phil Salvadore, California lightweight.

For purposes of emergency, two extra bouts were scheduled, as follows: Hughie Hutchison, Philadelphia featherweight, against Jimmy Cooney of Harlem, and Babe Sullivan, Greenwich Village welterweight, against Jimmy O'Gatty of the east side. Prices for the show will be $1 to $5. Boxes will be auctioned.

Senator James J. Walker, a leading figure in the campaign for organization of the flatic fraternity, delivered an address, following one by Billy Gibson, N. S. A. President. Senator Walker impressed the gathering with his enthusiasm for the alliance and its ideals, and reminded the members that he would not stop in his campaign until the organization was the equal of the New York A. C. in membership, clubhouse, prestige and influence. He called attention to the alliance as a useful weapon in overcoming opposition from the reform element in the State and declared that only through such an organization could the sport be preserved and elevated and the boxers, their managers, seconds, matchmakers and promoters protected.

MISS LANIER FIRST WITH SILVERCREST

Gains Initial Blue Ribbon in Opening of Brooklyn Riding and Driving Club's Show.

To Miss Becky Lanier went the honor of winning the first blue ribbon in the thirtieth annual Brooklyn Horse Show, which opened at the Brooklyn Riding and Driving Club last night. Mounted on the beautifully-marked jumper, Silvercrest, winner of hundreds of ribbons, the well-known horsewoman carried off the honors in the opening class on the card.

Under the expert guidance of his owner and rider, Silvercrest, a gray gelding, performed in his usually brilliant manner, outpointing the large field of jumpers that were entered in the competition. Only a little behind came John Dixon, a four-year-old black gelding, owned by S. C. Tirie. Lacking something of the finish of his veteran rival, John Dixon nevertheless gave great promise for the future.

The judging in the jumpers' class was done by J. Watson Webb, the famous American polo ist, who was a member of the team that won the international trophy at Hurlingham last year, and Henry L. Bell. Their work in eliminating the large field down to the final selections met with popular approval. Considerable surprise was occasioned by the failure of Black Watch, owned by Michael J. Devaney, to figure in the final judging. Black Watch was awarded the special prize at Durland's at the close of the polo season as the best jumper.

Opening Is Auspicious.

The poor weather conditions had little or no effect on the attendance at the opening night and every box in the building was occupied when the first event was started and standees occupied every inch of space around the ring. The spectators were liberal in their applause during the awarding of the various ribbons and especially so when the 17-year-old Greenwich horsewoman was announced a winner. Miss Lanier is one of the most popular exhibitors at the show. She has been riding about the country since she was 9 years old, and during that time has carried off many cups.

Miss Lanier is regarded by many as a possible winner of the premier honors at the show this year, but she has a formidable opponent in Miss Clara S. Peck. The latter, however, was unable to get better than a second prize in the first four events judged.

Considerable interest was aroused by the novice harness horse class which is being revived this year. The blue ribbon was finally awarded to Seaton Sylvia, a bay mare, owned by R. Lawrence Smith, with Seaton Midlemarch, second; Seaton Septimus, third; and Seaton Maxeppa, fourth. The four finalists were so alike in action and quality that the judges had a difficult time in making their selections, but their decision was finally in favor of Seaton Sylvia.

In the exhibit of three harness horses over 14.2, one ownership to be shown as a pair or single, the winner was William Wanamaker Jr., with is entry from the Woodroyd Farms. Eve and Netherall's Pride, a handsome pair of chestnuts, and Red Gauntlet, a veteran blue-ribbon winner, made up the successful trio. Second place went to M. F. Murphy with Seaton Septimus, Seaton Limerick, and Seaton Middlemarch.

Irish Surprise Injured.

During the judging in the jumper class, Irish Surprise, owned by James McGeahin, drove his head into a mirror at the end of the judging ring and was badly cut about the face.

Among the prominent lovers of horseflesh present were A. C. Bedford, Erskine H. Lott, Walter E. Shuttleworth, Thomas L. Leeming, Byford Ryan, Frederick D. Mackay, Miss Clara S. Peck, James A. Farrell and John J. Farrell.

The most tense situation of the evening's judging came when Class I. finally came on the tan bark, a quartet of hackney horses in single harness. After a few turns around the ring two of the quartet were ordered parked in the centre by the judges, and then the contest began. Eve, the famous chestnut mare from the Woodroyd Farm of William Wanamaker Jr., many-time national blue-ribbon winner, and Dragon Fly, a bay mare, formerly owned by Miss Constance Vauclain, and now the property of A. W. Atkinson, were sent around again and again, and brought back to the judges' stand only to be sent again around.

Eventually this sort of circus stunt began to get on the nerves of the Wanamaker chestnut. She lathered freely and went off slightly in her hitherto perfect gait, Dragon Fly being the recipient of the blue ribbon. Arthur Hopkins drove the winner, and William Pinch, manager of the Woodroyd Farm, held the reins over Eve.

IRISH DREAM FIRST IN AERO HANDICAP

Special to The New York Times.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 19.—The card was run off at the Havre de Grace track under wretched racing conditions this afternoon, heavy rains having converted the course into something not remotely resembling a quagmire. A fair-sized crowd of the faithful was on hand despite this and the sport was by no means devoid of interest.

The Aero Handicap, a six-furlong jaunt for three-year-olds and upward, was the starred number on the program. It resulted in the humiliation of the odds-on choice, W. L. Oliver's Peter Pan gelding, Dexterous, by Irish Dream, A. Swenke's son of The Curragh, a consistent performer during the past Winter on the New Orleans courses.

Lang took Dexterous out to make the running soon after the race began and the youngster showed a nice turn of speed in the soft going, taking a lead of several lengths in the mid-stages of the scamper and maintaining it until the stretch was reached. He tired badly in the final furlong, however, and when Rice brought Irish Dream along on the outside with a strong challenge the gelding could not respond. Irish Dream's margin over the favorite at the finish line was a length and a half, while Missionary, in third place, was only half a length behind Dexterous.

The Page Brook Purse, at a mile and seventy yards, for the older performers, provided the most absorbing finish of the day, for Sedgefield, the chestnut son of Olambala, from the stable of R. T. Wilson Jr., just got up in the final stride to snatch the winner's slice of the proceeds from the favorite, Registrar, the four-year-old Friar Rock colt owned by Commander Ross.

Registrar set a fast pace all the way and in the early stages of the stretch run appeared to have the race won. Turner, who had the mount on the Wilson entry, made the mistake of easing Registrar up too soon and Sedgefield, out-run for the first six furlongs, slipped through on the inside to hook it up with the pacemaker and nose him out of the victory. Our Birthday was third, a couple of lengths behind Registrar.

The Lansdowne Steeplechase, run over the course of about two miles, proved easy for Lucky Find, E. T. Zollicoffer's young fencer, after the odds-on choice, Le Marsouin, had tired of the affair at the seventh obstacle and bolted when in possession of a good lead. Lucky Find, which was paired in the betting with the Quincy Stable's Grenadier, paid over 31 to 1 in the mutuel pools.

J. S. Cosden lost a rather promising racer in the two-year-old sprint which opened the afternoon's proceedings, when his roan colt Idolater, out of Zeus, was cut down and sustained a fracture of the right hind leg, necessitating his destruction. W. F. Ormsbee's filly, Lady Boss, favorite in the scramble of fifteen youngsters, captured the event easily.

CAPTAIN RESIGNS PLACE IN VARSITY

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 19.—Realizing that he is not adapted to short distance racing, Captain Langhorne Gibson of the Yale crew today, at his own suggestion, retired from the Yale first varsity eight and was replaced by Tom Haines, who weighs twenty-two pounds less. Gibson plans to remain out of the regular shell during the short races against Columbia and probably against Cornell and Princeton, but will take his seat again for the four-mile event against Harvard. Gibson's act in the interest of increased speed for the Yale crew has made him more of a popular hero at Yale than before, if that were possible. He is the son of Charles Dana Gibson.

Tom Haines of Lenox, his successor at No. 5, rowed in the freshman eight last year. Coach Jim Corderry today made several other changes in the two varsity crews, indicating that he has learned practical lessons from the University of Pennsylvania defeats and has the situation well in hand.

Sherman Ewing of Yonkers, stroke of the second crew, went to stroke of the first shell, replacing Ward Cheney, who was tried in the position yesterday. Fred Sheffield of New York City replaced Walter Goodwin at No. 4, Russell moved from the second boat to No. 3, and Joe Carman of Tacoma, a varsity veteran of last year, returned to No. 2. He has been ill with appendicitis.

The reorganized varsity rowed as follows: Bow, Whitney; 2, Carman; 3, Russell; 4, Sheffield; 5, Haines; 6, Rockefeller, 7, Haldeman; stroke, Ewing; coxswain Chase. This crew, which is now known as the white crew, raced the blue crew five-eighths of a mile, and at the finish there was one and one-half lengths of open water between the boats.

The second eight rowed as follows: How, Spencer; 2, Pelly; 3, Littler; 4, Ellis; 5, Gibson; 6, Goodwin; 7, Leslie; stroke, Cheney; coxwain, Thomas.

Coach Corderry tonight authorized the statement that John Freeman, the veteran varsity stroke who was removed to the 150-pound crew yesterday, will be restored to his former position in the varsity shell for the four-mile race against Harvard.

RICE MAKES A SHIFT.

Starboard Side of Columbia Varsity Crew Is Rearranged.

For the last two weeks it has been generally assumed that there will be no more changes in the Columbia University crew before the Yale race, but Coach Jim Rice has again pulled the unexpected, and yesterday the varsity boat appeared with the entire starboard side rearranged. Captain Swinburne was moved from No. 5 to No. 7, and Ferris, who had rowed at the latter position, made room for him by going back to No. 3. Thies was assigned to Ruffalo's seat in the bow and the latter went to No. 5. The rigging of the varsity boat, the Bogue, was also carefully adjusted yesterday.

JOHNNY DUNDEE DEFEATED.

Loses Decision to Johnny Shugrue in Ten Rounds at Worcester.

WORCESTER, Mass., April 19.—Johnny Shugrue of Waterbury was given the decision over Johnny Dundee, junior lightweight champion of the world, in a ten-round bout here tonight. Shugrue fought by far the best fight of his career, easily winning seven of thirteen rounds, and there was not a protest over the decision heard at the ringside. It was one of the fastest bouts ever seen in Worcester. Shugrue weighed 134 pounds and Dundee 131.

TIERNEY LOSES LICENSE.

State Athletic Commission Disciplines Manager of Eddie Clifford.

The manager's license of John W. Tierney, manager of boxers, was revoked at yesterday's meeting of the State Athletic Commission. It was announced that this action was taken following Tierney's failure to respond to a summons to appear before the board. Tierney received the manager's license as manager of Eddie Clifford, a Brooklyn boxer. Under the revocation order Clifford now is free to transact his own business affairs in the ring or enlist the services of another manager.

SOLDIERS IN TITLE BOUT.

Keeley and Murray Clash Tonight for 102d Medical Regt. Crown.

Barney Keeley and Charlie Murray are scheduled to clash tonight for twelve rounds in the feature bout at the 102d Medical Regiment Armory. The battle will decide the regiment welterweight championship. It is planned to present to the winner a belt emblematic of the championship which must be defended three times before it becomes a boxer's personal property.

NORTHERN GUNMEN LOSE IN THE SOUTH

Trail by Only 5 Targets in 600 in Sectional Shoot at Pinehurst Traps.

Pittsburgher's Work Cuts Down Lead of Winners—Hazel Takes 16-Yard Event.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 19.—Outshooting their Northern rivals by the narrow margin of 548 targets to 543, the Southerners won the sectional team contest besides a trio of individual trophies here today at the end of the third session in the North and South trapshooting tournament.

The South led by a considerable wider margin last night, but good work on the part of Norwood Johnston of Pittsburgh in today's final 100 targets, coupled with slumps on the part of H. A. Morson, the North Carolina State champion, and J. Motley Morehead of Charlotte, who were around the top of the Southern list yesterday, allowed the Northerners to cut down their opponents' final advantage to five targets out of the 600 shot at by each team.

The high guns, with their scores, follow:

SOUTHERN TEAM.

Colonel J. Motley Morehead, Charlotte, N. C.	98	92—190
U. R. Brooks, Columbia, S. C.	90	94—184
A. W. Montgomery, Spartanburg, S. C.	98	87—180

Martin McVoy, New York A. C.	96	85—181
Norwood Johnston, Pittsburgh, Pa.	88	92—180
Total		543

Today's program, shot in a brisk rain that made for low visibility, was limited to one sixteen-yard event, which was won by L. P. Hazel of Durham with 94, and a doubles contest, which was won by U. R. Brooks of Columbia, who missed only one target out of ten pairs thrown. Brooks was followed by H. A. Morson and Martin McVoy Jr., with 17 and 16 breaks, respectively.

The following broke 90 or better in the sixteen-yard contest:

*Charles Goodrich, Chicago	97
L. P. Hazel, Durham	94
U. R. Brooks, Columbia	93
Norwood Johnston, Pittsburgh	92
*Lester German, Wilmington, Del.	92

TEST GOLF CLUBS WITH STEEL SHAFTS

W. G. A. Officers Observe Inconclusive Experiments by Three Famous Players.

CHICAGO, April 19.—Comparative trials of steel and wooden-shafted golf clubs were made today by three expert players before officers of the Western Golf Association at the Edgewater Club, but a sixty-mile gale, with snow on its wings, made the experiment inconclusive, and decision as to whether the steel-shafted clubs should be barred as mechanical appliances was deferred for further tests in fair weather.

Jock Hutchison, local professional, who is British open golf champion; Laurie Ayton of Evanston, another Scotch professional, and Chick Evans, formerly national champion, played several shots into the teeth of the gale with both iron and wood, and then did the same with the wind. The wind all but swept the players off their feet, but several fair shots were made, and they indicated little, if any, difference between the steel and the wood. The best shots against the wind carried only about 175 yards, while with the hurricane at their backs the balls carried 250 yards, with no roll on account of the soft turf.

The players said they could distinguish little difference in the steel shaft, that it gave them no added distance or accuracy, and did not overcome a bad swing.

The contention for the steel shaft is that it is more uniform than wood, cheaper and more durable. Manufacturers of golf clubs, who came from out of town to see the tests, said that although the steel shaft had been barred in Great Britain several years ago and recently by the United States Golf Association, something would have to be allowed to take the place of wood for second-growth hickory was fast disappearing.

George W. Mattern of Dayton, Ohio, manager for one of the large manufacturers, said that while his concern had been able at first to get all the hickory they wanted near Dayton, they had been forced, with the spread of golf, to reach out further into the available supply until they had gone into Tennessee and now figured that 75 per cent. of the usable hickory had been exhausted.

It is estimated that some 5,000,000 feet of hickory is used annually for golf clubs, and nothing but second-growth will answer. The present year promises a renewed spurt in the spread of golf.

President Albert R. Gates of the W. G. A. and W. W. Harless, secretary, who watched today's trials, said they saw nothing that would warrant barring the clubs, but preferred to reserve decision until better weather allowed a more thorough test.

TO PLAY GAME IN CAPITAL.

Navy and Penn State Elevens Will Meet on Nov. 4.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 19.—At a conference here today in which Pennsylvania State was represented by Athletic Director Hugo Bezdek and Graduate Manager Fleming, and the Naval Academy by Commander D. L. Howard, Athletic Director, it was agreed that next Fall's game of football between the teams of the two institutions should be played in Washington if suitable grounds could be obtained. The game which was to be played in Annapolis will take place on Nov. 4.

Owing to rain the baseball against Penn State and the tennis match against Georgetown scheduled for today had to be cancelled.

CHALLENGES FOR GOLD CUP.

PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—Milton A. Belyea, Canadian amateur rowing champion, has sent in his entry for the Philadelphia Gold Challenge Cup, the first race for which will be held on the Schuylkill on June 3. Belyea hails from St. Johns, Nova Scotia. The cup race will be held over a course of one and a quarter miles at 6 o'clock in the evening. Other contestants will be Walter Hooper of Duluth, Paul Costello of this city, and either Garrett Gilmore of the Bachelors or Tom Rooney of the Undines, formerly of New York. Gilmore and Rooney will meet in a preliminary contest on June 1 to decide which shall be the other Philadelphia entry, the limit of competitors being four.

Botafogo, Argentina's Most Noted Thoroughbred, Is Dead

BUENOS AIRES, April 19 (Associated Press). — Botafogo, Argentina's most famous race horse and one of the fastest in the world, died last night at the Mar del Plata stables, where for the last three years he has been used for breeding purposes. When in his prime, in 1917 and 1918, Botafogo was the idol of the Argentine racing public. During those seasons he ran nineteen times, winning eighteen firsts and one second place and winning nearly 350,000 pesos for his owners in prizes. His most famous race, with Grey Fox in 1918, was witnessed by 60,000 persons, when Botafogo won running 3,000 meters in 9 minutes 7 seconds, which stands as the Argentine record. Botafogo was the son of Old Man, also a famous horse. His dam was Korea. He was owned during his racing career by Diego de Alvear, a relative of President-elect Marcello de Alvear. He was sold in 1919 by Señor de Alvear to Benito Villanueva and M. A. Martinez de Hoz for $225,000 in gold.

N. Y. A. C. GUNNERS DEFEAT B. A. A. TEAM

Win Patriots' Day Shoot at Riverside Traps, Lewis Making Perfect Score.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 19.—The New York Athletic Club gunners, who lost Friday's five-men shoot to the Boston Athletic Association, 729 to 740, and also the ten-men shoot to the Unicorn Club gunners, 1,392 to 1,410, staged a brilliant come-back today in the annual B. A. A. Patriot's Day championship shoot at the Riverside traps. The New York A. C. gunners were in top form today and won the first four places in the championship shoot, taking all except one of the diamond medals.

Tracy Lewis made a remarkable score, breaking all of his 160 targets, but needing practically a perfect score in order to win over his clubmate, Fred Plum, who had 158 breaks.

Behind Lewis and Plum came two more New York A. C. competitors, E. E. Reed and R. F. Rice, both of whom registered 153 targets each, breaking the one extra target necessary to keep the lead over H. O. Allen, who was the high gun for the Boston Athletic Association.

Tracy Lewis's great shooting today established him as high man for the two-days' sport, his total in 320 targets yesterday and today being 310. Needless to say, Lewis was awarded the "Maplewood hundred" for his century of breaks in his 160 string. More than 125 trapshooters competed at Riverside today.

MAY BE TWO-MAN TEAM.

Committee in Doubt as to Tennis Line-Up for Coast Trip.

It is possible that, because of the illness of Lawrence B. Rice of Boston, the only players to represent the East in the East-West tennis matches to be held in San Francisco on May 6 and 7 will be William T. Tilden 2d of Philadelphia and Vincent Richards of Yonkers. Rice has been suffering of late from a carbuncle and it has caused him so much trouble that he has been forced to forego all tennis practice. He has announced his decision not to participate, but efforts will be made to persuade him to reconsider. If Rice is not able to go an attempt will be made to secure a suitable third member of the Eastern team. The names of two other players are being considered, but the remaining member or members will not be announced until acceptance is assured.

The Executive Committee of the New York Lawn Tennis Association, which is conducting the East's end of the matches, met yesterday to go over the situation. A special committee was named to complete the arrangements. It consists of Charles S. Landers, President of the association; Louis B. Daley of East Orange and Jones W. Merserau, Secretary of the association.

The Eastern term will go first to Los Angeles to play exhibition matches and from there will journey to San Francisco to compete not only in the East-West matches in singles and doubles, but to enter also the Pacific Coast championship tournament. It is probable that the Western team will be chosen from among William M. Johnston, Willis E. Davis, the Kinsey brothers and Roland Roberts. The Eastern team will return to New York about May 25.

Tennis Match Is Postponed.

BALTIMORE, April 19.—The tennis match between Yale and the Baltimore Country Club was not played today because of rain.

MRS. PATTERSON TO CAPTAIN GOLF TEAM

Will Lead Westchester Women in Matches With Long Island and New Jersey.

With the dates set for the golf illustrated trophy team matches rapidly approaching, the captains of the three competing teams are now engaged in the rather arduous task of selecting their players. The schedule announced recently by Mrs. Myra D. Patterson, President of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association, calls for the opening match to be played between the Westchester and New Jersey teams at the Greenwich Country Club on May 8. Two days later, New Jersey and Long Island will clash at Morris County, and on May 12 the competition will be between Westchester and Long Island at Piping Rock. This will be the closing match and the team having the most number of points will be awarded the trophy.

Owing to the fact that Mrs. H. Arnold Jackson, the Westchester team captain, sailed recently for England, Mrs. Patterson will act in that capacity, with Miss Marion Hollins, the national champion, heading the Long Island team and Mrs. H. T. Eschwege the New Jersey team.

In the event of Miss Stirling deciding to play from the Garden City Country Club in whatever competitions she engages in, it will give the Long Islanders a team that will be hard to beat. Miss Hollins and Miss Stirling, both scratch players in the metropolitan district rating, would form an almost unbeatable combination and there is also plenty of additional talent in the Long Island membership with such players as Mrs. G. M. Hecksher, Mrs. C. D. Smithers, Mrs. Joseph E. Davis, Mrs. D. Geddes and others.

Figuring on the basis of players rated at 6 or less in the metropolitan district list and including Miss Stirling in the Long Island ranks, New Jersey has twelve players with handicaps of 6 or under, Long Island has eleven and Westchester only six, and the Hudson River team will be further weakened by the absence of Mrs Jackson, who is a handicap 2 player and a former national titleholder. The teams will consist of fifteen players each.

The leading players in the three districts in accordance with their handicap rating are:

Long Island—Miss Marion Hollins, Westbrook, scratch; Miss Alexa Stirling, Garden City Country Club, scratch; Mrs. G. M. Hecksher, Piping Rock, 3; Mrs. J. L. Anderson, Cherry Valley, 4; Mrs. Charles Auchincloss, Piping Rock, 4; Mrs. C. D. Smithers, Nassau, 4; Mrs. Joseph E. Davis, Piping Rock, 5; Mrs. D. Geddes, Piping Rock, 6; Mrs. Ralph Hammer, Pomonok, 3; Mrs. F. Ingalls, Piping Rock, 6; Mrs. G. E. Morrow, Pomonok, 6.

New Jersey—Mrs. Thomas Hucknall, Morris County, 1; Mrs. F. B. Du Bois, Baltusrol, 5; Mrs. C. Smith, Glen Ridge, 3; Mrs. C. N. Fowler Jr., Baltusrol, 4; Mrs. W. MacGowan, Glen Ridge, 4; Mrs. H. Blumenthal, Fairview, 5; Mrs. E. S. Reesin, Hollywood, 5; Mrs. J. R. Engle, Rumson, 6; Mrs. L. J. Grumbach, Century, 6; Mrs. Elisabeth Hardin, Baltusrol, 6; Mrs. E. T. Koempel, Glen Ridge, 6; Mrs. C. Voorhees, Baltusrol, 6.

Westchester — Miss Georgianna Bishop, Brooklawn, 2; Mrs. Jack Renwick, Bedford, 2; Mrs. Charles Dupre, Fox Hills, 4; Mrs. C. Fraser, Green Meadow, 6; Mrs. J. H. Lapham, Apawamis, 6.

BRITISH STARS BOOKED.

Duncan and Mitchel to Play Over Minneapolis Links.

MINNEAPOLIS, April 19.—George Duncan and Abe Mitchell, the noted British professional golfers, and considered the greatest exhibition players who have visited this country, have been booked for another appearance in Minneapolis during their second tour the coming Summer. They will play in an exhibition competition at the Interlachen Country Club at a date to be fixed later.

Last year Duncan set a record of 72 over the Interlachen course, and will have his own mark to shoot at during his forthcoming visit, as no one has been able to approach his figures. Duncan and Mitchell defeated Willie Kidd of Interlachen and Jack Burke of Town and Country in a four-ball, best-ball match, and will meet the same pair upon their second visit.

The new course, upon which play started last July, came through the Winter most successfully. The putting greens are in excellent condition and the fairways have given no cause for worry.

WEISSMULLER IS WANTED.

Swimming Star Is Invited to Contest in Hawaiian Meets.

HONOLULU, T. H., April 19.—Johnny Weissmuller of the Illinois Athletic Club, 18-year-old swimmer who has been displaying record-breaking ability in Spring meets, has been sent a second invitation by the Hawaiian A. A. U. to take part in the May and June meets in the Hawaiian Islands.

Tennis Match Postponed to Today.

The tennis match scheduled for yesterday between Swarthmore and Columbia University on the latter's courts was postponed until this afternoon because of rain. The match will be played on East Field.

CLOTHES : IN THE NEW YORK MANNER

A declaration of our clothes standard

AT a time when so many are closing their eyes to a quality standard, we think it is but right that we publicly declare ourselves on the question of price and value.

Weber and Heilbroner believe in giving one hundred cents worth of value for every dollar spent.

In producing Weber and Heilbroner Clothes, it is our aim to see how much quality can be worked into every garment—not how much can safely be extracted.

We established a standard of style and quality many years ago. Changing economic conditions cannot make us lower this standard. Nothing has happened in recent years to make us believe that we can risk the good will of our customers by giving them less quality—even at cheaper prices.

We are rigorously opposed to the kind of merchandising which plays upon the gullibility of the public by setting a fluctuating scale of prices and making value a thing of chance.

Weber and Heilbroner Clothes will continue to give the well-dressed men of New York 100% quality and individual style—at prices that honestly reflect their actual value.

Suits $40 to $70. Topcoats $40 to $85.

TO SAVE THE CONFERENCE.

In all the flux of opinion about the sensations at Genoa, there is a consensus on at least two points. One is that the Germans made a great tactical blunder. Even their warmest friends and stoutest apologists admit this. Conceding that their separate treaty with the Russians was defensible on general grounds, the particular time and place chosen to flourish the agreement in the face of the other delegations at Genoa necessarily gave great offense. The act not only stirred dormant suspicions into activity again, but seriously prejudiced the German case itself. If German diplomacy had any game at all indicated for it at Genoa, it was to keep alive the differences between France and England. But in the very moment of signing and announcing their treaty with Russia the Germans threw LLOYD GEORGE and M. POINCARE into each other's arms. France at once ceased to be looked upon as the trouble-maker at Genoa, and Germany assumed that ungrateful rôle. It is now obvious that this was a piece of stupidity. Whether characteristic or not, it was arrant.

The other conviction which may be said to be general is that the Genoa conference must not be allowed to break up with nothing done. Even if the Germans were to withdraw, the other nations have on hand too important a work to abandon it incontinently. They may yet pursue their negotiations with Russia and fix some basis both for the de facto recognition of the Soviet Government and for lending that financial aid without which Russian agriculture and industry and transportation cannot be brought back to anything like normal. In addition, there is the task clearly outlined in the proposals made at Cannes of restoring the international commerce of Europe and bringing about reforms in her public finance, her currency, and the foreign exchanges. In his opening address at Genoa Mr. LLOYD GEORGE said, with little exaggeration, that if the conference were to fail a sense of keen disappointment and at almost blighting despair would spread throughout Europe. That is the feeling in the minds of the delegates which must lead them to make heroic efforts to save the conference from entire failure. This motive must be operative also in the minds of even the Germans. The personal conference between RATHENAU and LLOYD GEORGE would seem to indicate that Germany is anxious to avoid the appearance of responsibility for making the gathering at Genoa end in futility.

German spokesmen are rather overdoing their air of injured innocence. They ask why anybody should be surprised at Germany having come to a separate understanding with Russia, to the advantage of both countries. One reason for such surprise is that Germany had tacitly bound herself not to do what she has now done. She accepted, just as the Russian delegates accepted, membership in the Genoa conference on the distinct condition of adhering to the Cannes resolutions. One of these stipulated the duty of all countries to "recognize obligations "to restore, or in case of default to "indemnify, all foreign interests for "loss or damage which has been "caused by the confiscation or se-"questration of property." To secure the universal adoption of this principle was one of the avowed purposes of the Genoa conference. Yet Germany, so far as she was concerned, coolly threw it out of the window. The legal and technical argument against her for following such a course is invincible.

The resolutions adopted by the other delegates merely recognized the accomplished fact when they announced that Germany had automatically put herself out of court in the matter of further joint negotiations with Russia. The offense may be smoothed over, and the Germans may in any event remain to participate in discussions of other subjects, but the sooner they perceive that they put themselves inexcusably in the wrong the better it will be for them and for everybody else concerned.

The sudden diversion of the Russo-German treaty undoubtedly will change the outlook at Genoa. From now on the alignment of the nations there represented will be different from what it appeared to be at the beginning. But the great and indispensable labor proposed for the conference ought to be pursued. The hopes and needs of Europe should not be frustrated by German maladroitness.

CLEARING THE CALENDAR.

If a new broom does not always sweep clean, it often does so, and sometimes its performance excites the spirit of emulation among older brooms. Opening of the newly established criminal courts is a factor, but only one factor, in the progress which has been made in the past few days toward getting action in pending prosecutions for homicides and robberies. And so far the record seems to prove once more the old truth that certainty of punishment is a far better deterrent than severity of punishment, especially if the severity is sporadic.

On Monday two men were convicted of crimes of violence and eight pleaded guilty. In this there is encouragement to those whose hearts grow faint as they look at the clogged criminal calendars. A good many of these cases, if the courts once reach them, will take but little time, for many of the defendants will not stand trial. True, a plea of guilty is almost always made to a milder charge than that on which the defendant is arraigned; but better, in most cases, make sure of a twenty-year sentence than go through a long trial leading to the imposition of a death penalty which may never be inflicted. If the criminal classes, amateur and professional, know that arrest will be followed by speedy trial, crime is likely to be less popular.

Of course, this presupposes that the criminals will be caught with somewhat greater frequency than we have been led to expect. But there are signs that the crime wave is now being taken seriously at Police Headquarters, if not in the City Hall. At any rate, the District Attorney's office and the courts are making a good start. As Governor MILLER remarked, we shall know where responsibility lies. District Attorney BANTON seems to be making good progress in convicting criminals, if only Mr. ENRIGHT will catch them for him.

THE BONUS AGAIN.

It was about time for the bonus-jugglers to produce more rabbits from the hat. The House trick was unconvincing. Not quite two-thirds of the Republican membership of the Senate turned out for the caucus or conference. This seems to denote a blameworthy lack of interest in a scheme whose vote-getting potentialities were demonstrated so notably in the Republican primaries of the Eleventh and Sixteenth Illinois Congress Districts the other day by the defeat of two ardent bonifiers. Senator LENROOT, head of the root-and-branchers, tried to have the Finance Committee instructed to report a bonus bill within three weeks. The Laodiceans prevailed. A "soldiers' bonus bill" is to be reported "within a reasonable time," and the conference declares its "sense" that such a bill should be passed by the Senate this session.

A "soldiers' bonus bill"! Is the bright, consummate flower of the wisdom of the House to be thrown away? The atmosphere of unreality, of intentional humbug, that has surrounded the project from the first, has not been cleared. On the very day of the conference Mr. MELLON, that killjoy of politicians, put forth some more unbending facts for the illusionists to ponder. A trifling deficit of $484,000,000 for the fiscal year 1923 is surely an encouragement to them to go ahead. Just how are they to go ahead? How can the Senate Finance Committee report a bonus bill that is not sure of a veto? Mr. HARDING insists either that the matter be postponed or that the Bonus bill shall carry with it the provision for raising the money; and a sales tax is the only means he sees of producing the necessary revenue.

"All bills for raising revenue shall "originate in the House of Represen-"tatives, but the Senate may pro-"pose or concur with amendments, "as on other bills." So the Constitution. The House bill is not a revenue-raising measure. How is the Senate to bring in anything more than a phantom bonus bill? Apparently, the House will have to revise its work. It can hardly be supposed that the Republican friends of the bonus in Congress mean to test the solidity of Mr. HARDING'S backbone. He has got the treaties out of the way. He has just shown on the Navy bill a leadership that the House actually welcomed. The condition of the Treasury and the condition of public opinion sustain him in resisting the intolerable adjusted compensation plan. Senator WATSON of Indiana mournfully paints him as having "his fighting clothes on." The President couldn't afford to eat his words if he wanted to. Besides, his party in Congress has made such a general mess of it that he is bound to resort to what salvage is now possible.

It would be a mistake to take too tragic a view of what is essentially a farce. The Republicans in the House superfluously proffered a bonus for the sake of votes. The Senate has got to carry the play along as if it were serious; but nobody will be more grateful than the Republicans in Congress if the bonus matter is so postponed and bedeviled that nothing comes of it this year except the manifestation of good intentions. It is all a political manoeuvre. The Republicans, bidding against the Democrats, are saying: "We're the best friends "of the soldier—Collin's the friend, "not Short." They can't really expect that the taxpayers will consent to be bled to the tune of four or five billions for a Republican campaign fund. Our Republican friends will pill and poll the friendless consumer enough with their highest sky-scraping tariff. The construction of that masterpiece should keep them too busy to do anything more than threaten bonus mischief.

THE SHOE MACHINERY CASE.

The Clayton law forbids trade in machinery on contracts hindering the use of other machinery. By comparing the contract with the law the Supreme Court found no difficulty in deciding that the Shoe Machinery Company had broken the law. The company offered an alternative form of lease which is not criticised, but that is no defense to the form of restrictive lease which its customers preferred. The company adopted a different form of lease after the Clayton law was passed, but the court held this to be merely a way of evading the leases in existence. All who approve the Clayton law will applaud the decision, and business men, no matter what they think of the law as now declared, must conform to it.

The Shoe Machinery Company was formed in 1899. The Government started to prosecute it under the Sherman Anti-Trust-law in 1911, but the case was dismissed in 1918. The Clayton law was passed in 1914, and now we have the first decision under it. During all those years there was no complaint of the conduct of the company by those doing business with it. Its prices have been moderate, and the same to all, large or small. Its machines have revolutionized the industry. The court states that the lessees are not in court. The only complainant is the Government. When the Government first asked for the company's dissolution, Judge PUTNAM said to the prosecutor: "The dissolution "would result in a restraint of trade "more than it would in the opening "up of trade. Perhaps what you "want us to do would do more to "restrain trade than anything else "we could do." Even in the present decision the efficiency of the company and its machines is admitted.

The company says that it will find a way to comply with the law. This is to be hoped, since 300,000,000 pairs of shoes are made annually by the company's machines. A great and peculiarly American industry would be crippled if its development could be turned backward. Curiously enough, the company has been cleared of the charge of being a monopoly, although it does more than 98 per cent. of the business, and has, in effect, a machinery monopoly. But the company's methods enabled any one to go into the manufacture of shoes who could pay rent for its machines. No capital was necessary. Now, however, the leases are declared illegal. The Clayton law has scored a bullseye.

THE CITY'S WESTCHESTER PARK.

The city may congratulate itself upon the establishment this week of Mohansic Park. When the Governor signed the bill and Westchester County accepted the gift, it was settled that a park should take the place of the institutions which the State had planned to erect on the watershed from which the city draws part of its drinking supply. When the danger to health seemed greatest, it was proposed that private gifts should make up the loss to the State through giving up its plans. Larger views prevailed, and the State's gift to Westchester County is practically an addition to the parks of this city.

It had been suggested that the city should assume the care and the cost of purifying and beautifying the source of part of its water supply. In that case there would have been an addition to Westchester's taxable resources. But when Westchester accepted the State's gift on condition of protecting the city's drinking water, there was a corresponding deduction from Westchester's means of support of its own institutions. If the city had undertaken the control of Mohansic Park, it might have been made the site of Summer colonies like those in the State's Bear Mountain Park.

It may be said that the State will miss the land less than Westchester will miss its taxes. The Westchester Chamber of Commerce had protested against the burden to that county of tax exemptions exceeding those of any other portion of the State. Westchester would find the cost of its institutions lighter if its hills and woods were included in the estates of the wealthy. But many acres are given over to institutions of charity, education, religion and other laudable services to society. The result is that tax exemptions in Westchester have increased 123 per cent. in the last dozen years, much faster than in Albany, Erie and New York counties. In half a dozen townships exemptions exceed 50 per cent. of taxables. For the entire county exemptions total more than $67,000,000. Exemptions in this city have increased over a billion in the last dozen years, and for the State total three billions.

THE VETERANS' MOUNTAIN CAMP.

No sentiment is more widespread or sincere than that "nothing is too good" for the men who were incapacitated by service in the war. The Veterans' Mountain Camp, promoted and largely financed by the New York Department of the American Legion, promises to be almost good enough. The need is urgent. There is as yet no governmental convalescent hospital. As soon as a patient is able to leave his bed he is discharged and thrown upon his own resources. Few of these are really cured. Many of them, especially the tubercular, come back for treatment and are often denied admittance because of the lack of beds. The Legion, "despairing of adequate aid "from Government, State or pri-"vate sources," has set about providing its own home for convalescents.

The Barbour camp in the Saranac region of the Adirondacks, the replacement value of which is estimated at $300,000, is to be acquired for $85,000, together with 1,200 acres having a shore line of 2.6 miles on Big Tupper Lake. There is the usual equipment of farmhouse, root cellar, barn, &c., besides a handsome recreation hall and four large motor boats. The luxurious main camp is to be used as an infirmary for some twenty bed patients. Log lean-tos are to be built for convalescents, permission having been granted to place them on the lakes and streams of the adjacent forest preserve, with kitchens and mess rooms conveniently located. The average stay of patients in city hospitals is about two weeks, but the Legion hopes to extend the time to three weeks. With one hundred beds in the open the mountain camp will be able to care for 1,700 patients a year. The only condition for admission will be an honorable discharge from service and genuine need of treatment. Preference will be given to veterans of New York State, but when possible all comers will be welcomed.

It will cost $20,000 to equip the camp and it is estimated that the annual running expense will be $50,000. To cover present expenses and provide for gradual enlargement, the Legion has undertaken to raise an endowment fund of $2,500,000. The primary canvass is being made among the Legion posts, but outside help will be welcome. Checks may be made out to the Veterans' Mountain Camp and addressed to 50 Church Street, New York. It is a cause that should appeal especially to opponents of the bonus. The case against the bonus will not be complete until those for whom "nothing is too good" receive at least adequate treatment for their maladies.

WAR ON THE MOSQUITO.

In taking mosquitos seriously New Jersey is a pattern. No State has done more to extirpate the pest. From the tropics to the Arctic Circle the mosquito is indigenous. The human race has no more persistent enemy. In a report published yesterday, the Board of Conservation and Development in New Jersey recommends that $1,000,000 be appropriated for a five years' campaign against the mosquito in that State. Eternal vigilance is the price of immunity. The trouble is that neighborhoods are roused to wage war upon this insect pest only to relax their efforts when its numbers diminish and it ceases to torment and to spread malaria. The moment appropriations stop the mosquitos reappear and life once more becomes a burden. The kerosene can must be kept going. City fathers must teach from one year to another that the mosquito is not a necessary evil. That is best done by proving that it is money in the community's pocket to carry on the campaign, no matter what it costs. The New Jersey Board of Conservation and Development estimates that by clearing the State of mosquitos the value of property would be increased by $500,000,000 in twenty years.

On March 1 the New Jersey Mosquito Extermination Association held a three days' convention at Atlantic City. The annual meeting of this body is the first sign of Spring in the southern part of the State. The Treasurer of the association calculated that an expenditure of $750,000 would complete the work of which the counties, spending their own money, had made a beginning. Factories, mills and homes were now standing, he said, upon reclaimed marsh land which a few years ago was considered uninhabitable. But consummation would probably require a round million of dollars, as the Board of Conservation and Development maintains. The job will be done well only when it is done thoroughly, counties co-operating with the State, as in road building. If the Legislature has not been convinced that the public welfare would be served by an appropriation of approximately $1,000,000, it is because the rural mind yields but slowly to enlightenment. The country representatives don't mind mosquitos, and the increased valuation argument is too subtle for them. But the reform is marching on. New Jersey from Lake Marcia, up near Port Jervis, to Cape May Point will some day be free from mosquitos.

New York is backward in this matter. Even the Greater City is prone to believe that its mosquitos fly over the Hudson from New Jersey, although choice breeding grounds exist all the way from Hell Gate to Montauk, and colonies mature in Central Park. At the last meeting of the New Jersey Mosquito Extermination Association one of the speakers declared that New York City alone raised more mosquitos in a year than the whole of Northern Jersey. To a New Yorker this sounds like a malignant affront, but the Jerseyman's authority was no less a person than Dr. ALVAH H. DOTY, former Health Officer of the Port of New York, who has declared: "In the Summer time the "city's parks are so badly infested "with these insects that human be-"ings can hardly endure the tor-"ment." Mosquito extermination is also a metropolitan problem. Long Island and Staten Island have ceased to jeer at New Jersey.

OTHER CONFERENCES.

Despite political and economic disturbances in Europe and Asia, calm science sits ascetic, "not knowing if the world passes," and seemingly "not caring if only the truth comes in answer to her prayer." She holds conferences that are indifferent to communism or capitalism, that transcend the agenda of Genoa and even ignore racial barriers. Next week, for example, an "All-Russian Congress" is to be held in Petrograd, but it is not a Soviet assembly of workmen and peasant delegates, nor is the soldier to be represented except by his nearest scientific relative the anatomist. It is a congress of zoologists, anatomists and histologists, with sections on ecology, morphology and genetics. Instead of the few familiar names repeated again and again in the reports that have come out of Russia for months and widely known in America, there are such new names as KOLTZOFF and NOVIKOFF, TONKOFF and KOJEVNIKOFF, SOUSHKIN and KOULAGIN, and SHIMKEVITCH and PHILIPCHENKO. And instead of the denationalizing of industries or the opening of markets, such subjects are set for consideration and discussion as evolution; the causes which lead the living body, to old age and death; eugenics; science and agriculture; the fauna of Siberia; and the "regularity of the systematical indications." It all seems as remote as Chauve-Souris from the Four-Power Treaty.

Meanwhile, from China there comes a report of an informal association in Peking to bring together the geologists and naturalists resident there—TING and WONG, ANDERSSON and AHNERT, ZDANSKY and TEGENGREN, LICENT and SMITH—and to further intellectual intercourse among men of science in the Far East. A few months hence there will be a great international gathering at Brünn, in Czechoslovakia, to celebrate the hundredth anniversary of the birth of GREGOR MENDEL, the enunciator of the Mendelian law of heredity, and scientists from all parts of the world are invited to attend and to join not only in the celebration but in making possible a Festschrift containing "original contributions in the field of genetics."

To cap the climax, Vienna, impoverished and full of despair in contemplating man in his present state, observes that scarcely any department of scientific research is of more general interest than that which concerns prehistoric man, and turns from such complexities as the Ter Meulen plan and organizes an Institute for the Study of the Ice Age. Any one who wishes fuller information concerning these hitherto slighted periods of glacial conditions is asked to seek it along the blue Danube, where the land structures "associated with glaciation" can be observed in their relation to the environment of prehistoric man. So can science enable distraught peoples to hold a fire in their hands "by thinking on the frosty Caucasus."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

This Action Justifies His Selection.

When WILL HAYS resigned a Cabinet position to accept a place of overlordship in the movie business where his only known acquisition would be a large and well advertised salary, there was in uninitiate circles a good deal of wonderment as to what he was going to do—how he was to earn the money, in short. Not much light on this question has been cast in the months that have succeeded, and, though Mr. HAYS has been responsive to many requests for information, his remarks have dealt so nearly exclusively with virtuous generalities that outsiders learned little except that his intentions were indisputably excellent — which everybody had known before.

Now, however, the situation has changed. Presumably, Mr. HAYS has done many things to justify his selection for his new post, but they were things on which no public reports were made. At last we are allowed to see him in action in the movie realm, and certainly the spectacle he presents will command wide and cordial approval. For he has announced that, contrary to certain recent announcements, picture plays in which one ARBUCKLE is the most prominent figure are not to be displayed.

It is evident, therefore, that Mr. HAYS has refused, with what one likes to believe to be a large majority of the American public, to share the opinion of the actor mentioned and has expressed by the San Francisco jurymen before whom he was tried, and by whom he was acquitted of the charge of manslaughter. Of course, he accepts the verdict as conclusive, as everybody must, but he thinks that for some time to come carefully preserved obscurity best becomes the hero of that particularly squalid drama.

Fortunately, Mr. HAYS had the power to make his opinion effective, and for some time, perhaps forever, fellows of the baser sort will not have an opportunity to disgrace themselves and the rest of us by applauding the semblance of the man whom the jury not only pronounced "not guilty," but went very far out of its way to pronounce a victim of injustice and an object of admiration.

This is a service quite as large as any that Mr. HAYS rendered while Postmaster General.

Revealing Personal Preferences.

As might have been expected by all the readers of the books that made him famous and earned for him, among other things, his title, when Sir ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE turned the large powers of his imagination to the task of inventing a heaven and what goes on there, the result was a place with not a few attractions. Of course, he would, and probably will, deny that he has done anything of the kind—would or will insist that he only has reported facts communicated to him by trustworthy agents. Whoever chooses to admit that has a perfect right to do so, but others will have no doubt that what Sir ARTHUR really is doing is the telling of just the sort of heaven in which he would like to pass the part of personal existence that comes after death.

The same task has been performed many times before, sometimes better, and more often not so well, but at least the eminent romancer has imagined an abode not in shocking contrast with the aspirations of good and decent people—as MAHOMET did, for instance—nor one of the gloom that appealed to some Puritan fancies. His solution of the marriage problem, as his hereafter will present it, will awaken, indeed, some uneasy questionings, for it involves an easy and permanent separation of mates whose love for each other here had waned, and the establishment of new relations that recall the once common, but never quite popular, use of the word "affinity."

Why Sir ARTHUR thinks that children will attain just the right amount of maturity, while the old will grow young again, is to be explained only as his personal preference in the matter. That is the way he would run things if he were running them.

For psychologists, professional and amateur, Sir ARTHUR'S lectures have great interest—they show so much about himself. From this point of view every word in them can be accepted as accurate.

How Did He Get This Way?

President HARDING did not illustrate his justly celebrated common sense by what he said, or is quoted as having said, about daylight saving. Indeed, only respect for his great office prevents characterising as particularly absurd the remarks that are ascribed to him.

It seems that whether or not the Washingtonians are or are not to have this Summer a daily added hour of sunlighted leisure depends on whether or not the President issues an executive order to put the clocks ahead. And the reason given as his for refusal to issue it is that he sees no excuse for a "deception" such an advancing of the clock hands would be! As nobody possibly could be deceived in this way, the word is more than unhappily chosen.

And what is one to think of the President's reported assertion that, while daylight saving may be all right in the country districts, in cities it is not desirable? As practically all the opposition to daylight saving comes from the country, and as city residents are almost unanimous in liking and demanding it, Washington must be vastly astonished by the President's mistake.

But perhaps he was misunderstood.

Giving a License to Kill.

Jersey justice seems to be much like New York justice when it comes to dealing with women who kill those whom they, in exercise of their private judgment, deem to deserve death. In other words, in that State, as in this one, "the crime of passion," when committed by a woman, has about the same immunity that is accorded to it in France, the only difference, as illustrated in recent trials, being that in New Jersey acquittal comes in a few hours after arraignment, while in New York it takes as many weeks to find an excuse for the accorded leniency.

Ah, well—if there is to be an "unwritten law" for men, it is only fair that there should be one for women, too.

Coddling Prisoners.

To the Editor of The New York Times.

I believe that Police Commissioner Enright is correct in ascribing much of the present crime wave to the coddling of criminals.

Perhaps this maudlin sentiment on the part of "prison reform associations," "prison reformers" and "slob-sisters" is not entirely responsible for the existing state of affairs, but it certainly has a lot to do with it.

I believe that if these associations and generally misguided individuals would keep their hands off prison matters, and let the proper authorities deal with the matter, there would soon be a greater respect for the law and a term in prison by those who prey upon their fellow-men.

Let the road from the commission of a crime to the donning of the "stripes" be short and swift, the stay behind the bars unfettered by frills and tomfoolery, and at least a few ridges of the "wave" will be flattened out perceptibly.

Bolsheviki Hats.

To the Editor of The New York Times.

Anent your editorial, "Pro-Topper Bolshevism," may not the Bolsheviki, having finally discovered that they were "talking through their hats," have provided the right sort of a hat to their chief spokesman at Genoa?

AT THE MACHINE.

What have I to do
With such things as these—
The curve in the river,
Young willow trees?

With a brown bill road
In the first of Spring,
And a low, wet meadow
Where bluebirds sing?

What is it to me
That the wind blows south?—
I, who must be feeding
Your ugly mouth—

Watching your black teeth
Biting on the steel;
Tending the belt that whirs
Upon the wheel?

There is dust to smell,
There is oil and sweat—
The bees hasn't opened
The windows yet!

Seven o'clock to six—
What have I to do
With a clean wind blowing
Where skies are blue?

URGES LOAN TO LIBERIA.

Hughes Tells House Committee We Are Bound in Honor to Lend.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Urging a $5,000,000 loan to Liberia, promised in 1915, as a "point of honor," Secretary Hughes told the House WAYS and Means Committee today there was no foundation for reports that American banking interests would benefit mostly from the transaction. Such reports had arisen at previous hearings of the committee on the legislation.

"I never heard that any one interested in payment of bonds was behind this proposal," Secretary Hughes said. "The truth is that bonds amounting to $1,500,000 will be retired under this loan plan. I understand that $38,000, is the amount, out of the million and a half total, held in the United States. My personal information is that the figure is nearer $10,000."

A considerable amount of the Liberian bonds to be retired in event the loan is made by the United States, the Secretary added, are held in Germany, Holland and Great Britain and are widely distributed among private investors.

"Nobody had anything to do with advocating this credit for private advantages," said the Secretary. "We could not get a first lien and adequate protection unless the others holding bonds were paid."

Failure to make the loan, Mr. Hughes declared, "would be lamentable with respect to the position of the United States before the world, and most lamentable for Liberia," which entered the war in 1917 on the side of the Allies.

Mr. Hughes said the question of helping Liberia was the only point on which Presidents Roosevelt, Taft, Wilson and Harding were in agreement, and added:

"There must have been some basis for the credit when it was upheld by such extraordinary concurrence."

BILL TO PAY SHIP YARD LOSS

McNary Would Reimburse Builders Hit by Wooden Ship Abandonment.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Reimbursement of shipyard builders who suffered from abandonment of the Government's wooden ship program was proposed in a bill introduced today by Senator McNARY, Republican, of Oregon.

Reimbursement proposed by Senator McNary would exclude profits and not exceed "the difference between the actual cost of the shipyard or installation plant and the residual value thereof at the time of its full release by the Emergency Fleet Corporation to the use of the owners." In addition to reimbursement for shipyards built, the bill also provides for reimbursement for additions or extensions to existing shipyards required under the wooden ship program.

Recoveries from the Government would be limited to the period between April 6, 1917, the date of American entrance into the war, and Nov. 15, 1918. Damages also were proposed for modification as well as cancellation of wooden ship contracts.

Claims would have to be filed within three months of passage of the McNary bill, and settlement under it would not bar the Government or any Congressional committee from the right to review such settlements or to recover any money paid by fraud.

QUIETS COUNTERFEIT ALARM

Statement That Country Is Flooded Was Based on Treasury Circulars.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Compilation of Treasury circulars announcing discovered counterfeit notes was the basis for the recent article in The Plate Printer, organ of the printers' union employes of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, that the country was flooded with counterfeit notes, bonds and War Savings Stamps, according to a letter received today by Secretary Mellon from Frank J. Coleman, its editor and business manager.

Mr. Mellon had asked Mr. Coleman to submit to the Treasury any evidence of a flood of counterfeit throughout the country other than contained in the department's circular.

Mr. Coleman's evidence, officials declared, consisted of facts already known to the Treasury, which has been circularising the discovery of counterfeit notes for the last sixty years. Most of these cases have been cleaned up, it was asserted, and in proportion to the amount of money in circulation there is a very small percentage of counterfeits.

Mr. Coleman's letter will be replied to in due course, it was stated, and the Treasury figures upon the counterfeits in existence transmitted to him.

FESS TO RUN FOR SENATE.

Ohio Representative a Candidate to Succeed Senator Pomerene.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Representative Simeon D. Fess, Chairman of the Republican National Congressional Committee, who is serving his fifth term as a member of the House from the Seventh Ohio District, announced in a statement made public here today his candidacy for the Senate. He will seek the seat now held by Senator Pomerene, Democrat, who is expected to be a candidate for re-election. In a statement Mr. Fess said:

"The people of Ohio, who by an overwhelming vote two years ago repudiated the Democratic Party, will, I am convinced, demand this year united support of President Harding in his work of reconstruction, not only in his foreign policies but in his domestic policies, including the rehabilitation of the nation's interests so seriously demoralized by the unfortunate session of eight years' mismanagement.

"For my policy in legislation in the future I invite the closest scrutiny of my record and service in Congress since 1913."

ASK FEDERAL AID IN FLOOD.

Gov. McRae Telegraphs Urgent Appeal for Emergency Appropriation.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 19.—An urgent appeal to the Federal Government for an emergency appropriation to be used in the fighting of flood waters of the Mississippi River in Arkansas was telegraphed to Washington by Governor McRae today.

Reports from Arkansas City, where 1,000 men have been working day and night to prevent a major break in the river levees, stated that the situation there was still critical.

Additional forces are being recruited by municipal authorities in Southern Arkansas and Northern Louisiana to relieve those who have been at work for many hours on the levees around Arkansas City and to increase the forces there to meet the increasing gravity of the situation.

A break at Arkansas City, officials point out, would flood thousands of square miles of rich farming lands in Southeastern Arkansas and Northeastern Louisiana, including many towns of importance.

WEEKS MAY VISIT MANILA.

Secretary Hopes to Attend Class Reunion in Tokio This Summer.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Secretary Weeks said today that he hoped to visit the Philippine Islands this Summer if it proved possible for him to make the trip to Japan for the annual reunion of his class at the Naval Academy.

The class reunion is to be held in Tokio at the invitation of Admiral Uriu of the Japanese Navy, who graduated at Annapolis in 1881.

Mr. Weeks was uncertain, he said, as to whether it would be possible for him to accompany the class to Japan. The trip is to be made on the naval transport Henderson, and Secretary Denby also has been invited to be of the party.

LANDSCAPE SOCIETY JOINS PARK PROTEST

Plan for Open-Air Exhibition of Statuary Feared as a "Commercial" Wedge.

WOULD INVITE OTHER SHOWS

Commissioner Gallatin Studying the Matter and Will Weigh All Objections Filed.

The New York Chapter of the American Society of Landscape Architects joined the Parks and Playgrounds Association yesterday in the protest against the proposed sculpture exhibition in Central Park next Fall, for which the Park Commissioner has given his tentative consent. At a meeting of the Executive Committee, resolutions opposing the exhibition as a "commercial" scheme were adopted and copies are to be forwarded to Park Commissioner Francis D. Gallatin. The committee's resolutions said:

"In accordance with the policy of the chapter in regard to encroachments on Central Park the New York Chapter of the Society of Landscape Architects is opposed to the exhibition of sculpture in Central Park as proposed by the National Sculpture Society and to any exhibition in the parks for commercial purposes."

"Permission for the exhibition would lead to dozens of applications for commercial exhibits of all kinds," Harold A. Caparn, President of the society and former landscape architect of the Park Department, said. "The fact that sculpture is used for decoration in Central Park does not make the commercial features of the National Sculpture Society's plan any different from those of any other exhibition."

Commissioner Gallatin was asked what action he would take on the letter of the Parks and Playgrounds Association protesting against the exhibition.

Will Weigh All Objections.

"The communication will be given due weight, as in proper in the case of such a representative body," the Commissioner said. "I feel pleased that so many people should take so great an interest in park matters, and I am thankful to the Parks and Playgrounds Association for their study of this matter. I am glad to hear the views of all disinterested citizens on such questions."

The Parks and Playgrounds Association made public yesterday a letter addressed to Daniel Chester French, Honorary President of the National Sculpture Society, and Adolph A. Weinman, Chairman of the committee in charge of the proposed exhibition, enclosing a copy of the letter sent to Commissioner Gallatin. The second letter, signed by George Gordon Battle, President of the association, said in part:

"Of the very many proposals to hold exhibitions in Central Park which have come to the attention of our association, there is none during my time to which we have given so careful attention. This is due to the fact that there is a peculiar appropriateness of sculpture in the park, and it is also due to the very high regard which all our Directors feel for your society as well as for Mr. French and Mr. Weinman. Our association also appreciates the courteous and very effective manner in which you have presented your application. We regret that we find ourselves obliged for the reasons set forth in our letter to Commissioner Gallatin to record our opposition."

The views of some of the Directors, opposing the exhibition, as expressed in letters written to Mr. Battle, also were made public.

Senator Nathan Straus Jr. wrote:

Straus Against Exhibition.

"After giving the most careful consideration of which I am capable to the suggestion that a portion of the park be temporarily devoted to an exhibition of sculpture, I am forced to the conclusion that my vote must be in the negative.

"As I stated at the luncheon, while there might be reasons for considering an exhibition of sculpture as in a somewhat different class from any other one of the misuses to which in the past it has been proposed to put portions of the park, nevertheless I believe that the danger of allowing an entering wedge is so great as to outweigh such considerations. While some of us may be clearly aware of the fact that an exhibition of sculpture would in no wise set a precedent for an exhibition of automobiles or an exhibition of safety devices, &c., I believe that if permission is granted for this helpful, harmless exhibition, it will make the task of those interested in conserving the parks more difficult the next time an improper invasion is suggested."

William B. Boulstone, chairman of the association's park committee said in his letter:

"After careful consideration, it is my opinion that our Association should oppose this project because:

"In my opinion, the use of the park for the purpose contemplated would be unlawful;

"The Association's acquiescence in this project will injure its public usefulness and weaken its ability to resist subsequent invasions of the Park;

"Its acquiescence may help create a precedent which eventually may break down the barrier of protection now surrounding the Parks of the City;

"The project smacks of commercialism, and private exhibitions in the Parks leading, either directly or indirectly to commercialism, should, of course, be resisted."

ASKS HARDING TO RUN PORT.

Marine League President Urges Federal Control at New York.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The suggestion that the Federal Government take control of the port facilities of New York harbor, at present administered jointly by the States of New York and New Jersey, was presented to President Harding today by P. H. W. Ross, President of the National Marine League. Mr. Ross, during a conference at the White House, estimated that $50,000,000 could be saved "by better port facilities" and declared favorable control would affect an immediate improvement in the situation.

President Harding was requested at the same time to lend his influence to the effort to harmonize differences between shippers of the Middle West and New York over shipping facilities. Mr. Ross said the President declared he was cognizant of the situation and hoped the opposing elements would be able to arrive at an understanding and proceed in harmony. One of the "differences" discussed involved the St. Lawrence deeper waterways.

GOODRICH HOPEFUL ON RUSSIAN FAMINE

Says All Will Be Well if the Transportation Does Not Break Down.

NOTABLES ON THE OLYMPIC

Thirty Passengers Cured of Bronchial Catarrh, Epidemic in Paris Owing to Sudden Cold.

The first cabin list of the White Star liner Olympic, which arrived yesterday morning from Southampton and Cherbourg under the command of Captain A. E. S. Hambelton, R. N. R., included peers, diplomats, bankers and merchants.

When the passengers embarked at Cherbourg on April 12, thirty of them were suffering from bronchial catarrh, which was epidemic in Paris, they said, through the sudden cold weather. They were under the care of Dr. Miles Prior, the senior surgeon of the Olympic, and had all recovered by the time the liner reached Quarantine. On account of the Health Officer of the Port going off to the ship so early the Coast Guard cutter Manhattan, with a small army of reporters and photographers on board, could not reach the Quarantine station in time and had to follow her nearly to the Statue of Liberty before her passengers could be put safely on board.

James P. Goodrich, former Governor of Indiana, who had been sent by President Harding to Russia to examine the conditions there, returned on the Olympic and left almost immediately for Washington to make his report on the American Relief Work.

"Wherever the food trains reached the famine ceased," he said, "and conditions generally in Russia are improving. The surgeons told me that the typhus was no worse than it had been in other years, and I think that the reports of trainloads of dead are somewhat exaggerated, but it was quite possible to see dead bodies in the streets. All will be well if the transportation does not break down, as there is enough food to last until next harvest."

Sir Felix Schiter, a London banker, arrived on a business visit to the United States. Another passenger was the venerable Marquis of Huntley of Aboye Castle, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, who is known in the House of Lords as the Cock o' the North.

When asked for his opinion upon the recent German-Russian treaty he replied: "We all hope for the best, but Germany has made another of her diplomatic blunders."

Others on board were Mr. and Mrs. Adolph S. Ochs of New York, who have been on a three months' tour to Egypt, the Near East, Turkey and Greece; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goelet and their baby son Robert, who have been in the south of France; Mrs. Arthur Scott Burden, Miss E. Scott Burden and Arthur Halfour, a British steel manufacturer.

3,000 AT RECEPTION TO ARMY AND NAVY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The White House, gay with flowers and bathed in a soft white light inside and out, was this evening the scene of an unusually large and brilliant reception to the Army and Navy, the last of the season and deferred to this date from Feb. 23 by reason of the mourning observed in the Navy circle at that time owing to the tragic loss of the Roma.

Three thousand guests, most of them in some way identified with military circles, passed through the corridors and state apartments between 9:30 o'clock and midnight.

President and Mrs. Harding were assisted in receiving by Marshal and Mme. Joffre of France, the Secretary of War and Mrs. Weeks and the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Denby.

This small party stood in the Blue Room facing the Red Corridor, with the guests entering from the Red Room. Colonel Sherrill, who made the presentations, Colonel Sherrill, Commander Holmes, U. S. N., and ten or twelve additional officers from the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, wore full-dress uniform of their respective services, a special dispensation from the war-time rule which will keep most of the Army officers in khaki and greatly restricts the wearing of gold laces and tail coats of the Navy. The least restricted class of active officers appeared to be the Marines, who were present in large numbers than usual, with the present commandant, Maj. Gen. Lejeune, and his family among the first of the specially invited guests to reach the Blue Room.

The Marine Band played throughout the evening.

There was no order of precedence as on New Year's Day, but the higher officers of each branch of the service arrived early as did many of the foreign military and naval attachés, the latter in their varied and picturesque uniforms and wearing many orders won in the last war.

REV. DR. A. W. JENKS, NOTED THEOLOGIAN, DIES

Professor of Church History at General Seminary and Author of Religious Works Was 58.

The Rev. Dr. Arthur Whipple Jenks, for twelve years professor of church history in the General Theological Seminary, Chelsea Square, died late on Tuesday from pneumonia at the home of his brother, Professor Paul R. Jenks, 41 Mitchell Avenue, Flushing. Dr. Jenks had long been a leader in ecclesiastical circles. He was the organizer of the courses of Lenten lectures at the Church of the Transfiguration, and had a wide reputation as a preacher, a conductor of retreats and a writer. He contributed special articles to magazines and was the author of "Beatitudes of the Psalter," "Moments of Rich Blessing," and "Books Suggested for a Theological Library." At the time of his death he was engaged in writing a "History of the General Theological Seminary" and "The Life of the Rev. Dr. De Koven."

Dr. Jenks was an enthusiastic musician and delighted in mountain climbing, spending his summers in the White Mountains. He invariably shared his bungalow at Whitefield, N. H., with a group of his theological students from New York. Attached to the cottage he had built a private altar, the Chapel of the Archangel, to which came each Sunday the guests from the neighboring mountain hotels.

Dr. Jenks was born in Concord, N. H., August 9, 1863, the son of George Edwin and Elisa Grover Jenks. He was graduated from Dartmouth College in 1884 and received the Degree of Doctor of Divinity from the same institution in 1911. He was a member of the class of 1892 of the General Theological Seminary, winning the degree of B. D.

He was ordained a deacon in 1892 and priest in 1893 both by Bishop Niles of New Hampshire, and was to have represented the diocese as a deputy in the General Convention of the church to be held in Portland in September of this year.

From 1895 to 1901 Dr. Jenks was professor of church history at Nashotah House, Wisconsin, and from 1901 until 1910 he held the chair of divinity and church history in Trinity College, Toronto. In 1910 he joined the faculty of the seminary in New York. He had traveled widely in Europe and it was said he had satisfied an ambition to play or every cathedral organ in England. He was a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Association and the Alpha Delta Phi Club of New York.

The funeral services will be held at the Seminary Chapel tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock. The interment will be in the family plot in Concord.

SEES TRAFFIC GAIN ON NEW HAVEN ROAD

Vice President Buckland Gives "Encouraging" Figures at the Stockholders' Meeting.

EXPECTS FUTURE DIVIDENDS

President Pearson Says Company Will Not Try to Control Boston & Maine Line.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 19.—Verbal fireworks were missing at the meeting of stockholders of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad here today, and the proceedings were the most placid in the last dozen years.

President E. J. Pearson was called to New York before the meeting opened, and his address, which amplified the company's annual statement sent to stockholders by mail, was read by Vice President E. G. Buckland, who added some up-to-the-minute figures of freight traffic over the system which, he said, were encouraging, a gain over the corresponding period last year being noted.

Mr. Buckland said he had received a statement showing that for the week of April 8-14 there was a freight increase of $117,000 over that of the same week a year ago; for the month of April $247,000 increase over April, 1921, and for the period Jan. 1 to April 14 the increase was more than $1,000,000. There had been in the last year a decrease in passenger service. The result of all services showed for the week of April 8-14 a gain of $60,641; for the month $101,000 and for the year $725,000 increase.

Hagop Bogigian of Boston made remarks about the need of the New Haven road having representation on the Boston & Maine Board of Directors to prevent the former being placed at a "disadvantage if the New York Central lines got control of the latter," and A. Maxcy Hiller of New Haven wanted the method of electing directors changed. At this latter suggestion Mr. Buckland laughed and did not entertain a motion.

Predicts Future Dividends.

In the matter of issuance of securities by the company for which authority was asked, Mr. Bogigian asked Mr. Buckland: "Will it take 75 to 100 years to put the road on its feet?"

"It will be a long time before then," Mr. Buckland replied. "If we get a reasonable return on our investments and business continues to gain, I expect to see this road pay dividends."

"Your company has not yet succeeded in securing a dissolution of the Federal decree which placed its investments in the trolleys and in Boston & Maine in the hands of trustees, but is hopeful the dissolution may be brought about," President Pearson said in his address.

"There seems to be no reason to doubt that your company may legally hold these securities and resume its interest in the trolleys and (under the limitation imposed by Massachusetts) in the Boston & Maine, so as to benefit these properties, your investment and the New England public. While the date within which by the decree the trustees are required to dispose of your holdings has been postponed from time to time there has never been a time when these holdings could have been sold at prices which would have been reasonable or in your interest.

Won't Seek to Control B. & M.

"As your ownership of Boston & Maine stock represents since the reorganization of the Boston & Maine but a minority slightly over 28 per cent., it is not intended that the New Haven will assume or attempt to assume control of the Boston & Maine. With representation on the board, however, proportional to your company's holdings, your company would be admitted to its counsels, as it of right ought to be, and would be in a position, first, to furnish the interests of the Boston & Maine to the fullest extent; second, to co-operate with the Boston & Maine in promoting all of those matters which are to the advantage of both companies and to the disadvantage of neither; and third, to assist in the solution of the important problems which will arise in respect to plans proposed by the Interstate Commerce Commission for consolidation of railways under the provisions of the Transportation act of 1920.

"The annual report states:

"'Based on the taxable valuation for 1920, the total value of all property, industrial, business and agricultural, in the territory served almost exclusively by the New Haven System approximates around $5,500,000,000 to $6,000,000,000. Further, the census reports for 1919 indicate a gross value per annum of manufactured and agricultural products alone in this territory of something over $3,500,000,000, whereas the total revenues of the New Haven system for that year approximate but 3.3 per cent. of that total.

"'With adequate compensation from each class of service, together with efficiency and economy of operation, the additional net income required is so small compared to the above stated total income from business and industry, that there is no reason to doubt that the return allowed by the Transportation act is possible without a restrictive rate basis for New England, or any action which would handicap New England industry, the interest of which it is the purpose of the company to foster and promote by every practical means consistent with maintaining and developing a sound and satisfactory system of transportation. Obviously, therefore, reasonable revenues must result from each general class of traffic.'"

INSANE WOMAN WINS $1,000,000 TAX SUIT

Virginia May Not Levy on Property of Miss Marie Marshall, Incompetent.

That the State of Virginia has lost a $1,000,000 suit against the committee of the property of Miss Marie Marshall, who has lived for many years in a private residence near the State asylum at Williamsburg, Va., to recover taxes for the period 1906-1916 was made known in the Supreme Court yesterday when Justice Delehanty appointed James V. Dunne referee to determine the value of the legal services of Henry F. Miller of New York and Charles V. Meredith of Virginia, who opposed the Virginia suit in behalf of Miss Marshall's committee.

Miss Marshall was born in New Orleans and was brought to New York with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Marshall, when she was a child. As she was nearing maturity her mind became impaired when she was visiting an aunt at Petersburg, Va. She was committed to the Eastern State Hospital for the Insane at Williamsburg. Her father died here in 1881, leaving a large estate in trust to his wife, who died four years later. The estate was divided among Miss Marshall and two sisters, the value of her share being several million dollars. She was a patient in the institution until 1897, when the committee of her person and property built a palatial home for her on the hospital grounds.

The suits, which if successful, would have awarded a large part of the estate to the State of Virginia, was based on the contention that although Miss Marshall lived in the State as the result of commitment to the asylum, she was a legal resident and should pay a tax. The Circuit Court, which was upheld later by the Supreme Court of Virginia, held that New York is still the domicile of Miss Marshall and that the State of Virginia cannot collect a tax on her personal property in this city.

The papers filed in the Supreme Court yesterday show that in 1918, Virginia amended its tax laws making a person who has maintained a habitation in the State for a year a resident for purposes of taxation.

PEACE PACT CITED IN SUIT.

Clergyman's Action Against Hungary Involves Senate Action.

Supreme Court Justice Delehanty will hear tomorrow a suit by the Rev. A. J. Cheohilis of the Russian Orthodox Church against the Hungarian Government to recover $200,000. The suit is based on allegations that the Government of Hungary agreed with the clergyman to conduct an immigrant home and steamship agency at 108 Avenue A, but abandoned the enterprise after it had spent a large sum fitting it up.

Through his attorney, Ralph M. Frink, the clergyman served his papers on Dr. Charles Winter, the Hungarian Consul General at his offices in the Cunard Building. Dr. Winter contends that Hungary cannot be sued in this country because it is a sovereign State.

Mr. Frink, in behalf of the clergyman, asserts that since the United States Senate added to the treaty between this country and Hungary a clause reserving to American citizens the advantages of the treaty made in Paris he can take advantage of Article 216 of the Treaty of Peace, which declares that in respect to international business Hungary can be sued in the American courts.

RADICALS' RELEASE ORDERED BY COURT

Ferguson and Ruthenberg Win a Certificate of Doubt Before Judge Cardoza.

SCOPE OF LAW QUESTIONED

Issue Is Raised Whether It Was Properly Construed in Anarchy Trial.

Judge Benjamin N. Cardoza of the Court of Appeals notified Assistant District Attorney John Caldwell Myers yesterday that he had issued a certificate permitting the release of Isaac E. Ferguson, former Chicago lawyer, and Charles E. Ruthenberg from Sing Sing Prison on bail, pending decision by the Court of Appeals on their application for a certificate of reasonable doubt on their conviction and sentence to from five to ten years for criminal anarchy.

The men were convicted before the late Justice Weeks in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court on evidence that they were responsible for the publication of propaganda in The Revolutionary Age, an organ of the Communist Party, advocating the overthrow of Government by force and violence. Ferguson acted as counsel for himself and Ruthenberg, who at one time was a candidate for Governor of Ohio.

About a week ago permission was granted Ferguson by Judge Cardoza to appear before him in his chambers at 51 Chambers Street and argue on behalf of himself and Ruthenberg on his application for a certificate which would release the prisoners, pending the decision of the court of Appeals on his application for a certificate of reasonable doubt. Ferguson appeared last Monday and was opposed by Assistant District Attorney Myers.

In a memorandum sent yesterday to the assistant prosecutor, Judge Cardoza said:

"I find that there is reasonable doubt whether the statute has been properly construed. The appeal brings up the question whether the prohibition of writings advocating anarchy, i. e., the destruction of all government, is equivalent to the prohibition of writings advocating sedition or revolution, resulting in change of government, as, e. g., a change from a republic to a monarchy, or from one form of republic to another. It brings up also the question whether the advocacy of a general strike as a probable forerunner of such a change is advocacy of the change through the adoption of 'unlawful means.'

"I find that there is reasonable doubt whether error was committed in holding that the defendants were proprietors of The Revolutionary Age within the meaning of Section 164 of the Penal law and in the instructions to the jury with reference thereto."

Judge Cardoza will fix the amount of bail on which Ferguson and Ruthenberg will be released next Saturday. He also will take under advisement at that time the application of Benjamin Gitlow, former Assemblyman, for release from Sing Sing under similar conditions.

WED, BUT SHE DIDN'T KNOW IT, BRIDE SAYS

Testifies in Annulment Suit She Thought It Was Only Part of Getting License.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., April 19.—Mrs. Rose R. Cohan of Anaonia, Conn., testifying today before Supreme Court Justice Morschauser in her suit for annulment of her marriage to Abraham Cohan, a dentist of Yonkers, charged that she had been tracked into a civil marriage at the City Hall in Manhattan on May 10, 1921, when she had been promised a ritualistic marriage, with a rabbi officiating. She and her husband never had lived together, she alleged, and her understanding was that the ceremony at the City Hall was only a part of the procedure of getting a license to marry.

Mrs. Cohan, who is 26 and attractive, said she was a first cousin of her husband.

"I signed the necessary blanks mechanically," said the plaintiff. "I heard some talking, but I didn't know I was being married. I can't, and never will, accept that kind of a marriage."

Mrs. Cohan said that Mr. Cohan, after the "visit" at the City Hall, as she described it, insisting that it was not a real marriage, gave her a ten-cent ring and told her they would have the orthodox wedding on Sept. 25, 1921.

Cohan declared today he would fight the suit, that he loved the girl and wanted to marry her now by the Jewish faith. Mrs. Cohan replied that she did not wish to marry him.

43 YEARS FOR BANDIT IN CRIME 'CLEAN-UP'

Twenty-Four Hours of Court Drive Results in 37 Convictions.

LIFE TERM FOR SLAYING

Jury Finds Him Guilty of Robbery, Where Victims Were Felled With Gas Pipe.

The third day of the cleanup of District Attorney Banton's calendar of crimes of violence resulted yesterday in a negro holdup man being sentenced to Sing Sing for forty-three years, another robber receiving a sentence of from twenty years to life for slaying his victim, and in the conviction of a third. Two other defendants, who had been indicted for murder in the first degree, pleaded guilty to manslaughter, and were remanded for sentence. A woman indicted during the day for the murder of her husband pleaded not guilty.

Figures made public by the District Attorney showed that in the twenty-four hours preceding noon thirty-seven persons were convicted in the eleven courts dealing with indictments for murder, manslaughter, robbery, burglary, carrying weapons and minor offenses. They showed fourteen sentences imposed, totaling more than sixty years.

Samuel Scott, 20 years old, who said he lived at 11 East 131st Street, was the negro who received the sentence of forty-three years. He was convicted on Tuesday before Justice Finch in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court on an indictment charging robbery in the first degree as a second offender. J. L. Hoffman, a Deputy United States Marshal, of 12 East 110th Street, told the jury that on March 20 last Scott and another negro held him up in the hallway of the tenement house at 8 West 135th Street, although he had two pistols in his pockets. The robbers took the pistols ad money and jewelry amounting to $200.

Many Complainants Appear.

Scott was identified at the time of his arrest as a negro who had been released from Sing Sing a short time before, after serving a term for robbery. After the jury had returned the verdict against him, Justice Finch stated that six other hold-up charges had been lodged against him since his arrest. The complainants in the additional cases, cost of them collectors for installment houses, were in court when Scott was convicted and identified him.

"I cannot find one extenuating circumstance in your case," said Justice Finch to the negro in imposing a forty-year sentence, which was increased by three years of the unexpired term of his last sentence. "It is true that you did not take a human life. You accomplished your purposes without that. You had previous warning through your prior conviction. You admitted on the stand that you had choked a man in robbing him, which led to your previous conviction."

Scott was immediately returned to the Tombs. He will be taken to Sing Sing this morning.

Judge McIntyre in General Sessions imposed a life term maximum on Clifford R. Hart, 20, of 46 West 127th Street for slaying John Berry, 51, a real estate owner, 310 West 123d Street, whom he undertook to rob of collections in the basement of 440 East 123d Street on March 13 last. Hart, who had been indicted for murder in the first degree, pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree. He confessed he struck Berry on the head with a piece of gas pipe. Hart escaped after the killing, but was captured in Trenton, N. J. After he had entered his plea of guilty to the lesser charge, his lawyer, Newman Levy, requested Judge McIntyre to impose sentence immediately.

Raymond Lyons, 22, of 187 Seventh Street, then was arraigned before Judge McIntyre on an indictment charging murder in the first degree for shooting and killing Michael Renner, 23, of 186 Avenue B on the night of March 15 last. Assistant District Attorney George N. Brothers told the court the only witness to the killing was a brother of the slain and suggested that Lyons be permitted to plead guilty to manslaughter in the first degree. Judge McIntyre consented, and remanded Lyons for sentence on April 28.

Lyons crept up behind Renner with a pistol while his victim was looking at a display of jewelry in the window of a store in Avenue B and shot him twice in the back.

The third man arraigned before Judge McIntyre on a first degree murder indictment was George Washington Hobbs, a negro, who gave the address 225 East 127th Street. He pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the first degree in accidentally shooting and killing George Dollies, 60 years old, while his victim was seated in the window of his home at 231 East 127th Street on the evening of July 19, 1919. Hobbs was being pursued by Captain John Noble and Detective Sergeants Shields and Butts when he killed Dollies with one of several bullets intended for the three detectives. He escaped from the detectives and recently surrendered to the police of Boston. He said he thought the detectives at whom he shot were men who had attacked him in a saloon. Judge McIntyre set April 25 as the date for sentence.

Negress Pleads Not Guilty.

Gladys Reeves, 24, a negress, of 167 West 143th Street, was arraigned before Justice Finch a few minutes after the Grand Jury had returned a first degree murder indictment against her for shooting and killing her husband, John, while he was asleep in their apartment. She was accused of having fired five shots into his body in a quarrel over the purchase of an Easter dress and bonnet. Terrance J. McManus, her lawyer, entered a plea of not guilty.

The first two cases tried before Judge Robert S. Johnstone resulted in convictions. Harry Glasener, 20, who said he was a chauffeur and lived at 1,048 Southern Boulevard, the Bronx, was found guilty of aiding others in stealing $10,000 in furs from Lazarus Brothers, 38 West Twenty-eighth Street, on Feb. 16, 1920. Judge Johnstone remanded Glasener for sentence on April 24.

Nicholas Mangini, 16 years old, of 55 East Houston Street, then was called to trial for taking 132 pieces of fur from the loft of David Scarfoli, 11 Bleecker Street, on the night of Oct. 28, 1921. Mangini was convicted late in the afternoon, and Judge Johnstone announced that he would impose sentence on April 22.

Henry Torne, 21 years old, a chauffeur, 106 West Fifteenth Street was found guilty of robbery in the first degree by a jury in Judge Talley's part of General Sessions. Eniogio Losado, a steamship water tender, stopping at 64 Horatio Street, and Zacharias Asalo, a sailor, of the same address, testified that Torne and several other young men who escaped assaulted them with a piece of gas pipe and robbed them of money and jewelry on the night of Sept. 11, 1921, in Eighth Avenue, between Fourteenth and Fifteenth Streets. Sergeant John B. Leahy of the Charles Street Station testified he saw the attack, and captured Torne in a nearby garage. Torne will be sentenced April 26. He refused to reveal the names of his accomplices.

Jacob Fleischman, 47, a salesman, of 300 West 116th Street, pleaded guilty before Judge Talley to three indictments charging participation with Henry A. Brummer, 23, of 367 East 155th Street, in the theft of $20,000 from the Broadway Central Bank, 2,574 Broadway. Brummer who was a bookkeeper in the bank, pleaded guilty on Jan. 26 last. Fleischman had deposited $1 in the bank, according to the statement made to the court by Assistant District Attorney Wallace, but in November drew to his own order three checks, totaling $20,000, which he deposited later in the Greenwich Bank, and which, when sent through the Clearing House, were honored by Brummer.

It was brought out by Mr. Wallace that the men got the money to capitalize a bootlegging venture, hoping the excessive profits would enable them to replace the money and hide their crime. Something went wrong with the venture, however, and the men lost the money. Both probably will be arraigned for sentence on April 25.

Disagreement in $34,000 Holdup.

A jury in the trial of Thomas Flanagan in General Sessions in connection with the holdup and theft of $34,000 from George Snyder, cashier for the J. M. Horton Ice Cream Company on July 11, 1921, reported a disagreement to Judge Mulqueen shortly after midnight yesterday. The jury had been out ten hours. Snyder was set upon by half a dozen armed robbers when taking the money to a bank. Flanagan was arrested, identified by Snyder and held in $15,000. He forfeited his bond but was captured later. District Attorney Banton said Flanagan would be placed on trial again for the holdup within a short time.

Justice Cohalan, in the Supreme Court, fixed bail at $15,000 in the case of David Ferter, 26, who said he lived at 916 Tiffany Street, the Bronx. He had been held without bail on April 12 for the Grand Jury, when arraigned before Magistrate Hatting in the Yorkville Court in connection with an attempted burglary of $10,000 worth of silks from a loft at 61 East Twenty-seventh Street. Ferter was arrested with "Waxey" Gordon, after a chase, by Policeman Lawrence.

OCEAN FLIERS HALTED BY DAMAGED MACHINE

Rio de Janeiro Hears Aviators Will Be Unable to Continue Flight to South America.

RIO DE JANEIRO, April 19 (Associated Press).—The Portuguese aviators who were attempting a flight from Portugal to Brazil will be unable to proceed in their hydro-airplane from St. Paul Rocks, a few hundred miles short of their goal on the American Continent, where they landed last night because of damage to their machine, according to a Havas dispatch from Pernambuco today.

The message says their hydro-airplane was so badly damaged in effecting the landing that it is no longer usable. The aviators, however, expect to save the motor.

PERNAMBUCO, Brazil, April 19 (Associated Press).—No official news had been received here today concerning the progress of the Portuguese aviators who landed at St. Paul Rocks last night. Latest reports from the French cable station at Fernando de Noronha, off the coast of Brazil, say the damage to the hydro-airplane in which the aviators were attempting a transatlantic flight was beyond repair. The aviators themselves, who are on board the Portuguese cruiser Republica, have sent no direct news.

Reports from the Republica said the plane was damaged while mooring, owing to a rough sea.

LISBON, April 19.—It was announced by the Ministry of Marine today that if the damage to the hydro-airplane on which the Portuguese aviators have flown to St. Paul's Rock is irreparable, another plane will be sent to enable Captains Countinho and Sacadura to continue their flight to South America.

TO LAY NEW CABLES.

Western Union and Postal Both Project Lines to Germany.

Newcomb Carlton, President of the Western Union Telegraph and Cable Company, returned yesterday on the Olympic from a seven weeks' trip to Europe, where he went chiefly to confer with the heads of the German Cable Company, and returned fully satisfied that there was a real prospect of America having its own cable to Northern Europe in the near future.

"It is no use for bankers and merchants to talk of developing American trade in Northern Europe while the cables remain entirely under the control of foreign corporations abroad," he said. "I was pleased to find that there was no opposition shown by the allied nations to our project. I understand that the Postal Telegraph and Cable Company is making similar arrangements for a cable to run from here to the Azores and then from there to Emden, Germany, but we do not conflict.

"The new cable, that we will lay down from here to the Azores, a distance of 2,400 miles, by next Summer, is the first progressive step in ocean cables since their inception. Through the developments made by the Western Electric Company the number of words transmitted in the course of a year will be increased from 5,000,000 to 50,000,000. I cannot promise a reduction in the tolls; they will certainly not be higher. The wireless telegraph will never supplant cables."

Mr. Carlton added that the length of the new German cable would be 4,400 miles and the building of the German end from the Azores would not be delayed, he said.

American Woman Can't Have 'Sam,' Home Secretary's Cat

LONDON, April 19.—A drastic decision recently was taken by the Home Secretary. On the staff at the Home Office is a member familiarly known to his colleagues as Sam. He is a large black cat whose duty is to keep the mouse population under control.

Visitors have been very much attracted to him, and an American woman who recently had business at the Home Office pleaded so hard to be allowed to take him back with her across the Atlantic that officials half consented.

They reckoned, however, without the Home Secretary. Mr. Shortt chanced to hear of Sam's impending departure. He issued certain orders, as a result of which Sam will remain where he is. Sam spends much of his time in the Home Secretary's rooms. His method of entry is the simple one of crying outside the door until he is let in. He never, however, has been known to betray an official secret.

ROBBER IS CAUGHT AS HE DRAWS PISTOL

Policeman Trails Suspected Man and Prevents Early Morning Hold-Up.

FOUR TAKEN IN AN AUTO

Two Guns Are Found on Floor of Car and One of the Prisoners Is Armed.

The vigilance of Policeman Schaedel of the Alexander Avenue Station at dawn yesterday resulted in the arrest of a bandit as he was about to hold up the ticket agent of the subway station at Brook Avenue and 138th Street. The robber had just drawn a pistol out when the policeman seized and disarmed him. The prisoner said he was Fred J. La Joie, 36, of Holyoke, Mass. La Joie admitted at the Alexander Avenue Station that a few minutes before his arrest he had robbed the butcher store of Leopold Freund, 686 East 134th Street, and obtained the pistol and $6.38 from the cashier's drawer. When arraigned before Magistrate Charles Harris in the Morrisania Court he was held in $25,000 bail for the Grand Jury.

Policeman Schaedel told the Magistrate he became suspicious of the man and followed him. He noticed that La Joie held tightly to something in his pocket as he approached the subway station. The policeman slipped up the subway station entrance and watched until he saw La Joie pull out the pistol and start toward the ticket agent's window.

Detective Sergeants Trebucci and Frickbohm and Policeman William S. King of the Mercer Street Station early in the day arrested four men loitering in an automobile near the residence of Rodman Wanamaker, Special Deputy Police Commissioner. Policeman King a few minutes before had intercepted the detectives as they were proceeding down Fifth Avenue in a police automobile and told them that he was suspicious of the four men.

He jumped into the detectives' automobile, and when they came across the men the detectives found two loaded pistols on the floor of their car. The four were arrested and with them Antonio Cervasio, 32, of 75 Drew Street; Joseph Hamilton, 32, of 559 Westchester Avenue; Frank Breese, 27, of 134 Washington Street, and John Palamara, 31, of 94 Purdy Avenue, all of Port Chester, N. Y. Detective Trebucci happened to bump against Cervasio and found he had a pistol in his hip pocket.

The occupants of the car said they had come down from Port Chester to view the sights in Greenwich Village. Having read of so many holdups in that part of the city, Cervasio was quoted as saying, he brought a pistol with him. The men denied they knew the other pistols were in their car.

Later they were held in $1,000 bail for Special Sessions on a charge of violating the Sullivan law when arraigned before Magistrate John E. McGeehan in the Essex Market Court.

2 BURGLARIES, HIDDEN BY POLICE, REVEALED

Floor of Shoe Store Cut Through From Cellar—$3,000 Taken From Millinery Safe.

Two week-end burglaries, one on the edge of Times Square, came to light yesterday. The police have withheld the details in accordance with Commissioner Enright's policy regarding such crimes.

The shoe store of I. Miller & Sons, Inc., at 1,554 Broadway, near Forty-seventh Street was entered some time before opening time Monday morning, it was learned. The thieves got into the cellar and sawed through the floor above.

A clerk in the executive offices of the concern at 562 Fifth Avenue confirmed the report of the burglary, but referred his questioner to Mr. Miller. The latter would not discuss the subject.

The second burglary took place in the millinery establishment of Goodman & Michaelson, 16 West Thirty-third Street. How the robbers gained entrance to the store was a mystery, a member of the firm said yesterday. No locks or windows were found broken when an examination was made Monday morning. The burglars blew open a safe and took $3,000.

The Edelman Millinery Shop, 1,556 Broadway, adjoining the store of I. Miller & Sons, Inc., was plundered in November, the burglars adopting the similiar expedient of entering through the floor from the cellar. They escaped with $3,000.

DENIES ETHER WAVE THEORY

Special to The New York Times.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., April 19.—Dr. Charles P. Steinmetz, the expert on electricity, denied today that ether in space is the transmitter of waves of sound and light. He declared that the belief in ether must be abandoned as contradictory to Einstein's theory of relativity, which, he said, is now meeting general acceptance.

Sound and light, he asserted, are born on the wings of electric magnetic energy which spreads through space when released at the point of inception, but do not form waves of motion in any body.

"For a long time we have believed that light is a wave motion of some hypothetical thing, called the ether," he said. "This theory was never satisfactory, because it required that the ether must be so extremely thin that the earth and all bodies move through it with terrific speeds—100,000 feet per second—without any trace of friction. And at the same time the ether must be a solid body of high rigidity. This is unreasonable. Finally, the belief in ether had to be abandoned as being contradictory to Einstein's theory of relativity, which is now meeting general acceptance.

"The mistake which led to the hypothesis of the ether was that wave motions were the only waves known at the time when the wave theory of light was proposed, and so the light wave also was considered as a wave motion, and the question asked, 'what moves in the light wave?' And this moving thing was called ether. Since that time we have become familiar with waves which are not wave motions, but merely periodic phenomena. Thus the alternating current is a wave, but nothing material moves in it. Thus we speak of waves of temperature, &c., without meaning any material motion.

"The radio waves and light waves are electro-magnetic waves—that is, period variations of the electro-magnetic field in space."

HYLAN QUOTES WALDO.

Gives Out Extracts From Letter Praising Administration.

Mayor Hylan gave out what he described yesterday as extracts from "an unsolicited letter" from former Police Commissioner Rhinelander Waldo.

"As a former Police and Fire Commissioner, I have observed with much interest," he said, "the administration of those departments under your guidance.

"I do not believe that they have ever been in better shape to render service than they are at present."

Sixty-Mile Gale Plays Havoc in Chicago; Little Girl Is Killed; Scores Are Injured

CHICAGO, April 19.—A little girl was killed, another child and a man were fatally hurt and scores of persons injured today when a sixty-mile wind storm swept Chicago and uprooted trees, uncroofed many buildings and destroyed hundreds of windows and signs. Snow flurries and freezing temperature followed in the wake of the gale, which lashed Lake Michigan into fury and caused storm warnings to be sent broadcast to mariners.

In the downtown district tall buildings acted as giant wind scoops, shooting the gale into the streets with such force that pedestrians were swept from their feet.

A mounted policeman was blown from his horse. On one downtown corner seven wagons were overturned in less than two hours. Many automobile tops were ripped from machines.

Tonight the Fire Department was busy in many outlying sections clearing the streets of trees snapped off or uprooted, fallen signs and electrical wires.

Scores of persons attending a meeting in the Emanuel Baptist Church, one of the landmarks of Chicago on Michigan Boulevard, narrowly escaped injury when the top of the spire fell through the roof of the auditorium.

Several persons were injured when the roof of the North Side Turner Hall was loosened, sending bricks into the streets.

During the height of the gale, the coast guard began a hard tussle to rescue the Uncle Sam, a fishing craft, with four men on board, which became disabled near the mouth of the Chicago River. The boat was badly pounded by the waves before the men were taken off. A lookout also was kept for the Halftath, a small power fishing boat, which has been missing since last night.

The snow flurries and cold were due, according to the Weather Bureau, to a storm in Wisconsin, which traveled from Manitoba yesterday and is now moving east across the lakes.

COURT ORDER STOPS SEIZURE OF LIQUOR

But Not Until $25,000 Worth Had Been Taken From Shine Hotel Living Rooms.

CROWD WATCHES RAIDERS

OOwner, Contending Search Warrant Was Exceeded, Hastily Gets Injunction.

A raid by the police last night on the living apartments of Timothy Shine's hotel and restaurant, 426-428 Seventh Avenue, near Thirty-third Street, was halted by an injunction from Supreme Court Justice Cohalan after about $25,000 worth of a $30,000 stock of alleged pre-prohibition' champagne and liquors had been removed to the West Thirtieth Street Police Station. Shine was arrested and released in $500 bail on a charge of violating the Mullan-Gage law. Hundreds of persons watched the raiders as the liquor was being loaded into patrol wagons.

The search warrant upon which the raid was made was issued by Justice Cohalan on evidence presented to him by detectives, who alleged that they bought liquor in the restaurant on Monday night. The raid was made by detectives on Chief Inspector Lahey's staff.

As soon as the search warrant was served and the detectives began to haul out the liquors, which were found in the living quarters in the hotel, Shine jumped into an automobile and went with his lawyers to Justice Cohalan. The lawyers pointed out to the Justice that the liquors were seized in the private quarters of the hotel proprietor, not covered by the search warrant. Justice Cohalan granted the injunction, restraining the police from removing the wines and liquors. The police made no further effort to remove any of the liquors after the injunction was served. They had already removed about 400 cases.

"The liquor and wines belonged to me long before we had prohibition," said Shine. Shine said that he knew nothing of the reported violation of the law Monday night. McManus, the waiter who is alleged to have sold the drinks, was arrested at the time and his case is till pending. Three uniformed policemen were stationed in the hotel and restaurant when the police left there last night.

Following a raid Saturday night on Charlie's Annex, a restaurant and club at 264 West Forty-third Street, when the owner, Lloyd Babcock, was arrested and five quarts of liquor seized, the police yesterday sent a patrol wagon there and carried away about 100 cases of alleged beer. A patrolman had been stationed in the restaurant since Saturday night. It is alleged that the police found in the basement, in the rear of a hand laundry, an outfit for the manufacture of beer and porter.

STUDENT PURSUED BY FIRES

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., April 19.—The cause of a fire discovered in the home of James Mulligan, Tax Collector of Bergenfield, near here, late last night by his son George, who recently resigned from Trinity College following an epidemic of fires, had not been established today after an investigation by Chief of Police Coombs. He announced that no suspicion attached to young Mulligan. Mr. Mulligan informed the police that it would have been impossible for the boy to start the fire, because he had been with the family for three hours before.

George, according to his father and other members of the family, was in his own room, about to retire, when they heard a crackling sound in the kitchen. George ran downstairs and called back that the kitchen was on fire. The blaze was extinguished with little damage.

"It is most unfortunate for this young man that this fire was found in his home so closely following his unpleasant experience at Trinity College," said Chief Coombs. "The college authorities exonerated Mulligan, and no suspicion should be attached to him in this case."

ARBUCKLE SHOCKED BY HAYS

Order Not to Show Films Leaves Comedian Almost Speechless.

LOS ANGELES, April 19.—Silence pending further developments was the avowed policy today of Roscoe C. (Fatty) Arbuckle, film comedian, whose finished screen plays have been withdrawn, according to an announcement in New York last night, by Will H. Hays, head of the Motion Picture Producers' Association.

"Gosh," was Arbuckle's comment, when informed late last night of Mr. Hays's announcement.

The portly comedian added:

"This is a complete surprise and I might say a shock to me. It is the first I have heard of it. I don't know what it is all about, for I thought I was well started on my comeback.

"You see, it's this way, Joseph Schenck of New York, who produces my pictures, will be in Los Angeles tomorrow. He will know all about this matter. As I am entirely at sea, as far as being able to explain it goes, I shall content myself with remaining silent."

RUM RAIDERS BEAT TWO STOREKEEPERS

Federal Agents Charged With Attacking Grocer Who Refused Them Liquor.

SEVEN ARRESTS IN YONKERS

Revolvers Flash, Bricks and Stones Fly in Battle in One Saloon—Troopers in Raid.

Yonkers, the home of William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, was visited yesterday morning by Federal prohibition agents for the fifth time in the last two years. They raided seven saloons, arrested seven bartenders and left as many summonses for the owners. A fight occurred in one place when the identity of the agents became known, and in another a pitcher was hurled at an agent, who dodged, however, in time to save himself. The agents were Peter Reager, John Kerrigan and Leonard M. Galante.

An incident occurred when the raids were taking place that was not related by the agents, but was told to the police in Yonkers. John Sabavnick, a grocer, of 202 Riverdale Avenue, obtained in the City Court three "Jonn Doe" warrants for Federal prohibition agents who had attacked him. The warrants were turned over to the Yonkers Detective Bureau, and Sabavnick, accompanied by an officer, came to Manhattan to identify his assailants.

Sabavnick says he was alone in his store about noon yesterday when three men entered and asked for liquor. He told them he had none and the three men struck him many blows on the face and body. His cries brought several persons, to whom, Sabavnick says, the three men showed Federal badges, but refused to give their names.

Another storekeeper also reported that three men representing themselves to be prohibition agents had beaten him.

The three Federal agents centred their activities in Riverdale Avenue, the Polish section of Yonkers. In a saloon at 142 Riverdale Avenue, they allege, Frank Budinsky, the bartender, was serving them with drinks at 25 cents a drink, when some one who had seen them in earlier raids entered and, speaking Polish, told the bartender who they were. William Budinsky, a brother, who is said to be the owner of the saloon, joined the group and, the agents said, one of the brothers attacked Reager with an ice pick. The agents drew revolvers and the two brothers fled to the street. The agents followed. A large crowd that had gathered began throwing stones and bricks and, according to the agents, one brick struck Frank Budinsky on the head, felling him, and William Budinsky was soon captured. After Frank's injury had been dressed at the hospital the two men were taken to the police station.

The agents then entered a saloon owned by Patrick Day at 145 Riverdale Avenue. There, said they, were served with drinks at 25 cents each and that the bartender, Conrad Cylawa, upon learning their identity, threw a water pitcher, which narrowly missed Kerrigan. The bartender was arrested and a summons left for the owner.

William H. Anderson visited Director Day's office yesterday, but his visit had nothing to do with the raid in Yonkers, according to the Director. This is Mr. Anderson's second visit to prohibition headquarters since Mr. Day has been in charge. The Director said Mr. Anderson gave him information regarding certain places where an investigation was desired.

Haverstraw, N. Y., on the west shore of the Hudson River, was visited in the afternoon by twenty State troopers from White Plains in charge of Lieutenant E. C. Robertson. They were accompanied by Under Sheriff Robert Wood of New City. The officers had warrants to search five places, four trespassers entering each saloon. Five arrests were made and two truckloads of whisky and wine seized.

The defendants were arraigned before Police Judge John Champeau and held in $1,000 bail for the Grand Jury, which will convene at New City next week.

MAY EXPEL ARMENIANS.

Berlin Authorities Discuss Such Action in View of Murder of Turks.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 19.—The expulsion of all Armenians from Germany is being seriously considered by the authorities in consequence of the recent political murder of two Young Turk leaders and the threatening letters which have been received by others, Berlin's Armenian colony numbers about 300.

The Berlin criminal police are beginning to have doubts whether the headquarters of the supposed Armenian murder society is in America, as they asserted yesterday. At any rate, according to the police, there are secret Armenian committees in Berlin, Paris, Geneva, Lausanne, Rome and other European cities which maintain intimate communication. These committees, it is said, are sworn to avenge the Armenian massacres, and in Berlin they made a beginning by killing Talaat Pasha.

The Turks killed yesterday were members of the Central Council of the notorious Committee of Union and Progress and were intrusted in 1916 by the Turkish Government with carrying out the Armenian deportations.

WOULD BAR TRANSIT OF LIQUOR IN BOND

Government Also Would Prevent Its Transfer From Ship to Ship in Harbor.

CASES IN SUPREME COURT

Assistant Attorney General Goff Contends That Eighteenth Amendment Excludes Transportation.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The Federal Government, enforcing prohibition, would close its ports to the extent of prohibiting the transit in bond through the country, or even the transfer from one ship to another in any of its harbors, of liquor intended for consumption as a beverage in a foreign country, Judge Goff, assistant to the Attorney General, declared today in arguing cases in the Supreme Court.

The cases involve a shipment from Canada to Mexico by Hiram Walker & Sons of intoxicating liquor to be transshipped in bond from Detroit to New Orleans, and a shipment of liquor by the Anchor Line from Scotland to Bermuda by transfer from one British vessel to another in New York harbor.

Judge Goff explained that in the former case the United States District Court at Detroit held that both the treaty with Great Britain and the revised statutes, notwithstanding the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act, had authorized such shipments, but the United States District Court at New York, in the matter of the transfer, had held that both the revised statutes sections and the treaty with Great Britain, which authorized the transit of intoxicating liquors had been repealed and abrogated, respectively.

Seeks a Close Barrier.

It is the purpose of the Government in pressing the cases to prevent both the transshipment and transfer of liquor, Judge Goff stated, because of the large amount which while in transit is either pilfered or diverted.

"The United States exerted its sovereign power and withdrew its protection and recognition of liquor as a commodity of commerce," Judge Goff said, adding that the Government insisted that the language of the Eighteenth Amendment excluded the transportation of liquor in bond through the United States.

All transportation within the jurisdiction of the United States of liquor for beverage purposes was prohibited, he continued, emphasizing that the exportation of liquor had been prohibited. Congress had refused the protection of the Government to liquor intended for beverage purposes, no matter whether destined to citizens of this country or to persons in other countries. A commodity must be capable of being imported before it could be admitted, Judge Goff argued, even to the extent of being transferred from one ship to another.

Justices Make Comments.

Justices Van De Vanter and McReynolds suggested that if Congress had prohibited the exportation of liquor by citizens of the United States the transit in bond or the transfer in bond within this country, for the benefit of foreigners, probably was not intended.

Counsel for the shippers insisted that the Detroit decision should be sustained, contending that, notwithstanding the opinions expressed by Presidents Cleveland and Harrison that the section of the British treaty in question had been abrogated, it remained in force; that the leaks and pilfering had been over-emphasized by the Government, and that, as the United States was a large exporting nation, consideration should be given to maintaining friendly relations with foreign nations.

They also referred to the "instability" of prohibition, counsel for the Anchor Line asserting that the construction sought by the Government would impose a "severe strain" upon the Eighteenth Amendment.

SEE A LIQUOR 'JOKER' IN BOUNDARY SURVEY

Connecticut Officials Suspicious of 'Repeal' of Border Line in Bill Passed at Albany.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 19.—Governor Lake, who is still considering the invitation of a New York commission to send an observing engineer to check up the resurveying of the New York-Connecticut State boundary line for twelve miles south of the Massachusetts line, heard today rumors that the Plunkett bill, which authorized the survey, may have a rum-running "joker" in it.

Engineers who know of former surveys are of the opinion that this particular section of the line is the most accurately determined of the whole boundary. In the days when the licensing of liquor saloons was an issue there is said to have been considerable manipulation of the line. If Salisbury, the northwestern town of Connecticut, went "No license," a few boundary stones might some morning he found moved eastward enough to put some desirable barroom in New York State.

As a result of the legal confusion which followed the survey of 1854, a small triangular piece at the junction of Massachusetts, Connecticut and New York was left as a sort of no man's land for several years.

One clause in the Plunkett bill "repeals" the present boundary until the line shall be determined by a survey by the New York State engineering department. Connecticut State officials hold that New York cannot abrogate the boundary agreement arrived at after a survey by a joint commission in 1919, ratified by the Legislatures of both States, and accepted by the Federal government.

WANTS $30,000,000 RUM LOANS FREED

Attorney Discusses Liquidation of Warehouse Certificates With Director Day.

Colonel Thomas H. Felder of 165 Broadway, attorney for banks and other interests who hold about $20,000,000 worth of liquor warehouse certificates, yesterday visited Ralph A. Day, Federal Prohibition Director for this State, to see if some arrangements could be made for the liquidation of all or a part of the warehouse certificates now in the hands of his clients. Colonel Felder had already conferred with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and other officials in Washington. He had been advised, it was said, to take the matter up with local prohibition officials.

Director Day referred Colonel Felder to William S. Bogart, head of the legal division. Director Day said later that he would go over the matter with Mr. Bogart, but that now he could promise no better results than those obtained in Washington.

"There are $100,000,000 outstanding loans of banks on warehouse certificates," Colonel Felder said, as he left prohibition headquarters. He said the banks of Louisville, Ky., which he represents, had $7,000,000 outstanding. The bank examiners upon visiting the banks have instructed them to liquidate the loans, but under the present conditions it is impossible for the banks to do so, it is said, because there is no way that the liquor can be legally released on account for medicinal purposes and the withdrawals have been cut down by the prohibition officials.

Maine Fund Subscribers See Battleship Go to Graveyard

PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—The obsolete battleship Maine, named after the ship whose sinking in Havana Harbor brought on the Spanish-American War, was towed to her graveyard today. The former pride of the navy, built two decades ago at a cost of several million dollars, is at the yards of a commercial firm which will scrap her and convert her armor plates to industrial needs.

Tugs towed the steel hulk from the Philadelphia Navy Yard up the Delaware River, while hundreds of persons who twenty years ago gave dimes in the popular subscription for the battleship's construction, looked on. She was sold recently at auction as junk for less than $100,000.

BULGARIA REJECTS THE HOLLIS DIVORCE

PASTOR WAS UNRECOGNIZED

Proceedings Are Now to Be Started Against Him—Hollis Believes It Will Stand.

SOFIA, April 19 (Associated Press).—The Department of Religion and Education of the Foreign Office has advised the Bulgarian Legation in Washington that the divorce issued to former United States Senator Henry F. Hollis of New Hampshire by the pastor of the Unitarian Church at Dubnitza is not officially recognized by the Bulgarian State, and possesses no legal force.

The Religion Department denies having given official approval to the diverse papers, and the Government is instituting proceedings against Pastor Topilisky who granted the divorce.

Dr. Dobtchef, professor of canonical law at Sofia University, declares the divorce invalid by virtue of the Bulgarian laws. He points out that Bulgarian religious authorities have not the power to annul a marriage concluded civilly either at home or abroad, and says that only the civil authority which executed such a marriage can annul it.

The Bulgarian newspapers are printing long articles commenting upon the strangeness of the case. Mr. Hollis is well known here, as he had represented a large American corporation endeavoring to sell the Government excess American war stocks of freight cars.

PARIS, April 19 (Associated Press.)—Former United States Senator Hollis, when informed of the Bulgarian Government's action in declaring his recent divorce illegal, said:

"All I care to say now is that I acted upon what I considered sound legal advice. I am confident the divorce will stand."

He added that the divorce documents had been authenticated by the Bulgarian Minister in Rome.

Pastor's Plea a Handicap.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The Bulgarian Legation confirmed cable dispatches from Sofia today that the Bulgarian Government had not officially recognized the Hollis divorce.

A cablegram received at the legation today declared that the divorce was "illegal and irregular" in that the minister of the Unitarian Church at Dubnitza who issued to Mr. Hollis his divorce decree had not been recognized officially by the Bulgarian Government.

Zaprian D. Vidoloff, Second Secretary of the Bulgarian Legation, who is a Baptist minister, said today that he is acquainted with Topilisky. He said that Topilisky's church had but a few members and that so far as he knew it was the only Unitarian congregation in Bulgaria.

Mr. Vidoloff recalled today that Topilisky, when drafted for military service, claimed exemption on the ground that he was a clergyman.

First Wife Will Not Act Now.

Special to The New York Times.

CONCORD, N. H., April 19.—Edward K. Woodworth of counsel for Mrs. Grace B. Hollis, said today that the attitude of the Bulgarian Government toward the Hollis divorce bore out his assumption of the situation from the start.

No steps are contemplated by Mrs. Grace Hollis at present, Mr. Woodworth said, and whatever action is taken will be governed by future developments.

E. T. Moore, law associate of former Senator Hollis, said yesterday that the dispatch from Bulgaria to the effect that the devorce granted Senator Hollis there is invalid was "not air" and ridiculous.

"The divorce was perfectly legal," he said. "The decree was issued by the Foreign Office after it was granted, and was approved by the Mayor of Rome. There is no doubt about its legality. Mrs. Hollis has never questioned it, so far as I know; at least, she has taken no action."

SON OF MILLIONAIRE HELD.

Is Taken to Bellevue Suffering From Effects of Drugs.

A young man, said to be the son of a millionaire, who was wounded while serving as an aviator in the A. E. F., was taken to Bellevue yesterday suffering from the effects of drugs and hallucinations. He is charged with violation of the Sullivan and narcotic laws.

When taken to the East 104th Street Station he described himself as "George Harrison," 28 years old, residing at a hotel on Forty-seventh Street near Broadway. The name, the police say, is fictitious. Harrison was arrested by Special Deputy Commissioner Carleton Simon, assisted by Detective Lieutenants Joseph J. Mooney and Charles Graham, at Ninety-second Street and Park Avenue.

He is charged with being the owner of three revolvers and having cocaine and heroin. Peter B. Olney, his counsel, accompanied him to Bellevue, and said that "George Harrison," to protect his family had asked that the fictitious name be given. Commissioner Simon also refused to disclose the prisoner's identity or address.

Gilleran heard a suspiciously familiar sound and ran back to the car in time to see a man crank it and jump in. Asked what he was doing, the man said he was playing "joke." Egan and Gilleran said the joke was on him and took him to the station on a charge of grand larceny.

LANDLORDS OPPOSE GAS SAFETY DEVICE

Storm Hearing and Rail at Kenlon, Who Wants Cut-Off Outside All Buildings.

HYLAN HELPLESS IN UPROAR

Vetoes Ordinance After Meeting and Asks Amendment to Make Gas Companies Pay Cost.

As many landlords as could crowd into the Board of Estimate chamber at the City Hall vigorously protested yesterday against the ordinance passed by the Aldermen requiring the installation of gas cut-offs on buildings. The opposition took the form, for the most part, of noisy and threatening attacks upon Fire Chief John Kenlon, the main defender of the ordinance.

After the demonstration, Mayor Hylan announced he would veto the ordinance and send it back to the Board of Aldermen for amendment to provide that the gas company pay the cost of installation. The main opposition was to the fact that owners of buildings had to pay the cost of installing the device.

The disorder began when Chief Kenlon intimated that landlords were making enough through high rents to assume the cost themselves. Yells of derision greeted the statement and only continued threats by the Mayor restored order.

Mr. Kenlon said leaking gas was one of the greatest menaces with which firemen had to contend.

"This is a question of lives, not of dollars," he shouted, and the disturbance broke out afresh.

"What man or woman is there here who would not spend $25 to save the life of a fireman?" he asked when he could be heard. Only faint applause followed.

"Who are the people who are opposed to this ordinance?" he asked. "They are the landlords, many of whom are getting large sums of money for single rooms."

There was constant interruption, which the Mayor was powerless to prevent.

"I'll say what I please," shouted Kenlon above the uproar. "It's all money. Life means nothing to you, nothing."

"Drag him down!" "Throw him out!" "He pays taxes in Jersey!" were some of the yells that greeted the speaker, and the crowd at the rear of the room began to push forward. Fists were shaken at Kenlon and "boos" and "catcalls" came from all over the room. The Fire Chief waited for a lull.

When a semblance of quiet was restored, Chief Kenlon paid a tribute to the work of the firemen and told of their dangers. He said it had been estimated that the installing of the device would cost $40,000,000, whereas, he said, it wouldn't cost half that.

"Anyway," he said, "the property owners will get their money back in reduced insurance rates in five or six years."

When the hearing was over the Mayor said that, while he thought the principle involved was a good one and that it would save the lives of firemen and occupants of buildings, he thought the cost of installing the cut-offs should fall upon the gas companies, and not the property owners, and he would send the measure back to the Aldermen to have the matter thrashed out.

Later the Mayor formally vetoed the ordinance and returned it to the Aldermen with a message.

FORD TAKES NO STAND ON REFUNDING PROFITS

Tells Mellon He Did Not Authorize the Statement That He Returned $29,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, April 19.—A special dispatch from Washington to the Detroit Journal today says:

"Henry Ford has never seen the book entitled, "The Truth About Henry Ford," nor did he authorize its publication, consequently he feels no responsibility for its circulation or statements it may contain.

"This is the Detroit automobile manufacturer's answer to a letter which Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon wrote him several weeks ago inquiring about a statement in the book to the effect that Mr. Ford had returned war profits amounting to $29,000,000 to the Government of the United States.

"When the book, which was written by Sarah T. Bushnell, first appeared it caused considerable comment in Washington, for it contained the direct statement that Mr. Ford had refunded all his war profits to the Government. It was said that this refund amounted to $30,000,000.

The Treasury Department promptly announced that there was no record of any such payment and naturally there was considerable interest in the matter.

Mrs. Bushnell stated in the preface of the book that she wished to acknowledge gratitude to Mrs. Henry Ford, from whom she had received most of her data. "She personally helped me to secure accurate and authentic information," the preface sets forth.

"Mr. Ford was in Florida when Secretary Mellon's letter reached Detroit and it was not until a day or so ago that the Detroit manufacturer's reply was received.

"In his letter to Mellon, Ford makes no claim that the refund was made as alleged in the book. He simply declares that he did not authorize the statement about his refund of war profit, consequently that he feels no responsibility for it.

"On January 14, 1919, before a Senate committee which was investigating war contracts, Alfred Lucking, Mr. Ford's attorney, stated that Mr. Ford would refuse personally to accept a cent of profit from his various war contracts."

CONFERS ON REILY CASE.

President Goes Over Charges Against the Porto Rican Governor.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—President Harding is studying the Porto Rican situation and the difficulties between Governor Reily and the Unionist Party who have instigated charges against the Governor in the House. This was learned today after a conference the President held with Secretary Weeks and Representative Towner, Chairman of the Insular Affairs Committee.

All records, data and cablegrams in the War Department bearing on the administration of Governor Reily are understood to have been laid before the President by Secretary Weeks. No conclusion was reached at this morning's conference, it was said.

A number of Republicans in the House have become restive over the Reily case and want the Administration to take steps to allay criticism that has arisen over his appointment. These intimations have been carried to the White House by House leaders, together with fears that unless the President acts, several Congressmen, including Humphreys of Mississippi, author of the resolution calling for an investigation of the situation, will try to impeach the Governor.

The President has been informed that whatever the merits of the original dispute between Reily and the Unionist Party, there is a growing opinion among House Republicans that the Governor has outlived his usefulness and that conditions will not become quiet on the island until he leaves.

Reports were current in Washington today that the President had decided to remove Reily and so forestall any movement against the Governor in the House. Although said to come from sources close to the Administration, these reports were not supported by competent evidence. The only official indication as to the President's attitude recently was an announcement at the White House last week that Mr. Harding retained the fullest confidence in Reily and was irritated by the campaign of his Porto Rican opponents.

SENATE NOW FACES TARIFF ACTION DELAY

Bill Comes Up Today, but Senator McCumber Will Not Be There to Pilot It.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The Administration Tariff bill is to be called up tomorrow in the Senate, out in the absence of Senator McCumber, Republican, North Dakota, who is to have charge of it, the program for its consideration was tonight somewhat indefinite. Senator McCumber was returning tonight from his home in North Dakota and planned to be on hand in time to pilot the bill's course from the outset.

Some Senators on the Finance Committee hoped that the usual reading of the measure could be dispensed with, but since this would require unanimous consent they were not very optimistic. If the reading of the 440-page document is insisted upon there will not be much more than that accomplished tomorrow. The usual procedure next would be for Mr. McCumber to make the opening address. Normally on such a bill there would be two or three weeks of general debate, but this practice may be departed from, as it was by the late Chairman Penrose, when tax revision legislation was before the Senate last year.

Senator Simmons of North Carolina, ranking Democrat on the Finance Committee, said today the minority report would not be ready tomorrow. He will open the general Democratic onslaught on the measure, but it is not now certain when he will speak.

If the general debate should be dispensed with the measure would be taken up for amendments, with the chemical schedule first. There are to be assaults generally on the rates, and some idea of the time the Senate will be engaged on the bill can be gained when it is borne in mind that the Senate Committee made more than 2,000 amendments to the House bill.

Republican Senators of the Agricultural-Tariff bloc held another session today, discussing rates in which they are interested. Senator Gooding of Idaho, Chairman, declared the bloc stood by the original rates asked of the Finance Committee majority, in the hope that the increases they seek could be presented in the form of committee amendments. Rates on sugar were discussed at some length, but a final decision was postponed.

MISS BOURNE GIVES $500,000 TO CHARITY

Ex-Senator's Sister Leaves $300,000 for Country Resting Place for Nurses.

$250,000 GIFT TO NIECE

$20,000 to the Workshop for the Blind Here—Estate Is Valued at $1,000,000.

The will of Miss Emily Howland Bourne, sister of ex-Senator Jonathan Bourne of Oregon, filed here for probate yesterday, gives nearly half of her estate of $1,000,000 "for the relief of the needy and suffering poor and the general benefit of humanity." Miss Bourne, who was the daughter of Jonathan Bourne of New Bedford, Mass., and who had a Summer home there, but lived in the Winter at 117 West Fifty-eighth Street, died on March 23.

Miss Bourne in 1912 presented to the New York Association for the Blind the Bourne Workshop for the Blind at 338 East Thirty-fifth Street, a new structure, as a memorial to her family. The cost of the plant was $107,000. Her will gives an additional sum of $20,000 to the Bourne Workshop.

"As the property of my father was sufficient to amply provide for his children," the will said, "it has accordingly seemed right to me not to add to the large fortunes of those most nearly related to me, but rather to do what I think they would most appreciate, and, after making them gifts as tokens of my affection, to devote the bulk of my fortune to trying to make comfortable the lives of those who have slender means and to the relief of the needy and suffering poor and the general benefit of humanity."

The largest bequest, $300,000, is left to the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor to be used "in establishing and maintaining a country place where nurses from New York City can obtain needed rest and stay while convalescent."

Miss Bourne gave $10,000 to Yale for a Jonathan Bourne scholarship, in memory of her father; $15,000 to the Seaman's Church Institute, $10,000 to the Legal Aid Society, $4,000 to the New York City Mission and Tract Society, $5,000 to the Fund for the Relief of the Widows and Orphans of the Protestant Episcopal Church; $5,000 to the Hunt Memorial Building, built by her; $5,000 to St. Mary's on the Mountain, Sewanee, Tenn.; $1,000 to the Church Periodical Fund, $10,000 each to the Henry Street Settlement, and the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary; $5,000 to the George Junior Republic, and $3,000 to the Grenfell Association. Many bequests are made to institutions in Boston, New Bedford and Bourne, Mass.

Miss Bourne gives $10,000 to Yale for M. Gummere, widow of the late Professor Gummere of Haverford, and her son, Francis B. Gummere of Haverford, Pa., gets $5,000, and $5,000 goes to Emily J. Putnam of 355 West Eighty-sixth Street and $1,000 to her husband, George Haven Putnam.

A specific bequest of $250,000 and all Miss Bourne's personal effects go to her niece, Emily Bourne Michler of Greenwich, Con. Her children, Gordon and Joanna Michler, get $30,000 each. Miss Bourne gives $25,000 in trust to her brother, ex-Senator Jonathan Bourne, and directs that upon his death the principal be used for a memorial for him in his "adopted city," Portland, Oregon.

The will gives $10,000 to Helen Marriman, a niece, of Providence, R. I., and a like sum to her brother, Henry Pierce Jr., of the Hope Club at Providence.

Among bequests to friends are: Mrs. Frank B. Nye, Cambridge, Mass., $5,000; Miss Winifred Holt, of the New York Association for the Blind, $25,000, and Mrs. Mary Borglum, wife of Gutzon Borglum, sculptor, $1,000.

The will names Oliver Prescott of New Bedford and Lucius H. Beers of New York as administrators.

WANTS BROADWAY BRILLIANT

Heart of New York Association Opposes Dimming Signs.

A meeting of the Heart of New York Business Men's Association was held yesterday afternoon at Keen's Chop House, 107 West Forty-fourth Street, to devise means to prevent the abolishing of electric signs in the vicinity of Times Square. It was suggested that a censorship committee of sign manufacturers be formed to pass on all signs erected in this section. Representatives of theatre owners and the Society Restaurateurs to oppose any further movement to restrict illuminated signs in this district.

BANKS GLEE CLUB SINGS.

Bruno Huhn Conducts Men's Chorus of 90 in Last Concert of Season.

The New York Banks Glee Club gave the last concert of its forty-third season at Carnegie Hall last evening, its ninety singing members, assisted by Kathryn Meisle, contralto, and Ilse Niemack, violin. Bruno Huhn conducted the men's chorus in Coleridge-Taylor's "Drake's Drum," Franz Abt's "Evening," Monk's "Good Night, Beloved," and his own "Balaklava," which was sung with a vim.

There were also Laurent de Rillie's "The Christian Martyrs" and, in lighter vein, Cecil Forsythe's "Tobacco," Caro Roman's "Caroline" and Julius Otto's "The Gongs Are Beating," a Chinese burlesque march. William Falk accompanied at the piano.

Miss Niemack played solos by Wieniawski and Tchaikovsky and Miss Meisle gave songs by Laura Lemon and James Rogers and an air from "The Barber of Seville."

Therese Duncan, Dancer, Applauded.

Therese Duncan, one of the European girl dancers brought here formerly by Isadora of that name, appeared in a solo recital at the Garrick Theatre yesterday in remarkably varied interpretations, so far as the dance may interpret them, of piano works by the Scarlattis, Beethoven, Schubert and Chopin. Most novel were Beethoven's little "Bagatelles," Opus 33, Nos. 1 to 6; most effective, however, the Schubert group of "Moments Musicales," one or two famously familiar, and all lending graceful rhythm to the embodied poetry of motion. Egon Puts accompanied at the piano and a matinee audience applauded the young Miss Duncan.

'Partners Again' Coming to Selwyn.

The new Potash and Perlmutter play, "Partners Again," will begin an engagement at the Selwyn Theatre a week from next Monday night. The new play, which is the work of Montague Glass and Jules Eckert Goodman, reunites Barney Bernard and Alexander Carr in the characters of Potash and Perlmutter.

MUSIC NOTES.

Laura Williams appears tomorrow at the Plaza, small ballroom in a recital of folk songs, including American, Irish, French, Greek and Japanese.

The Universal Sunset Club will be guests at a wireless concert at the Waldorf-Astoria broadcasting station tomorrow afternoon.

The Banks Glee Club's program, as given at Carnegie Hall last night, will be repeated tomorrow at Arlington, N. J.

Charles T. Griffes's posthumous "Salut au Monde," will be heard for the first time at the Neighborhood Playhouse on Saturday evening.

Roberto Rotondo, tenor of St. Vincent Ferrer Church, will sing Saturday evening in the United Engineering Societies' assembly hall.

200 GIRLS IN A PANIC AS A GOWN SHOP BURNS

Fire in Fifty-seventh St., Near Fifth Ave., Causes Damage of $50,000.

Fire which started in the basement of Tappe, Inc., a millinery and gown shop at 9 East Fifty-seventh Street, yesterday morning destroyed nearly $10,000 worth of hats and dresses and damaged the building to the extent of about $50,000. The 200 young women who are employed in the establishment became panic-stricken as the clouds of smoke filled every stairway and exit, and it was with difficulty that some of them were rescued.

The blaze was discovered by Floyd Macdonald, the shipping clerk, whose attention was attracted to the shooting flames by the barking of Jojo, Mr. Tappe's pet fox terrier. Macdonald turned in an alarm and ran upstairs, calling to everybody to get out. The building is equipped with a fireproof stairway to comply with the law, but in their excitement many of the employes made no effort to use it. One of them, Kitty Robinson, on the third floor, hastily knotted together a couple of sheets and slid down the improvised rope into the rear areaway. Mr. Tappe said that it was only the fact that a policeman caught her that saved her life.

Fireman Walter G. Murphy of Truck No. 1, who happened to be walking past the building when the alarm was turned in, ran up to the top floor and found Miss Cecelia Tappe, a member of the firm, half unconscious from smoke. He picked her up and carried her to the roof, where he dropped from overexertion. Patrolman Thompson of the West Forty-seventh Street Station got them to safety.

According to Mr. Tappe, some of the gowns ruined belonged to Mrs. George Vanderbilt and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt. Others destroyed were in the shipping room waiting for the expressman.

"THE VALKYRIE" SUNG.

Claussen and Kingston Among Stars in Admirable Performance.

"The Valkyrie" was sung for the sixth time to a crowded house in the Metropolitan's week of farewells last evening, when Wagner's musical evocation of Northern mythology brought a new alignment of leading artists and at least one complication of the Norse gods' family relations never before remembered. It was, musically, an admirable performance under Mr. Bodanzky's direction; in respect of stars, it was noteworthy that the restored German text was sung wholly by artists who could have given as good account of themselves in the vernacular, and who in other works not so long ago had done so.

The Volsungs, Siegmund and Sieglinde, were Morgan Kingston and Florence Easton, heard to admiration in the lovers' Spring song of the first act. William Gustafson was Hunding, slain in the second. Julia Claussen was the Brunnhilde, Clarence Whitehill a noble Wotan, while his goddess wife was not Jeanne Gordon, still indisposed, but Grace Bradley, who also sang the first of two "second contraltos" in the minor Valkyries' octet. Miss Bradley, for two years a member of the company, had her first sudden chance at a name role and in the circumstances acquitted herself well.

EAGER FOR DECAMERON PLAY

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 19.—Drury Lane Theatre, reconstructed and refurnished, opens tomorrow night with the romantic play "Decameron's Nights," by an American, Robert McLaughlin. The piece has been prepared for the London stage by Boyle Lawrence and Herman Finck has written the music for it.

Tomorrow night at Drury Lane promises to be a big event. Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles will be there with many other notables. Such is the demand for seats that people began to gather outside the theatre at 8:30 tonight prepared to wait twenty-four hours until the doors open.

By midnight quite a number of people had settled down in a passage which leads to the pit entrance. Some of them had provided themselves with refreshments and camp stools, while others were sleeping on the theatre doorsteps.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Back to Methuselah" will remain one more week at the Garrick Theatre, and "What the Public Wants" will be presented on May 1.

Elizabeth Murray has been added to those who will appear at the Rose Coghlan benefit performance at the Apollo Sunday night.

Helen Gill has been engaged for "The Advertising of Kate."

Alice Brady will begin a Spring engagement in Keith vaudeville on May 1 at the Bushwick. Fannie Brice is also returning to vaudeville, and will be seen at the Palace on May 15.

Monday, May 8, will be celebrated as Nutley night at "To the Ladies," the scenes of which are laid in Nutley. Several hundred residents of Nutley will be present.

A benefit performance in aid of Temple Israel of Jamaica will take place at the Ambassador Theatre on April 30.

A performance in aid of the National Hospital for Speech Disorders will be given at the Hamilton Theatre on Sunday, May 7, by courtesy of the Keith organization.

Seven hundred members of Private Nathan Davis Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will attend "The Rose of Stamboul" tonight.

Captain Harry C. C. Mills, Cousin of Lascelles, Arrives on the Olympic.

AIRPLANE STUNT HIS AIM

Wants to Slide Down Rope, Mount Horse and Climb Back to Plane, He Says.

The most conspicuous figure among the 407 first cabin passengers who arrived from Southampton and Cherbourg yesterday on the White Star liner Olympic was Captain Harry C. G. Mills of the Seventh Dragoon Guards, cousin of Earl Lascelles, husband of Princess Mary, and a friend of the Prince of Wales. Captain Mills is the son of the Hon. A. H. Mills, a London banker, and has a ranch in Australia, besides two residences in England.

The Captain is 6 feet 7 inches tall and well built. He carried a cane about the size of trees that commuters plant. His fellow-passengers said the Captain was useful on the voyage.

On account of the size of the ship it was difficult some times for friends to find one another, so appointments were made—"Meet you at Mills at 5 o'clock, Old Scout," for he was always easy to find. Captain Mills, who described himself as a big game hunter and a seeker after "thrills," is 35 years old. He weighs 280 pounds. To show his strength, he lifted three reporters in his arms without any apparent strain. He said he was going to Los Angeles to do a stunt for the movies if the managers wanted it. "What I mean to do," he said, "is to fly along in an aeroplane, slide down a rope on to the back of a galloping horse and then climb up the rope to the plane again. Ripping—eh, what?"

Captain Mills fought through the war and was wounded twice. He then went out to South Africa, where he arrived in time for the revolution in the Rand.

While he was talking with the reporters, Captain Mills cracked Brazil nuts in his right hand.

OPERA HOUSE CO. FINED.

Metropolitan Officials Pay $200 for Illegal Partitions.

The Metropolitan Opera House and Real Estate Company, Frank Dodd, Secretary, was fined $200 yesterday by Magistrate W. Bruce Cobb in the City Magistrates' Court for erecting wooden partitions forming rooms and closets in hallways on all floors above the first without a permit.

The company was ordered by the Superintendent of Buildings to remove the partitions, in May, 1921, but did not obey the order. When found guilty the company withdrew a plea of not guilty. The fine was paid.

FOLLIES GIRL POISONED.

Helen Lee Worthing Takes Bichloride by Mistake—Will Recover.

Miss Helen Lee Worthing of the Ziegfeld Follies was found in her apartment at 63 West Fifty-sixth Street yesterday morning suffering from bichloride of mercury poisoning. She was rushed to Bellevue Hospital, where it was said last night that she would recover.

Miss Worthing told her maid she meant to take aspirin but picked up the bichloride of mercury by mistake. Her home is in Boston.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Recovery in Stocks and Foreign Exchange, Bonds Strong Again—Trading Active.

Whether because the tension at Genoa seemed somewhat to have relaxed overnight, or because further signs of improvement in the home industrial situation outweighed political considerations, or for both reasons, all financial markets gave evidence of returning composure yesterday. European exchange rates moved up nearly to Tuesday's early and highest figures. The stock market, after an early and only fractional decline, recovered most or all of the previous day's declines. The investment bond market continued both strong and active.

The least reassuring fact about the stock market—in which business again ran far above a million shares, making the fourteenth consecutive million-share day of the present month—was the fact that the day's activity again converged, not on the seasoned investment shares but on highly speculative industrials, notably the "oil stocks." While it is quite true that stocks of this character are always apt to move the most violently when the general market's tendency is either strongly upward or strongly downward, they are not the traditional basis for a sound and trustworthy movement of prices. It is markets such as that of 1919 in which their continued leadership is characteristic.

United States Steel was in this regard the main exception yesterday; an advance of 2¾ points brought it within one-fourth of 1 per cent. of par. But few other seasoned investment shares showed equal strength; the railway shares in particular recovered slowly. This may have been partly because the "car loading returns," published yesterday for the first full week of April, showed decrease of 112,743 cars from the week preceding, and were the smallest since the first week of the year. That, however, had been entirely expected; its cause is shown in the fact that loadings of coal alone decreased 115,496 cars, while loadings of general merchandise increased 6,061. Furthermore, even this large reduction left the week's total loadings greater by 115,000 cars, or 3% per cent., than in the same week of 1921.

The renewed advance in yesterday's wheat market was one of those alternations of movement which shows the presence of highly excited speculation. The market has caused great perplexity to many observers, yet the underlying facts are perfectly plain, even if the necessary deduction as to the course of prices is, as usual, debatable. Trade experts reckoned up at harvest time the amount of wheat which could be spared from the crop of 1921 for export up to next July; the full amount thus arrived at had been sent abroad more than a month ago, and still the country has gone on exporting.

The current rate of the country's steel production is calculated in the mid-week trade reviews at 73 per cent. of capacity for the Steel Corporation and about 70 for the independents. This contrasts with 65 per cent. for the industry as a whole at the beginning of April, with 55 to 60 a month ago, with a maximum of 45 last Autumn and with a rate ranging from 33 to 40 per cent. in this week of 1921. It will be seen from these comparisons on what Judge Gary based his statement of Tuesday to the Steel Corporation's meeting, that the business done, in steel has doubled in magnitude within a year.

It is not altogether clear how far the present pace of expansion is caused by increasing requirements of consumers and how far by fear of curtailment in production because of the coal strike, but actual needs are apparently the greater driving force. The Iron Age points out the "increasing inability of mills to make prompt deliveries" despite the enlargement of active capacity. Even for March the output of structural steel, in response to the nation-wide revival of building activities, is now reported as having been 30 per cent. above the same month's average in the past ten years, and the Steel Corporation's Chairman made the striking statement at Monday's meeting that export business "is getting back to where it was before the war."

MONEY.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 19, 1922.

Call loans on Stock Exchange ruled at 3½ per cent. all day, unchanged from Tuesday's prevailing quotation. Outside loans likewise obtained at previous rate of 3. Time money is loaning at 4¼ for the shorter maturities and at 4½ for three to six months. Market is quiet, only a small amount of funds being loaned. Commercial paper market is on a 4¼@4½ per cent. basis, although more names are going at 4¼ than previously. Dealers still report a scarcity of paper. Acceptances were fairly active, but discount was unchanged at 3½ bid, offered at 3¾.

London Market.

Money on London market unchanged, at 2 per cent.; short bills unchanged at 2⅛@2¼ per cent., and three months unchanged at 2⅛@2⅜ per cent.

Gold bullion was up 1d. at 93s 6d. Taking the British mint's standard price of 85s per fine ounce as par, the market quotation for gold would represent a price of 110 at London. On the same basis the highest London price for gold for the year to date was 115⅝ on Jan. 5. The highest price since upon trading in gold was resumed at London in September, 1919, was 149⅝, on Feb. 9, 1920; the lowest 100⅝ on March 1, 1922.

Exchanges of checks at the New York Clearing House $910,290,000; balances, $85,500,000; Federal Reserve Bank's credit balance, $60,360,000; this day's year ago, $788,021,000.

City of Soissons, France
15 Year 6% Bonds

These bonds are not callable. They, therefore, offer a long term investment, the basic security of which is annually further strengthened through redemption fund payments. By 1934 it is estimated that any outstanding bonds will be secured by not less than an equal amount in cash or Canadian Bonds in addition to the remaining annual payments.

The French Government has contracted to make these annual payments.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL EARNED $9,700,794

Deduction for 1920 Compensation Claim Reduces Amount Per Share to $6.27.

CHICAGO PROJECT ENDORSED

Stockholders Approve $50,000,000 Stock Issue for Electrifying Terminal.

The annual report of the Illinois Central Railroad Company for 1921 shows a net income of $9,700,794, after taxes and charges, equivalent to $6.87 a share earned on the $109,295,507 outstanding capital stock. In 1920 the carrier, with the assistance of the Government guarantee and rentals, showed a net of $13,571,132, or $12.41 a share. The profit and loss surplus as of Dec. 31, 1921, was $28,417,391, against $27,135,232 for the preceding year.

The item of interest and rentals in the income account for 1921, amounting to $19,735,313, includes a charge of $6,854,562 on account of a reduction in the company's claim against the Government for compensation in the six months guarantee period of 1920. The inclusion of this item in the deductions from income for 1921 makes a difference in the final balance available for the dividend, the report shows, resulting in earnings per share equal to $6.27.

The principal items in the report as compared with 1920 are shown in the following table:

Govt. g'ty. & rental		22,899,521

Operating income	23,985,920	15,516,533
Equip. rents	1,410,446	3,005,532
Net oper. income	24,896,789	18,522,065
Other income	5,089,238	7,219,892
Gross income	29,436,007	25,741,957

The report was issued yesterday at the annual meeting of the stockholders held in Chicago. The stockholders ratified the company's plan for the issuance of $50,000,000 of preferred stock over a long period of years for the purpose of electrifying its lines in and around Chicago, and for other building and extension work.

Stanley Field was elected a Director, to succeed J. Ogden Armour, who resigned in accordance with the Interstate Commerce Commission's ruling against "interlocking directorates."

MANAGEMENT

The executives and directors are substantially the men who directed the Company during the period of its greatest prosperity and growth from very modest beginnings to its present position as the world's greatest producer of truck axles exclusively.
Among the large users of Torbensen axles are the International Harvester Co., Olds Motor Works, Republic Motor Truck Co., Graham Bros., (who, with Dodge Bros., manufacture the Graham-Dodge truck), Commerce Motor Car Co., Avery Co., Velie Motors Corporation, Martin-Parry Co. and Case Plow Co.

The Torbensen Axle Company is an independent concern, privately owned and in no wise connected by stock ownership with any of the other great automotive industrial companies.

Mr. R. C. Enos, Vice President and General Manager, summarizes as follows the facts concerning the Company:

THE COMMON STOCK IS THE COMPANY'S ONLY OUTSTANDING SECURITY.

FINANCIAL POSITION—Upon completion of this financing, the Company will be in very strong financial condition with ample working capital, current assets of over twice current liabilities, and inventory reasonable in amount and carried at market or cost, whichever is lower.

EARNINGS—Average annual earnings for five years ending December 31, 1921, before Federal taxes, amortization of patents and interest charges, but after depreciation, adjustment of inventory to market, and loss on purchase commitments, were $451,564, or $5.64 per share of common stock.

In 1921 despite the adverse business conditions, the Company made a small profit. Business now on hand indicates satisfactory profits for 1922.

SCHLESINGER HEIRS IN $7,000,000 DEAL

Syndicate Here and in West Seeks Steel & Tube Co. Holdings of Two Legatees.

TRANSACTION TO BE PRIVATE

Armin A. Schlesinger, Now in Control of Properties, to Remain as One of the Managers.

New interests here and in the West are arranging to buy into the Schlesinger properties in Wisconsin and Illinois, chief of which is the Steel and Tube Company of America. An association of several big financial men has been formed, and negotiations now in progress look toward taking over the holdings of two of the Schlesinger heirs. The transaction will involve from $7,000,000 to $15,000,000.

Ferdinand Schlesinger, who was the head and active manager of the concern, died about a year ago. He was reputed to be the wealthiest man in Wisconsin, worth between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000. Since his death Armin A. Schlesinger, the youngest son, has been in active control of the properties, and it is understood he will be one of the managers under the new arrangement.

As the transaction is purely in the nature of a private purchase, no public offering of securities is planned. Several New Yorkers are in the pool. It was emphasized yesterday, however, that negotiations had not been concluded.

The Steel and Tube Company of America was incorporated in Delaware in June, 1918, as a consolidation of the Iroquis Iron Company and the Mark Manufacturing Company. In July, 1919, the Newport Mining Company, the Northwestern Mining Company and the Harold Spring Company were merged and the by-product coke company at Indiana Harbor, Ind., was purchased from the Semet-Solvay Company. All of these companies except the Semet-Solvay coke plant were acquired by the issuance of the Steel and Tube Company's common stock.

The company manufactures merchant pig-iron, steel, steel pipe and other tubular goods. Its properties and their operation include every requirement and process from the raw material to the finished product. Fully equipped iron ore mines are controlled in Wisconsin with iron ore reserves of approximately 23,000,000 tons. It has 228 by-product coke ovens with an annual capacity of about 1,000,000 tons of coke.

In 1920 the company's gross profits after Federal taxes and depreciation amounted to $8,112,925. The company has $17,500,000 in 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock outstanding and 972,628 shares of common stock.

Another Schlesinger property is the Milwaukee Gas and Coke Company.

HIGHER STEEL PRICES.

Coal Strike and Delivery Calls Help Stimulate the Market.

The chief effect of the coal strike upon the iron and steel industry during the past week has been to advance the price of pig iron, while an increased demand for rolled product accompanied by higher prices was witnessed.

The Iron Age in its current issue says:

"Buying of steel has been stimulated by the increasing inability of mills to make prompt deliveries. Consumers have found that they must lay in stocks instead of drawing on the mills week by week as they have done for months.

"The situation in steel has changed so rapidly in favor of sellers that in view of strike possibilities and the large volume of their sales in March, some of them are more cautious about booking ahead.

"In brief, the price changes of the week are $1 to $2 per ton on pig iron in most districts and as high as $3 in eastern Pennsylvania on limited sales, while several finished steel products are up $2 per ton.

REMINGTON FIGHT TO COURT

Injunction, Returnable Today, Halts Counting of Votes.

Special to The New York Times.

ILION, N. Y., April 19.—Judge Alverson in the Supreme Court at Utica issued an injunction today halting the count of votes in the election of directors for the Remington Typewriter Company at its annual meeting held here. This was done at the instance of the present management, which seeks to prevent the count of 8,500 shares still held by the voting trust and controlled by the independent committee. It is held by the present management that the right to cast votes for those represented in the voting trust expired some time ago, and that they should not be counted. Judge Alverson's injunction is returnable tomorrow.

The annual meeting for the first time in many years will consume two or more days, due to the efforts of the independents to regain control of the Remington Typewriter Company, which they lost two years ago.

The following were placed in nomination for directors by the faction now in control: Roger S. Baldwin, Henry Harper Benedict, Maurice Coster, Frederick F. Fitzpatrick, Archibald A. Forrest, James M. Gifford, Frank N. Kondolf, Robert P. Loomis, Phineas C. Lounsbury, Frank H. Maynard, Mercer P. Moseley, Arleigh D. Richardson, Augustus T. Rose, Harry E. Stilles and George E. Warren.

The independents nominated the following slate: Edward G. Wilmer, Leonard Kennedy, George K. Morrow, A. P. Walker, Steddard M. Stevens, Jr., Kenneth L. Curtis, F. C. Williams, John C. W. Reynders, Horace E. Lamb, Miner W. Tuttle, Pemberton Berman, James H. Carney, Henry Harper Benedict, R. P. Loomis, Frank N. Kondolf.

OFFERS $30,000,000 OIL CO. BONDS TODAY

Syndicate Is Floating Sinclair Crude Purchasing Concern's Issue of 5½s at 99½.

LOAN FOR NEW ORLEANS

$1,200,000 Bond Issue Constitutes Direct Obligation on All Taxable Property of City.

The National City Company, the Chase Securities Corporation, Blair & Co. and the First Trust & Savings Bank of Chicago are heading a syndicate which will offer today an issue of $30,000,000 Series "A" Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company three-year 5½ per cent. notes, at 99½, to yield about 5.70 per cent. The notes are dated April 15, 1922.

The Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company has capital of $20,000,000, half of which is owned by the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation and half by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. It has no mortgage or pledge outstanding against any assets except purchase money obligations, and the company agrees to maintain net quick assets of 125 per cent., as against all liabilities, including the new note issue.

The proceeds of this issue will be used to pay off current indebtedness in connection with the accumulation of 10,000,000 barrels of oil as well as to provide additional capital for further crude oil purchases. The Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company has a contract with the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation and the Standard Oil Company of Indiana whereby the two concerns will buy all crude oil of the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company to an amount of $30,000,000, each company to take half of the oil.

The purchasing company agrees to pay no dividends except out of earnings subsequent to 1921, and then only in the event that net quick assets are 150 per cent. of all liabilities, including notes.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the National City Company are offering at 83½ $10,000,000 Paris-Lyons Mediterranean 6 per cent. external sinking fund bonds. This issue completes an authorized total of $40,000,000. The bonds are being offered pro rata to the distributing houses, who placed the original $30,000,000 issue.

W. A. Harriman & Co., Inc., and Barr & Schmeltzer of New York and the Old Colony Trust Company and Edmunds Brothers of Boston are offering $1,000,000 City of New Orleans serial 4½ per cent. bonds, due Jan. 1, 1926 to 1937. These bonds constitute a direct obligation of the entire city and are payable from unlimited ad valorem on all the taxable property therein. The maturities, 1926 to 1936, are offered on a 4.40 basis, and 1936 to 1937 at prices to yield 4.35 per cent.

Kelly, Drayton & Co. are offering an issue of $157,000 City of White Plains 4½ per cent. bonds, due serially 1924 to 1944, at prices to yield 4.30 per cent. to 4.10 per cent., according to maturity.

William R. Compton Company and Bond & Goodwin are offering $625,000 Texas Electric Railway convertible debentures, due Jan. 1, 1942, at 87, to yield about 7.25 per cent. The bonds are convertible into first preferred 7 per cent. cumulative stock, par for par, with adjustment of interest and dividends. The company operates 200 miles of interurban railway extending from Dallas to other cities in Texas. The average annual earnings, after mortgage interest, for the last seven years were more than five times the interest requirements on the debentures.

E. H. Rollins & Sons are offering at 102, to yield over 7.65 per cent., the first (closed) mortgage 8 per cent. sinking fund, gold bonds of the New England Oil Refining Company. The bonds mature March 1, 1931. They are redeemable in whole or in part on any interest date, at par and interest plus a premium of 1 per cent. for each or part thereof of unexpired life.

COTTON SHOWS LOSS AFTER EARLY GAIN

Liquidation of Old Crop Positions Checks Upturn—Prices Off 1 to 7 Points.

Cotton advanced again yesterday, but failed to hold the gain. While temperatures in the cotton belt were low, with rain where it was not wanted, the weekly summary was favorable to an extent that counteracted the day's weather developments. An advance in grain and securities, with the first improvement in silver in some months, brought a continuation of the buying movement early in the session. On the upturn increased liquidation of old crop positions took place and when reselling started some months lost a quarter of a cent. Liberal scale buying orders were disclosed on the decline. Final prices were 1 to 7 points lower on the day.

Early trading was influenced by heavy rains at several points in the Atlantic States, with low temperatures in the West belt. For a time a poor response in Liverpool left the tone somewhat uncertain, but a closing upturn abroad and a 5c advance in wheat started active buying from commission houses. A large quantity of both new and old crop positions were taken from the ring, advancing October to high figures of the previous session. A block of 5,000 December for sale at 17.70 was all taken, as was a block of January.

There was a steady gain in distant months as compared with May and July. For a few moments it looked as though the upward movement would be resumed, but a quantity of July for sale at each point advance proved too much for the market to absorb. The moment demand for near months slowed down, room operators began selling out new crops taken early. Though October sold as high as 17.78, a setback of 15 points occurred before midday. During the advance October continued to run over July, and for the first time this season December sold 8 points over July. Even January and March advanced to virtually the same level as the July position. The way in which distant months have lost their discounts has been a feature of trading for several days.

SAYS AMERICA MUST FINALLY AID EUROPE

FINDS LEAGUE ISSUE DEAD

Old World, Recovering, Turns to Economic Cure for Ills, Banker Reports.

Mortimer L. Schiff of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. returned from Europe yesterday on the White Star liner Olympic after having been abroad about six weeks. During that time he visited England, France and Germany, the latter for the first time since the war, and met various leading personalities in political, financial and industrial life in those countries.

"On the whole," he said, "I found an apparently honest desire to solve the problems which confront Europe. There are still grave differences of opinion and of point of view, there are still animosities, there is still too much consideration of international questions from the standpoint of domestic politics, there is still in various quarters a feeling of lack of confidence and a sense of insecurity; but progress is being made and there is an increasing realization that the questions at issue must be dealt with on an economic rather than on a political basis.

"While I have impressed upon those with whom I have come in contact that under existing conditions the solution of European problems must be found by the European nations themselves without looking to the United States for assistance, I return home more firmly convinced than ever that these are problems from which eventually in our own interest, if for no other reason, we cannot hold ourselves aloof. We cannot be the creditor nation of the world and enjoy such advantages as accrue from that position without accepting also some of the responsibilities.

"It is interesting to note that I did not hear the League of Nations mentioned by any one of the numerous people with whom I discussed the European situation. It appears to have fallen into innocuous desuetude. On the other hand, I heard nothing but praise for the results of the recent Washington conference and for its masterly leadership.

"They regret our absence from Genoa. While they seem to appreciate our reasons for keeping away, they hope that in due course our co-operation will be forthcoming. That appeared to me to be the ardent wish of the European statesmen and business men. It was my privilege to meet—not because they want us to do something which it is not in our interest to do or because they wish to exploit us, but because they realize even if some of us do not, that there can be no final settlement of the European problem—for it is a world problem—to which the United States is not a party."

UPTURN FOR WHEAT ON EXPORT DEMAND

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 19.—The foreign situation has become the main factor in shaping the course of domestic grain prices. An advance of 2¾d. in Liverpool wheat caught a majority of the local element short, and their efforts to cover, combined with seaboard and foreign buying, led to a sharp upturn, the greater part of which was maintained to the last, with net gains of 1¾@3¾c., the May leading and closing at 17⅛c. over the July, against 16c. the previous day. Foreigners took large quantities of July and September out of the local pit.

The outlook for the European and Australian crops is attracting unusual attention for this season of the year, as some of the explanations given for the strength abroad today were not satisfactory to many traders, who believe that there is something else in the situation that may take several days to show up.

On all the breaks today there was a good class of buying, especially under $1.42 for May, and it was evident that shorts were trying to get in without affecting the market materially.

Export demand continues active and sales yesterday and today yielded new crop Winters aggregating over 2,000,000 bushels, around 1,000,000 of which were Manitobas. It is estimated that Canadian ports will ship close to 10,000,000 bushels during the first ten days after the resumption of navigation, which officially opened today. Chicago handlers bought 165,000 bushels hard Winter to come here from Missouri River points during the day and were working on more long after the close.

Corn receipts have been 1,444,000 bushels; previous week, 1,782,000; last year, 963,000, and shipments, 1,713,000 bushels; previous week, 1,155,000; last year, 1,240,000.

DECREASE SHOWN IN CAR LOADINGS

DROP DUE TO COAL STRIKE

Only 69,456 Fuel Loadings Reported Compared to 184,952 in the Week Ending April 1.

The loading of revenue freight for the week ended on April 8, totaled 714,268 cars, 112,743 cars less than the week preceding, but an increase of 19,387 cars over the corresponding week in 1921. In the corresponding week two years ago, 801,659 cars were loaded.

The slump compared with the previous week was due to a falling off in shipments of coal as a result of the miners' strike. Coal loadings for the week totaled 69,456 cars, a decrease of 115,496 from the week before, 56,985 less than in the same week last year, and 102,076 cars under the corresponding week in 1920.

Shipments of merchandise and miscellaneous freight, including manufactured products, showed an increase. The loading of merchandise and miscellaneous freight amounted to 516,652 cars, 8,041 cars more than the week before, 60,406 more than in the same week of 1921, and 32,706 more than in the same week of 1920. Ore loadings increased 2,488 cars over the preceding week, the total being 8,269 cars, exceeding the same week of 1921 by 3,490. Forest products amounted to 54,680 cars, 664 in excess of the week before and 7,219 greater than the same week of 1921.

WEATHER DELAYS CROPS.

Rains Check Spring Planting and Growth of Winter Wheat.

The Government's weekly report on conditions in the crop districts is as follows:

The continued wet weather is showing some unfavorable effects on Winter wheat on some flat lands from the lower Missouri Valley eastward, where considerable complaint of plants yellowing is noted. Much wheat has been flooded in the Illinois River Valley by breaking of the levees. Wheat shows general improvement in Oklahoma and is mostly in good to excellent condition in Eastern Kansas, but in the lower central western portions of Kansas the recovery is unsatisfactory.

Another wet week was experienced in most parts of the interior States and very little seeding of Spring grains was accomplished, particularly in the lower Mississippi and Ohio Valley, where the delay in this work is becoming serious.

Corn planting made satisfactory progress in the Southern States under generally favorable weather conditions. This work was getting under way northward to Eastern North Carolina, Tennessee and Northern Oklahoma, but at a somewhat later date than usual. The warm weather favors the early planted crop.

The weather was more favorable in the cotton belt than for several preceding weeks, and consequently the preparation of the soil and planting made better progress. Planting was under way during the week on the coastal plains of North Carolina and was begun at points in Tennessee and Southwestern Oklahoma.

Urges Canadian Wheat Board.

Submarine Boat Company Defeats Independents at Meeting.

The independent stockholders' committee headed by Isaac Rice Jr., which had solicited proxies for the purpose of gaining control of the Submarine Boat Company, lost their fight at the adjourned annual meeting of stockholders yesterday. The ticket presented by the present management won, having received approximately 823,000 votes, while the Rice ticket received approximately 250,000 votes.

Frank Wallace, Stephen Peabody and Otto Marx were elected Directors, to succeed Isaac Rice Jr., Thomas Cochran and William H. Remick.

The Rice committee, however, through its proxies went on record as opposing certain acts of the Directors during the last year, voting "no" on the proposition of approving certain expenditures made by the board.

KRECH ON FOREIGN LOANS.

Banker Says We Have Invested $750,000,000 Since Armistice.

A keener interest and a clearer understanding of Europe and her political and economic problems is one of the salutary results of the floating of foreign issues in this country, said Alvin W. Krech, President of the Equitable Trust Company, speaking yesterday at the luncheon of the British Imperial Chamber of Commerce in the Bankers' Club. Mr. Krech estimated that since the armistice our investors have purchased European securities floated in this market to an amount of three-quarters of a billion dollars.

Commenting on the Genoa Economic Conference, Mr. Krech said that the reticence of the United States to enter these negotiations must be attributed not to a lack of interest or appreciation of Europe's present condition, but rather to the peculiar form of our government, which would make it difficult to subscribe to the Genoa program.

"We have responded to Europe's cry for economic assistance," he continued. "We might have done more, but do not forget that our country is young in the science of foreign financing, and that it has barely begun its career as a creditor nation.

"Our people may not always be very conscious of the fact that every day that passes links their economic destinies closer to Europe's fate. But every foreign bond, or every foreign acceptance, or every foreign currency note that finds its way into the safe or the till of an American business man or an American investor, brings us nearer to the complete discovery of Europe which Mr. Lloyd George hopes will be achieved."

The quotations are for six months' paper.

Ribbons Fairly Active.

The present business passing on ribbons is still of the "filling-in" variety. The stores, for some time, have been operating on very small stocks and depending upon wire and mail orders to get merchandise when it is needed. This procedure keeps down the amount of the average order but, through the frequency of the purchases, yields a fair quantity. Narrow goods are still the chief requirement, although some of the wider ribbons are taken for sashes and girdles. The attempt to stimulate the hair bow business is meeting with only fair success.

Higher Price as Sales Argument.

The manufacturing clothiers admit they are between "the devil and the deep blue sea," with respect to using the argument of higher woolen prices in promoting their sales for the Fall. The advanced prices of woolens passed the prediction stage and became actual on last week, but the clothing manufacturers are still a little afraid of using them as arguments in favor of early orders by retailers. This fear arises from the fact that, before the slump in 1920, the retailers were urged to buy under the threat of a future shortage, and the wholesalers have reason to believe that their customers have not forgotten these false warnings and will discount similar statements for some time to come.

New Version of an Old Trick.

Members of the dress trade have been warned to be on the lookout for an alleged buyer who is working a new variation of an old trick in obtaining merchandise fraudulently. Recently he went to a certain manufacturing concern, presented a card purporting to show that he was in business uptown, and bought $300 worth of merchandise. He was told that he could have the goods only for cash, to which he agreed, and a boy was sent with the garments with instructions to collect on delivery. Instead of giving the boy the cash the buyer gave him a check which was certified and, took the merchandise. When the boy reached the bank he was told that the "buyer" had no account there. On returning to the store the boy found that the man had disappeared. Inquiry made of the woman in charge of the office who said she owned it, brought the assertion that the man who worked the game was a total stranger to her.

Put Blame on Retailers.

Manufacturers of rubber overshoes and other types of "dry" footwear were loath yesterday to take the blame for the existing shortage of these goods at retail. Instead of holding back deliveries, as some of the retailers have charged, the assertion was made that shipments of the finished goods were being made as rapidly as they come through the factories. It was admitted that production is still subnormal, but it was also said that it is rapidly approaching normal in plants where a high degree of efficiency and mass-turning methods is maintained. The real trouble, it was said, is that the retailers have been backward for a long time in placing advance business. With the refusal of the big factors in the industry to carry much stock, this has meant the consumption of more than the usual time in getting the merchandise to the stores. The jobbers are also charged with holding back advance business and thus adding to the difficulty of supplying rush demands of the retailers.

Credit Combine Unlikely.

Outside of the fact that the idea is not altogether new, the proposed credit bureau for all the needle trades is not considered so feasible by experienced credit managers. There is already a bureau of the sort in the exchange of information among associations in the cloak and suit, dress and waist and fur trades, but it was found best to have the individual organizations prepare their own reports, which are made available to members of all four bodies. The large sum required for the operation of the proposed bureau is another objection cited, since it might exceed the total present requirement for running the various associations. In view of these and other considerations, the establishment of such a bureau is not thought likely.

Silks Still Quiet.

Only a few active spots are to be found in the silk goods market at present, and these are principally on mixture weaves, combining silk with wool and artificial silk. The retailers are expected to furnish more business in the immediate future, but, in view of the condition of the trade, it is believed they will shop around mainly for bargains. The chief disturbance in silks is now traced to the under-priced offerings, which formerly it was ascribed to the unsettled state of the raw material market. Considering it rather hopeless to pull the present season out of its slump, the manufacturers are chiefly concerned now in figuring out what promises the best demand for Fall. Satin-faced crêpes are well regarded in this particular.

Gray Goods Very Quiet.

There was a sharp decline in activities in the local gray goods market yesterday, due to the Jewish holiday and the celebration of Patriot's day in Massachusetts. Among the limited business actually done in printcloths during the day were sales of 38½-inch 64-60s at 7¾ cents for spot delivery. Bids of 8¼ cents for spot 39-inch 88-72s were rejected by sellers. In the sheetings a few spot lots of 5.50s were sold at 6¼ cents, with the market firmly sustained on the basis of 8 cents for 48-square, four-yard goods. In the sateens, good makes of 39-inch 4.20s are held at 12½ cents.

Sports Hats Still Go Strong.

The passing of Easter has not diminished the demand for sports hats in the local millinery trade. Among the best sellers are recorded puff and roll brim effects; soutache and cording embroidery on silk shapes; the combination of felt with taffeta and of felts with crepe de chine; fairly corded silk shapes for the popular striped, box stitched models; and blended and plain buckle bands and fancies for trims. Buckle is proving a popular trimming for sports and semi-sports models, particularly those of felt and silk. The feathers are either of one tone to match or contrast with the felt crown, or they are of blended shades of a contrasting color.

Galoshes Had Big Season.

Whatever the members of the shoe trade may think personally of flappers, they openly admit that they were instrumental in bringing about the biggest season in galoshes that has been experienced in a long time. The demand for this footwear, as a result of the flapper-flop craze, was very heavy the first of the month and the effects of it were evident as far West as Chicago, in fact, a sales executive of one of the big manufacturing concerns said yesterday that sales of this footwear in the section of the country lying east of Chicago made up fully 20 per cent. of all the overshoe business done by his company during the season.

Radio Apparatus Plans.

The committee appointed to look into the radio apparatus situation for the retailers met yesterday in the rooms of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, and another session will be held today. Members of the committee were secretive about yesterday's proceedings, but it is understood that a resolution was passed which will ask the Government to better serve the public in handling wireless traffic. The nature of the committee's agreement was not disclosed, but it will be put before Secretary Hoover for his approval. The plan does not propose, it was stated, the operation of a company to undertake the distribution of the apparatus.

SENATE VOTES FUNDS FOR WORK ABROAD

Appropriation Bill for State and Justice Departments Raised to $28,700,000.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The annual appropriation bill for the State and Justice Departments, carrying $28,700,000, an increase of $5,300,000 over the measure as passed by the House, was passed today by the Senate and sent to conference.

All increases recommended by the Appropriations Committee were adopted by the Senate. The more important of these included $300,000 for the Executive's "secret fund" for diplomatic emergencies, $47,750 for American representation on the Arms Conference Commission to revise Chinese tariffs, $150,000 for prohibition enforcement and $150,000 for special assistants to the Attorney General.

Another appropriation resulting from the arms conference, which was made upon presentation by Senator Lodge, was for $21,000 for American representation on the commission to investigate extra-territorial rights in China. The Senate also adopted an amendment of $20,000 for expenses of the Allied Debt Funding Commission.

Other international matters provided for, upon motion of Senator Lodge, included $75,000 for the Pan American Conference at Santiago, Chile, in 1923; $200,000 for special post allowances for American diplomatic and consular officers; $5,000 for American participation in the International Maritime Conference at Brussels; $3,960 for America's share in support of the International Hydrographic Bureau; $3,750 for an American delegate on the jurists' conference, provided at the arms conference to consider revision of the laws of war, and $2,150 for claims of the Norwegian Government for expenses of Norwegian witnesses in a proceeding resulting from injury to the Norwegian ship Ingrid.

The appropriation for the American section of the High Pan American Commission was increased from $15,000 to $25,000, as requested by Secretary Hoover of the Commerce Department, after considerable controversy in which abolishment of the commission was demanded. The Senate adopted an amendment by Senator King, Democrat, Utah, requiring the commission to make a final report and dissolve by July 1, 1923.

ELEVATED STAIRS DISPUTE.

Borough President Miller Asks Relocation at 33d St. and 6th Av.

The removal of the escalator and one of the stairways communicating with the Sixth Avenue elevated line at Thirty-third Street, of two stairways giving access to the Hudson Tubes and of several pillars supporting the elevated structure in Thirty-third Street is now demanded by Borough President Julius Miller, who has been advised by the Corporation Counsel that these structures illegally maintained. Their re-location is urged by the Borough President as a remedy for the traffic congestion at that point.

In a communication to the Board of Estimate, President Miller points out that the office of the Borough President might undertake the removal and re-location of these alleged encroachments, but he advises the Board of Estimate to request the Transit Commission to issue the desired order, inasmuch as the matter is related to the operations of the transit companies.

EDSEL FORD THINKS OUTLOOK IS BRIGHT

FARMING INDUSTRY BETTER

Expects to Increase Auto Production to High-Water Mark This Year.

An optimistic view of the industrial outlook was taken by Edsel B. Ford, President of the Ford Motor Company, in an interview here yesterday. He blamed the high cost of transportation for business not returning to normal more rapidly.

"Judging by our own business, the entire industrial outlook is very good," said Mr. Ford, who has been in the city for the last four days in connection with the National Industrial Tractor Show at Long Island City. "I believe, however," he added, "that it will be essentially necessary to reduce freight rates in order to bring real relief to the situation. The farming situation is getting a good deal better. Money is easy in the Middle West around Chicago." As to the outlook for the next year or two it is rather difficult to say with any degree of definiteness.

Ford said that the coal strike had not affected the automobile industry. He said that the Ford company had its own mines, which were unaffected by strikes. The employment situation was improving, he said, explaining that in a few weeks there would be practically no unemployment in Detroit, "where we employ about 55,000 men, and have put on about 5,000 in the last three weeks."

"We expect our production will reach the high water mark of approximately 1,250,000 this year," he added. "Last year's production was 1,038,000 cars and trucks. We have twice reached a production of over a million cars; last year and in 1919."

Regarding the new plant at Green Island between Albany and Troy, Mr. Ford said: "We expect to have our new power house at Green Island plant in operation about the first of June. It will take the rest of the Summer before the factory can begin operations. We plan to manufacture all our ball and roller bearings at the Green Island plant, which will employ in the neighborhood of 2,500 men."

Speaking of Ford plants in foreign countries, he said that practically all European business is done with allied countries as "we have no branches in either Germany or Russia, and have no plans for the present for those countries, although eventually we expect to have branches in both Russia and Germany."

Mr. Ford said that there was no further reduction in the price of the Ford automobiles contemplated at this time, although he knew that a number of small cars were coming into the market as competitors.

The best tractor business was in New York State and in those farming districts adjacent to the large industrial centres, Mr. Ford asserted "as these farmers are able to transport their products at the lowest possible cost."

"The export business is picking up very well particularly in England, Spain and France," said Mr. Ford. "Business is very good in Argentina but not so good in Brazil, because of the coffee situation. Japan shows a very promising outlook, but the market indications in the East are rather slow due to very poor roads out there."

Asked what his father was doing, Mr. Ford said: "Oh, he's busy with the railroad and the Dearborn Independent and the Muscle Shoals proposition. He has enough to keep him busy."

Deny Resale of Avenue A Site.

The reported sale by Benjamin Menschel of the former Astor holdings at 96 to 108 Avenue A, six four-story apartments, for improvement with a movie theatre is incorrect. Brown, Wheelock Company, which was the broker in the sale of the property to Mr. Menschel, denied yesterday that negotiations for a resale were pending.

Commercial Leases.

The store at 2,425 Broadway was leased by Carstein & Linnekin to Barret, Nephews & Co.

Abraham Sattin and J. T. Machat have leased for the Fox Amusement Corporation to the United Retail Candy Stores for a branch shop the store in the Nemo Theatre Building, at the southeast corner of Broadway and 110th Street, for ten years at an aggregate rental of $50,000.

M. Rosenthal Company leased to Brook & Schlesinger the store at 268 Seventh Avenue.

The Mirror Company leased a store at the north side of Ninety-fourth Street, near Broadway, at a rental of $5,000, through Edwards, Dowdney & Richart.

I HAVE ANOTHER. IT'S A CORNER ON THE CONCOURSE THIS SIDE OF 200TH ST. TAX EXEMPT. IF YOU LOOK IT OVER YOU'LL SEE "THERE'S A REASON." IT IS FILLED UP SO QUICKLY, TO TAKE TITLE TO THIS ONE REQUIRES ABOUT DOUBLE THE AMOUNT OF THE ABOVE.

IF THIS ISN'T A "MATCHER," I'LL THROW MY "TIDDLER" DICTIONARY INTO THE WASTE BASKET. IF IT DID NOT SHOW THE PROPER RETURNS AND FINANCED SO ONE COULD SLEEP EASY, BELIEVE ME, I WOULDN'T ADVERTISE IT.

THE word bargain is often abused, but a genuine bargain is usually discerned by any common sense person. It takes time, patience and intimate knowledge of the realty market to select and secure bargains for prospective investors, but it is not a very difficult task to do so if we consider the unforeseen circumstances of daily occurrence, which compel some owners, for a myriad of diverse reasons, to seek a quick purchaser for their properties. Some of the properties sold by us last month, among which the 4-story tenement, 340-344 East 106th St. and 446-448 East 117th St., were resold by the purchasers at a substantial profit. There is a reason; they were genuine bargains. We have some more. PESCIA, Times Building. Tel. Bryant 4000.

YOUTH KILLED BEATING HIS WAY FOR A THRILL

Son of Prominent Bloomfield (N. J.) Man Swept Off Fast Train's Roof at Yonkers.

Coroner Edward Fitzgerald of Westchester County was called to Yonkers yesterday to investigate the accidental death of George B. Gavin Jr., 17 years old, son of a prominent resident of Bloomfield, N. J., who was killed early today while on the top of a fast New York Central train.

With Kenneth Doolittle, 19, of 359 Randolph Avenue, Jersey City, Gavin climbed aboard the "Buffalonian" when it stopped at Yonkers, and got on the roof of a sleeping car. They failed to see the Ashburton Avenue bridge that spans the tracks a mile north of the Yonkers depot and the Gavin boy was struck by the bridge and thrown against Doolittle. The latter fell down between two cars and clung there. Gavin, whose skull was fractured, fell to the track below. He was probably killed instantly.

When the train reached Harmon, Doolittle, trembling as the result of his harrowing experience, alighted and telephoned to the police in Yonkers. The police investigated and found Gavin's body. Doolittle was held, technically, on a charge of train-riding until Coroner Fitzgerald ordered his release.

Both youths were bound for Albany to visit relatives. Doolittle said they had money and there was no need of them beating their way but that they wanted a thrilling adventure.

KILLS HIS BROTHER'S WIFE AND HIMSELF

Philadelphia Robber Had Fallen in Love When She Tried to Reform Him.

HIS BODY FOUND BY HUSBAND

Latter Weeps Over Him Until He Learns of the Murder in His Own Home.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 19.—George Paul, a Philadelphia hold-up man, who spent his leisure time on the Boardwalk here as the more or less unwelcome guest of his brother Stephen, proprietor of a shore restaurant, shot and killed his brother's wife early this morning and later killed himself. Stephen Paul was sobbing beside his brother's body when word was brought him that George had killed Stephen's wife.

George, with a record of convictions for banditry in Philadelphia, was wanted by the police of Wilkesbarre. He was released from the Eastern Penitentiary three months ago, and then came here. Stephen tried to reform him. When he failed his wife took a hand and tried to make George work, the police say, but he only fell in love with her while she grew to hate him. This produced the emotional conflict which resulted in the tragedy today.

Late last night while Stephen was at his restaurant at 28 South Kentucky Avenue, George visited Stephen's home at Smith's Landing, about ten miles from here, presumably to see his brother's 28-year-old wife.

This morning her children found her body lying across her bed. She had been shot behind the left ear. Neighbors telephoned the discovery to James Ross, Stephen Paul's partner. Meanwhile Stephen, who had gone to his brother's room over the restaurant to waken him in a final effort to make him work, found George's door locked and bolted. He forced the door and found George's dead body, lying across a bed. A 32-calibre pistol lay beside the body, with two chambers empty.

Stephen burst into tears and threw himself upon his brother's body, and was crying loudly when Ross told him his wife had been killed. Stephen refused to believe it, and still was mourning George's death when he reached his home half an hour later. From the police a few hours later Stephen learned the truth.

Detectives compared a bullet found near Mrs. Paul's body with that extracted by County Physician Louis R. Souder from George's brain. The bullets were of the same make and calibre.

SAY PEACOCK HOLDS MISSING BANK FUNDS

Officials Declare Four Persons Involved in $460,000 Shortage in Chicago Institution.

CHICAGO, April 19.—Investigators of the State Attorney's office declared today that whatever remains of the $460,000 withdrawn from the Milwaukee-Irving State Bank several months ago "is in the hands of Everett R. Peacock, the former President, and three other persons." They made this statement after questioning Peacock, his wife, a former bookkeeper named Nisson and H. W. Anderson, former cashier.

Mrs. Peacock said she had turned over to her husband $50,000 to use in his deals. Nisson said, according to the investigators, that Albert Gaston, Secretary of the now bankrupt seed company Peacock organized, was in constant touch with Peacock at the bank. He said, the investigators declared, that Albert H. Sporleder, former President and Director of the bank, was also concerned in the alleged transactions. Axel Settleberg, manager of the seed company, also was being souch for questioning.

Sporleder appeared at the State's Attorney's office late today and was immediately questioned.

"I do not deny that I borrowed the money," Peacock was quoted as saying. "I borrowed a lot of money. What I object to is being made the goat. I borrowed the money with the knowledge of the bank officials and some of the Directors. I will not say now who these men are, bu tit will all come out in the end. They are as much to blame as I am."

TAKES UP TRAMP PROBLEM.

Committee of Five Organizations Hopes to Lessen Evil.

An effort to lessen the numbers of tramps trudging over country roads and stealing rides on trucks will be made by a committee appointed yesterday and representing five national social organizations. The committee was formed following a luncheon in the Madison Square Hotel held by the American Association for Organizing Family Social Work, to which fifteen other bodies were invited to send delegates.

"There are more homeless men than ever before in this country," said one of the committee. "They ride on automobile trucks nowadays instead of on freight trains. Their average age before the war was about 50. Now the average age is around 32. They discredit those who are genuinely seeking employment. The police are helping, but we think something further can be done to remedy the situation." The committee includes David H. Holbrook, Executive Director of the Association for Family Social Work, Chairman; Virgil V. Johnson, of the National Association of Travelers' Aid Societies; Major Edward Underwood, of the Salvation Army; Dr. John B. Andrews, of the American Association for Labor Legislation, and Roy P. Gates, Director of the Joint Application Bureau of the New York Charity Organization Society.

PROBST LOSES FIGHT HERE.

Deportation of Swiss Waiter Asked of Washington.

The immigration authorities, through Assistant Immigration Commissioner Byron H. Uhl, forwarded to Washington yesterday a recommendation that August Probst of Switzerland, the former waiter of the Rolling Rock Club near Pittsburgh, be deported. The case is now before the Secretary of Labor for final decision. The Board of Special Inquiry found the charge sustained that Probst was "likely to be a public charge at the time of entry" into this country.

Bernard Sandler, attorney for Probst, said that he took this finding as a vindication from the charge that his client is insane. Commissioner Uhl said that if Mr. Sandler looks upon the report as a victory he is mistaken, for the finding of Probst's inability to make a living is entirely predicated upon the certificate of the examining physicians that the alien is insane.

The case of Probst attracted attention because of his charge that he was being "railroaded" out of the country because he fell in love with a daughter of a wealthy member of the Rolling Rock Club.

FOR THE MAN WHO CARES

KEWANEE

Look for the Heating Boiler

The man who rents an apartment without taking a slant in the basement first, is either an Eskimo at heart or just a natural-born, reckless skeezicks.

If that apartment hasn't a first-class heating boiler in it, like the Kewanee all steel boiler, then it is about as valuable as a lead nickel with a hole in it or a guarantee on an automobile.

Renting an apartment must be based on the heating plant. You must LOOK IN THE BASEMENT FIRST, old bean. If you find the Kewanee Boiler there, with the name Kewanee on the door, you're safe. If you don't, then you are going to wear out your voice hollering for heat.

Don't blame the janitor when the radiators refuse to whistle. He can't coax steam out of a boiler that can't respond. It may be that the boiler is made of cast-iron which can't stand cold weather. Take your own precautions. The apartment is only as good as its heating plant.

A word to building owners: Because of their known ability to make more heat with less coal than any other boiler built. Kewanee Boilers increase the selling value of any building.
